

30 June 05. Dear Phil: Many thanks for your letter of June 25th & the enclosures! I'm glad to see that Hoffman is writing useful items. I'll see if I can make legible photocopies of his ad for circulation among my correspondents, but the flier may not photocopy with so much dark on black. This is a sign of the blightwing: advertising fliers which cannot be copied! Yes, the blightwing is as difficult to help as it is to love. The nostalgic newspaper photo of the 1948 summer reading club had no ostensible mestizos, both anglo- & hispano, as my elementary school had in San Fernando, California, in 1948. My world was never White, & it got darker with every passing year, in the U.S.A. Thanks for the Mittal Steel report. From that I gather that China has greatly surpassed India in modern industrial production. As I understand, India's cheap labor actually held back technological progress, supposedly because of its caste system in which certain castes perform certain jobs. China's large supply of primitive cheap labor did not hold China back from installing the most advanced industrial processes, as we have seen. Maybe it's because China has no sacred cows, monkeys, rats, &c. They all get eaten. But in India, they eat what people eat. Greenspan says not to antagonize China with trade tariffs. The top-kick kike has spoken! We shall see if that order extends to China's intended purchase of Unocal Oil Company. I look forward to your visit after August 16th. I can't leave Yakima unless it's a matter of urgency, since this is my communications HUB. I live equidistance between the post office & the photocopy shop, which I visit every day, to keep up with correspondence. Sorry!

NPR jewsradio reported an alleged capture of an Al Qaeda message which stated that the head of the insurgents wants to keep the U.S. troops in Iraq as long as possible, to do them maximum damage. I think that's what the Chinese want, also, & Bushy is going right along with them. That's why I wonder whose side he is on, certainly not ours! He may well declare a state of emergency, as you say, in order to extend his Zionist-Armageddonist career as long as possible. Yes, we may have sufficient weather changes to create a natural emergency.

I enclose an issue of The Backwoodsman for your information & entertainment, as well as a short story I wrote in Africa, along with others. It's funny to have such leisure time during a civil war, but now that I think about it, I had week ends & evenings off, unless I was at the front, so I had more free time than I did when I worked sometimes 7 days a week at part-time, minimum-wage coolie jobs in the U.S.A.

Yes, Spanish will come in handy. I speak it almost as often as I do English in Brownest Yakima, so I feel as if I were back in Mexico, & I behave accordingly. This is bandit country.

Chernobyl still festers. There was even a very descriptive program about it on TV, with a re-enactment of decisions which led to the disaster. Yes, it was horrible. So Bush wants us to have more of this "cheap" nuclear power, which is "non-polluting", except for the deadly spent fuel rods which must be stored "somewhere safe" & guarded forever. I'm surprised his live audience does not rise up en masse & strangle him, for the rascal & liar he is. It's notable that it is Iraqi insurgency "terrorism" we are most concerned with, not the notorious Osama bin Laden, who was formerly U.S. Enemy #1. Afghanistan steadily bleeds U.S. forces, although Iraq makes the feisty Afghans look pretty lazy by comparison. But they are in no hurry. The opium is thriving. Business is good & the U.S. occupiers make amusing targets for their marksmen. Aircraft are not able to use altitude as protection, for their mission requires them to fly below mountaintops frequently, like troop-carrying helicopters. The Afghans are often in positions from which they can FIRE DOWN on enemy aircraft! This is how they downed so many Soviet helicopters, as I understand. The Afghans are merely using anti-aircraft tactics they learned from U.S. advisors, including Osama bin Laden, who was the U.S. contact man between the CIA & the Taliban (our former allies in Afghanistan). Arms were also being smuggled into Afghanistan from China, so why not now? China does not want a U.S. presence in its backyard oilfield, so it seems possible that China renders tactful assistance to the forces presently confronting the U.S. occupiers of Iraq & Afghanistan. Don't forget: Pakistan was China's ally against India & vice versa, for India was allied with the former USSR. Funny how the USA stepped into the shoes of the former USSR, with similar policies, including "democratization" & feminism + phoney elections. In Afghanistan, the Northern Alliance were the Soviet allies & they are now the U.S. allies. It reminds one of the changing alliances in Orwell's "1984". Every day, that work of 'fiction' is becoming prophecy. Bush is almost a parody of Big Brother's outrageous propaganda: Peace is War. Ignorance is Patriotism. Slavery is Freedom. Invasion & occupation + military rule = Democracy. Freedom is the freedom to die at any moment. Some reporters said that President Johnson was too outrageous to parody, but they never imagined Bush! I hope you have a profitable summer. All the best. DOWZ! & ORION!
