

13 FEB 05. Dear Tom: It was great, as always, to receive your letter of FEB 4th, with your usual cogent comments on events. I appreciated your acerbic appellation of "Congo" Lisa Rice. I found her former first name confusing. As Amos & Andy would say, "She have a mighty high coefficient of unquitude." "Naw, I jus' say she be uniquer dan mos' Black broads." A local acquaintance watches Brazilian TV programs because he knows Portuguese & worked in Brazil for the Peace Corps. He showed me a card listing the known diseases he acquired, which prohibit him from donating blood, ever. He said that the Brazilians did a spoof on Bush & Osama bin Laden. A Bush look-alike has a Negress on his lap, who very much resembles Rice, as he sits in the Oval Office talking on the phone to his buddy, Osama, who's hiding out in Rio. Osama has a mulatta draped strategically over his lap, while they have a friendly chat. The Osama look-alike has been having lots of fun in Rio, he says, pausing to quaff a beer. My acquaintance said that Brazilian TV seems much more 'liberal' than U.S. TV. I certainly agreed!

I also think the ZOG will attack Iran with very little notice, & the dumb Goyim will go along with it. They've already surrendered to the brand of Zionist imperialism touted by Bush & his kosher neo-conmen. It's as if the Goyim have resigned themselves to die for Israel, already. The college students seem oblivious to the likelihood of a military draft, as if they would not be subject to such a policy. "What, me worry?" is their apparent motto. The U.S. sheeple behave like the proverbial deer caught in the headlights of an 18-wheeler. I guess they'll be 'the road-kill of history'. Stay tuned!

Yes, Bush alias Caligula seems too stupid to know what he is doing. I doubt that he'd care if he did know. He may be dumb, but he's also a crook. On the big picture screen, I see China as the winner of this crazy Zionist crusade in The Middle East. China has no love for Moslems, nor for the U.S.A., so they must enjoy seeing these two potential enemies of China wear themselves out fighting each other, as the U.S. is absorbed by Mexico. The U.S.A. is stretched very thin on the ground, so a bit more pressure is likely to cause it to have a military breakdown, especially if it takes on Iran. You may have noted that Putin's Russia wants to supply Iran with nuclear facilities. As for North Korea, I think China is prepared to do whatever they see as in their interests, regardless of oldtime friendship. China does not want any nukes going off on the Korean peninsula, nor can I blame them, & China definitely holds North Korea on a leash, so I don't find North Korean nuke-rattling all that credible. I think both those asiatic powers want to see if they can shake down Uncle Stupid for some shekels, since the bottom is dropping out of the dollar.

Yes, Iraq is becoming more volatile, now that the Shi-ites are the electoral majority. The much-vaunted ZOG election came & went, changing nothing, except for identifying the interests of Iraq's 3 main groups, & underlining their diversity. As you say, the Turks may also assert themselves in matters of Iraqi oil & territory. Iraq is up for grabs, & so is the U.S.A., WHETHER we choose to know it or not. As you say, ZOG-mercs are insufficient to hold ground. Besides, that's not their job. It's sabotage, espionage & assassination. Such pinpoint ops are relevant until things really become chaotic. At that time, there will be a need for many more grunts on the ground, which we cannot supply. There is too much land & too many people for the ZOG to take on. That's why we are accused of "imperial over-reach". The ZOG is like a bubble which becomes thinner as it expands, until it pops & the ZOG is no more. Meanwhile, China waits & watches for its 'window of opportunity', as the ZOG expends its limited resources on behalf of Israel.

Iran, with its large population & territory, represents an interesting challenge to the ZOG & its Israeli masters. The Zionist powers could use aerial attacks to knock out Iran's air force, large military concentrations & other strategic targets, but it seems that Iran's conventional forces are too large & too close to the U.S. occupiers in Iraq. If the ZOG were to use nukes on the Iranians, world oil supplies might be disrupted, & China & India might object to the fall out. We know, however, that Bushy is crazy enough to use nukes on Iran, regardless of the consequences, although such knowledge is hardly comforting. It's almost as reassuring as knowing that we shall be shot at dawn. So much for certainty. Whatever the Bush regime decides to do is likely to be harmful to the people of America & elsewhere, so all we can look forward to is the lesser of evils. On that happy note, I wish you all the best. DCWZ! & ORION!
