

3 AUG 05. Hail D.R.! Many thanks for your letter of "Jewlie" 27th & the informative enclosure! There's a kike bragging about people whom he helped to murder jewdicially, if not otherwise. If "what goes around comes around," I'd hate to be in sheeny shoes!

Our exposure to Nature's elements underlines our frailty as mammals & the frailty of our civilization. Clearly, most of us would perish without electricity. Without artificial climates, our bodies must adapt to such major changes in temperature, although some of us are fortunate in living where temperatures are not extreme. For no good reason, I usually find myself living in places with Southern California climates, that is, dry & just cold enough in winter to remind one of the seasons. In Colombia's Cauca Valley, there were said to be 2 seasons: fairly wet & fairly dry. The temperature was ideal throughout the year. If you preferred hotter or cooler all year, all you had to do was go higher or lower. When you live near the Equator, your climate is your altitude. The only disadvantage of Colombia's climate was that you had to know when to duck. As you say, we must be alert in regard to the "wolf's" movements & likely intentions. Blacks, especially, are feral interlopers in civilization, so their behavior is most informative as crises develop, & Civil War Two approaches. Stay tuned! Some fear the time when the lights go out, while others lust for it. The greater the population, the closer comes the Time of the Wolf, just as you observe. I can feel it in the 'vibes' from the street, even in Brownest Yakima, which is a semi-ghost town. As I recall from Palmira, Colombia, Yakima resembles that town in terms of population surplus & job scarcity. I estimate that the major source of income for denizens of Yakima is welfare, not work. As one local politico said: "We can't support so many retailers on a food stamp economy." Well, it's much worse now, than when he first said it.

As Thomas Chittum correctly observes, a Civil War Two would so interfere with the necessities of life, that most would perish from starvation & disease. When I happen to mention this, the bible-bangers almost drool, that their much-loved "End Times" are drawing nigh! Most of us do not realize how vulnerable we are to sudden shortages of food, water & energy. Nor do we understand just how vulnerable are our sources thereof! So far, we can gripe about inflation, but imagine what would happen to us, were food shipments to cease entirely.

As you say, all indications are that the ZOG-buck will fail, as said of the Egyptians' money in the Old Testament jew-book. This is a pre-Weimar inflation economy, so one must decide how best to spend one's zogbucks before the collapse. A piece of reliable & economic transportation sounds like a good investment, although there may not be any fuel available when wolf-times arrive. That's why we must be 'eternally vigilant', so we can make the right moves in time. It's good to hear that T.C. has resumed his website, firebaseskull. whatever. The download on his Vietnam War experiences was valuable. I made photocopies for circulation to some Viet vets I know. Were they ever set up, by ZOG!

You probably heard the latest, that Chevron bought Unocal, thus shoving China out of the purchase. China is not pleased, so our corporate criminals should beware. We live in a house of cards, & a good fiery blast from the Chinese dragon could blow it down. Stay tuned! Meanwhile, we dither & die in Iraq, just as China's military would want. It is a coin-toss to decide if Bush is a Zionist agent or a Chinese agent. He could be both! He is certainly NOT on the U.S. side, nor are those who voted him into office.

Your analysis of the end of White colonial rule in Africa accords with mine: It was not so much against the Whites, as it was against the Blacks, who will kill themselves off when left to their own devices & lack thereof. Now is the time for 'wise' American Blacks to ride to the rescue of their congener congoids, but Mr. Farrakhan does not wish to confer his wisdom upon them! The White liberals could go, instead, for at least they could serve as ingredients for the Blacks' traditional stew, like the missionaries of old. Most of all, we'd be rid of them. I wonder who will inherit formerly Black Africa. Right now, my bets are on the Chinese, although the Indians also covet the continent. The U.S. ZOG is attempting to forge a military alliance with India to counter China. Isn't it funny that the USA has inherited the USSR's former allies, including India & the pro-Soviet Northern Alliance in Afghanistan? As in "1984", the enemies of yesterday are the allies of today, & vice versa. One thing is constant: the USA ALWAYS betrays its anti-Communist allies, as it has done from 1917 onward. Like you, I wonder where the corporate criminals will flee when they have achieved their global hell-on-earth. They may have out-smarted themselves at last. Stay tuned!

Thanks for the advice! All the best, as always. DOWZ! & ORION! E.T.
