

24 AUG 05. Dear Phil: Many thanks indeed for your letter of 21 AUG & your truly outstanding enclosures! The economic reports all point in one direction: DOWN! The desperado bandido presidente Bush seems to be plotting an attack on Iran, the next target on Israel's hit-list. Not only is Iran making nuke noises, but it is really upsetting ZOG banksters by allegedly planning to trade in Euros for oil, thereby dumping the U.S.$ . Similar issues led to 2 world wars. The Bush regime, in its 'genius', has successfully bonded Russia with China & now is undermining the value of the U.S.$ in international trade. Iran's clever & very dangerous policy, if my sources are correct, would displace the U.S.$ as the oil trading currency, in favor of Euros. Venezuela & other oil-exporting countries may also dump the dollar, so Latin America may become another source of discomfort for the ZOG. U.S. plans to nuke Iran could also trigger a pre-emptive strike on the USA, for neither Russia nor China appear to have a stake in maintaining the power of the dollar. On the other hand, China wants to buy up U.S.A. with its over-abundant supply of Greenspan's funny-money, so why would China wish to waste its nukes on a continent it already owns? Well, wars have never been waged for sensible reasons, but for jew-bankster reasons. But money, gold, &c. are really symbolic wealth, whereas land & natural resources are real wealth, so it makes no sense to such practical people as the Chinese to destroy real wealth on behalf of symbolic wealth.

I have no doubt that the "petroleum crisis" cannot be blamed on the alleged greed of oil-producers, nor the great Chinese demand for petroleum products, for the U.S. petro-banksters remain responsible for the current domestic "oil shortage" & consequent bandit prices, as previously. In every "oil crisis", the petro-bankster middlemen made huge profits & the consumers paid plenty to provide those bandit-profits. I do not doubt that the huge & increasing demand for oil, worldwide, means an oil shortage in real terms, but this prospect gives the oil-bandits a great excuse for exploiting the "oil shortage", the sooner, the better--for them. The proverbial dog which did not bark in the night is, of course, inflation. As the dollar falls in value, thanks be to ZOG, more dollars must buy a given amount of oil. This is true for everything: if the supply of potatoes remains constant & the supply of dollars increases, one may expect to pay more dollars for the same quantity of potatoes. Now, if growers would band together, like the oil companies, as a "conspiracy in restraint of trade", to cite The Sherman Anti-Trust Act, they could grow fewer potatoes & demand even more dollars! "More for less is what we like best."

In my experience, martial arts are just that: artistic expression, like ballet. Cancan dancers can kick one to death, if one is within range, & so can horses. I asked a Japanese chimpira (a punk, or aspiring yakuza: gangster) if the yakuza spent hours performing martial arts. He laughed & said, "Of course not. They buy guns." Intending to kill someone is quite different from the serene mentality required for ballet &/or martial arts. Of course, killers are also trained to use their bare hands, but killing, rather than formal sparring, is a matter of surprise & opportunity, not choreography. In a street brawl, for example, I saw a woman who practiced Tai Kwan Do, Judo & Karate get knocked flat & unconscious by a blow from a hooligan's lead pipe which was wrapped in a newspaper. She was saved from further assault by her friends who were also in the fray, as police stood by. This was in Toronto, Soviet Canuckistan. The hooligans with the illegal weapons were commies, & my friends were not. Another friend who rescued the young woman was beset by six Reds & was beaten to the ground. The Reds fled, leaving him lying in a pool of his own blood. That was in 1976, shortly after I arrived from Africa. What this encounter demonstrated was that martial arts do not give one eyes in the back of his head, although such exercise is beneficial, as long as it does not disable the practitioner. I met several judo students whose knees & elbows were so banged up that they behaved like arthritic old men. They had 20 year old bodies, but 70 year old joints! In karate the pros can shove their rigid fingers into buckets of wet sand. You can imagine how that would improve your typing &/or piano-playing! In fact, it would be like exchanging your fingers for fins.

I enjoyed the download on the ZOG's work on mind-control & the paranormal, which dovetails with the UFO myth of "extra-terrestrials". In "The Mothmen Prophecies", the book refers to "Men in Black". In each case, those men are dressed & behave like orthodox rabbis, complete with "foreign accents". Of course, they do not wear sheeny-beanies, but black fedoras, with black suits & heavy shoes to match. As described, they would all pass as Lubavitcher Hasidim!

An infamous CIA jew was joyfully & sadistically dosing people with LSD, leading to the 'mysterious' death of CIA agent Olson, during the 1960s' Hippy Era. This was part of MK Ultra,

2) which may have been the CIA's spelling of "Mind Kontrol". Lots of experiments were conducted on unsuspecting Goyim. In Canada, the project was directed by one Dr. Cameron, who conveniently died in a "skiing accident" after the experiments were concluded. Hebrewwood portrayed the mind-control topic in such films as "The Manchurian Candidate" & "Telefon", plus others I've missed. Oh, yes, "The Bourne Identity" also addressed that subject.

Thanks for the booklist on topics of mutual interest! I know several who would be most interested in "Bloodlines of the Illuminati" by Fritz Springmeir. Many thanks!

Back to "mind-control": The information I received from my study of the subject did not sustain the "robot concept". As I read in regard to MK Ultra, stable personalities were very hard to manipulate, so the perpetrators went for unstable personalities, including addicts of drugs & alcohol. In Canada, at least one jewess was inducted into Dr. Cameron's CIA program without her knowledge nor consent, as was the case for all inductees. The ploy was to recommend treatment for neuroses, & the trusting patients would find themselves confined in a loonybin, in which they were drugged with all sorts of sedatives & psychotropic drugs such as LSD, for one. They were restrained & exposed to taped messages which played 24-7, with the addition of torture (pain-drug hypnosis), & shock treatments. If a neurotic had such abuse, he had every chance of becoming a psychotic, raving lunatic, thanks be to ZOG. Apparently, these mind-control experiments did not fill the bill of making people into obedient robots, although the true results may be classified. When the irate jewess wished to sue the Canadian government for her mistreatment, CANZOG clammed up. But when she inquired in the USA, under The Freedom of information Act, she hit the jackpot. FEDZOGUSA spilled the beans on Dr. Cameron's Canadian mind-control experiments, but I don't know if the jewess got paid off to shut up, for this is all I know, at present.

Of course, such invasive techniques are not really required to make mind-controlled zombies. Exposure to the jewsmedia is sufficient, since sheeple are denied truth & fed lots of jew-lies, so they prate the kosher pap they are fed day & night, which they consume willingly. Very few have critical minds, & they also seem deprived of memories with which to compare present lies with previous ones, so as to spot contradictions, as should jurors in criminal cases.

The article on UFOs from Planet Earth confirms many items which emanate from my own research on German UFOs. I wrote "Secret Nazi Polar Expeditions" as a follow up to Mattern's book, which I translate from its German title: "UFOs--Nazi Secret Weapon?" As I understand, a U.S. Air Force officer reported his discovery of a stealth fighter aircraft in an out of the way place in a basement of The Smithsonian Museum. He said it had the same configuration as those used by the USA, & bore the Swastika insignia. It looked beat up, & had flown, probably during late World War II. My USAF-ROTC instructor said that the U.S. added 40,000 new words to its aeronautical vocabulary from all the German aircraft patents (we stole). Check out Operation High Jump in the 1947 National Geographic, re the 'Nazi-hunt' in Antarctica.

Dan Rather looks like a mestizo jew (which is redundant, for all jews are Afro-Eurasians to one degree or another). I recall seeing a news feature hosted by Dan Rather entitled "One River, Two Countries", in regard to the USA & Mexico. The Mexican colonias or slums were shown on both sides of the border. The gist of the program was that the USA had no right to keep Mexicans from living on both sides of the border. I wrote at the time that the same argument could be applied to Israel: why shouldn't Palestinians be allowed to live on both sides of the Jordan? Oy veh! Dan Rather ended his pro-Mexican show with the word: "Corage" (courage, in Spanish). Clearly, he was talking over the heads of the Anglos!

The article entitled "Saucer Kraut" displays the same German UFO picture as that in the Mattern book, which was first published in the early 1970s. It is a Schauburger design, a Type II, if I recall correctly.

The "Moon Landing Controversy" is still credible as a hoax, although one science teacher told me that we had the capability to go to the Moon & back in 1910, in terms of metallurgy, mathematics & navigation, but no one was interested. I have no doubt that we were capable of going to the Moon in the 1960s, with German rocket science, but the question remains: why? When we understand that the USA & USSR were in cahoots, that the Cold War was an Orwellian hoax, then who'd be willing or able to blow the whistle? As I understand, all relevant telescopes were under the thumbs of those powers, so there would be no independent verification that a rocket did go to the Moon & back, after conducting a moonlanding. We know that 'practice' for the actual surface exploration of the Moon was done in a moon-like desert in SW USA, so why not use the pictures from that exercise as being pictures "taken on the Moon"? As you say, there was motive for a hoax: the millions of $ which could be diverted into CIA coffers. No, I was not aware of "The Kingdom of An Tir". Many thanks! DOWZ! & CRION!
