

2 OCT 05. Dear Phil: Many thanks for your letter of SEP 29th & the great enclosures! The shocking canard on Rudolf Hess by none other than historian Hugh Thomas is on par with the various British stories about how they captured an Enigma Machine: Story #1 was that it fell off the back of a truck in Poland. Story #2 was that they captured it on a U-boat. Willi Krämer, a secretary to Dr. Goebbels, said that Enigma was landline, not broadcast, so the boys & girls at Bletchley could hardly intercept Enigma transmissions from the air, even if they had their very own Enigma Machine. Krämer was asked if the landline could be tapped, & he replied that the Enigma Machine would immediately indicate an unauthorized draw on line current by rotating the coding wheels. So how was Enigma compromised? Krämer said that a Soviet mole organization, Die Rote Kapelle, had duplicated the Enigma landline from H.Q. to an unauthorized Enigma Machine in Switzerland. This was discovered only after the final assassination attempt on Hitler in 1944. When asked how the Ardennes Offensive had taken the Allies by surprise, Krämer said that battle lines were so short that the Germans used motorcycle messenger instead of radio or Enigma transmissions.

How does this British series of stories relate to their Hess stories? The British have spread lies & disinformation most notably before & during World War I. This policy was extended into the period before, during & after World War II, & it continues today. As I understand from other than British sources, Rudolf Hess volunteered to fly to Britain with the news that Germany was, at that very moment, attacking the Soviet Union, & that Germany had no territorial designs on Britain nor its empire. Operation Sealion (the touted invasion of Britain) was indeed a hoax intended to fool Stalin, which it did, according to the former Soviet intelligence officer, "Suvorov", whose book, "The Icebreaker", reveals the progress of the Soviet invasion plans for Europe. The British murdered Rudolf Hess when they learned that the USSR wanted to release him from Spandau on their watch. As with the 'crazy' mission to rescue Mussolini, Hitler told Skorzeny that he would be deemed 'crazy' if the mission failed. This policy applied to Rudolf Hess' peace mission to Britain, so that's why Rudolf Hess behaved, loyally, as always, by acting 'crazy'. The Britzoggies saw their opportunity for disinformation, to the effect that the prisoner was an impostor, & not Rudolf Hess! Hess' son, Wolf Rudigger Hess, thought that the prisoner was his father. Of course, the "scar" story is rendered conveniently unprovable, since the body of the murdered Hess was quickly cremated, although the autopsy photos in Wolf Hess' book on the murder of his father were revealing. I noted the terrible bruises which Rudolf Hess sustained in the brutal assault, so any old scars from World War I did not attract my attention, I confess. Let's assume that the prisoner known as Rudolf Hess was an impostor.

(1) Why would Rudolf Hess disappear from Germany on a mission approved by Hitler, if his messenger were an impostor? If the real Hess were murdered & a Hess-substitute sent in his stead, the Britzoggies would quickly discover that they had a fake Hess on their hands.

(2) What on earth could prompt any man to pose as Hess, & endure the life of persecution & imprisonment from 1941 into the eighties? Did the British threaten the 'fake' Hess with death? I don't know anyone who would care to exist in solitary confinement, censorship & other deprivations, but perhaps there would be one who would do so. I doubt it!

(3) I understand that the Britzoggies have retained The Hess File under lock & key for the next 30 years, at least. Obviously, they have something to hide, & I do not believe that it is a 'fake' Rudolf Hess, who was persecuted & imprisoned over half his life, not for what he did, but for what he knew.

In regard to Woesenthal's alleged collaboration with U.S. intelligence (sic), the Mosad et al., I would not be surprised in view of his previous work for the Gestapo, as revealed in Profil Magazine & in Frank Walus' research. Obviously, some 'Nazis' were more equal than others, depending on their usefulness to the ZOG.

It appears that the U.S. debt monster is becoming so big, & so unavoidable that the jewsmedia are now admitting that it may be worse than it looks, to those willing to look. The denizens of debt-ridden La La Land seem to be going further into debt, for any belated fiscal restraint would be an admission that the party cannot last. The acknowledgement that the morning after will bring with it THE BILL & the hangover are too terrible to think about. Why does this behavior remind me of the speculators who said, "The sky's the limit," just before the Crash of 1929? I was told by an economics prof. that we had learned from that depression, so legislation had been enacted to prevent it from recurring, but that legislation has been removed, as I understand, & worsened with new scams. DCWZ! & ORION! E.T.
