

3 OCT 05. Dear Tom: Thanks for your letters of SEP 11th, 13th, 17th, 19th, 23rd & 25th! We seem to be growing increasingly suspicious of the 'news' as purveyed by our mainstream jewsmedia, which even contradicts itself. Example: First reporting & then denying the New Orleans atrocities which allegedly occurred during Hurricane Katrina. As you say, this crisis will not go away soon, regardless of all the jewspeak. The same tribe runs the Jewnited States as ran or still runs the former Soviet Jewnion, so why should their lying to Goyim differ from one place to another? An Australian financial newsletter ran the headline: "The U.S. Facade has Washed Away." So now jewsradio glorifies our former fiends of World War I, our gallant Turkish allies of The Cold War. It's 'coincidental' that Israel is also pro-Turkish, for they don't care much for Arabs, either. As usual, the USA is quick to turn on its former 'friends' and allies, such as the Taliban & the Saudis. How can anyone with a memory trust the USA? Will the USA repeat its betrayal of the Kurds, as Bush #1 did after the first Gulf Massacre against Iraq? The more desperate we become, the faster we change allies. Nixon did that to Japan when he got cozy with Red China, but this betrayal trend seems to be accelerating. As you say, the Turks may be torn between ambitions of a restored Turkish Empire (minus Israel) &/or the conquest of Western Europe. Decisions, decisions. And what does the jew-Ass-Oyvch intend for our on-again, off-again Kurdish allies & victims? Stay tuned! Usreal still has nefarious plans for Iran, as Iraq appears to be disintegrating in civil war, so the Middle East situation is 'fluid', to say the least. Meanwhile, oil-thirsty China is watching. Author Engdahl who wrote "A Century of War", caused by Anglo-American oil interests, said that the job of the USA is to create "a crescent of crisis" from the Balkans to Central Asia, including The Middle East & Afghanistan. Engdahl said it, & we did it! As the CIA fears, there will be a "blow-back" from the U.S. arson-job, which is already costing the ZOG's Goy sheeple, so how long does Amerizog think it can continue to bully a growing number of people who dislike it? That's why the USA is courting Turkey, which has a strong military force, right in the Iraq hot spot. Usrael needs bodies or "boots on the ground" who can be bribed & bamboozled into doing its bidding. China knows that this is not a proper description of a 'great power', but a 'paper tiger'. No, I cannot imagine Americans retreating on foot over frozen mountains as the Kurds did. We had enough problems just trying to drive out of town during the Rita evacuations. The denizens of America are ripe for a Great Culling, largely of their own making. We may forget, but Nature does not. As you say, those who rush to the aid of the ZOG are unlikely to receive reimbursement or thanks, & the ZOG will betray them, whenever expedient, as we know. What the ZOG's foreign flunkies do will be remembered by the folks they do it to. There are still nations out there, with identity & continuity of interests, especially in Asia! I suspect that the two hurricanes' effects on the U.S. economy may be as great as the iceberg's effects on The Titanic, which, at first, were not apparent, but no less disastrous. Little did I know how appropriate would be my reading of T.E. Lawrence's "Seven Pillars of Wisdom" when I was 10 years old, living in San Fernando, CA. My life has been set upon the course dictated by my inner compass, as it were, & my childhood interests & activities were preludes to my later work & experience, but I shall not delude myself in regard to destiny, as did the protagonist of Kipling's "The Man Who Would be King." In my travels, I had no wish to escape myself, but to know the world & myself better. One has no idea of his capabilities until he finds a time & place in which they are appropriate. I have been lucky in that sense, & now I do what is appropriate to me in Brownest Yakima, the Bulawayo of Central Washington. Ha!

As you say, the more King George II alias Bush is idolized, the greater will be his fall, & those who invested so much misplaced hope in him will develop sudden cases of amnesia, as in, "Bush who?" "Nawlins" is not such a loss to Amerizog as are the survivors, who have already increased our tax burdens, which criminal parents are so willing to pass onto their children & grandchildren. Yes, criminals. That's what I say & that's what I mean. Our Black Plague is just Nature's way of telling us not to defy Her, for we can't get away with that, & it is a crime to attempt it.

I understand your alienation from those around you. I am reminded of Julius Evola's similar description of himself as an eternal foreigner, a visitor to the land where he was born. Since I've lived most of my life where I really was a foreigner, I feel much as I always did, even where I was born. Of course, when I first arrived, everyone spoke English, & now that's changed. Sometimes I hear languages which I cannot understand, so Spanish is more like 'being home'. Some people become foreigners by travel to other lands, & some become foreigners just by living in the same place amid changing demographics.

2) As Thomas Wolfe wrote, "You Can't Go Home Again." In the USA that's easily explained, for the population moves around, & is constantly being replaced by new & often alien people. Businesses also come & go, along with entire ways of life, as in former logging or mining towns. Towns do not remain as they were in the not very distant past. They expand &/or are absorbed into megapolitan entities, like southern California. I used to live in Newhall, Ca, which was almost 2 miles from Saugus, Ca. We wondered what would happen, were the two towns to grow together. Would they keep the same names or combine them into Newgus or Saughall? I later learned that a huge entity known as Santa Clarita gobbled them both, & the whole area is now one more L.A. suburb, as is the whole San Fernando Valley, just south of it, & most of it looks like Mexico, & behaves like Mexico.

When Mount St. Helens erupted, some people wanted to sue the owner, who turned out to be the U.S. government, but you are definitely on to a great idea: if hurricanes are "acts of God", those who claim to speak in God's name & do his work on earth should be sued on behalf of the victims. I believe that there are precedents in which those who advocate or oppose certain actions may be held liable for those who do that which is advocated or opposed. Jew attorneys are advised to look into that possibility. Such a deal! Our ZOG is also equating words to deeds involving "terrorism", & Bush #2 has already equated the hurricane damage with "terrorist attacks". Therefore God is a terrorist & his advocates are terrorists, also, according to their statements on God's behalf. ZOG willing, the USA could sue the churches, mosques & synagogues for every cent, on behalf of the hurricane victims & their property! What a good idea. Since the USA is a rogue state which recognizes no boundaries, it could also confiscate the assets of the Vatican, The World Council of Churches, money held by Islamic groups & jewish religious groups. Sic 'em zoggies! Uncle Sam needs your dough.

As you observe, the USA is a worn out, complex machine operated by crazies, crooks & idiots, so there is not much, if any, margin for errors, accidents or disasters. Watch for a ripple effect from the hurricanes, with more hurricanes to come, which will help to blow ZOG-forces out of Iraq & other places. Meanwhile, the borders ^{are} open, with China encroaching from the north & Mexico invading from the south, with the Blacks destroying what is in between, as usual. As Kunstler writes in his "C-F Nation" website, reality is not necessarily the opposite of gloom & doom, which is largely the outcome of our own folly. Nothing can be done until people want it done, & that means doing it ourselves, for George will not do it for us, but to us. If this be reason, let us make the most of it. When the legions return, will they find Rome standing? If Nature gives us a reprieve, can we profit by it?

I think China is using North Korea as a scarecrow, which is quite a stunt, since N.K. is totally dependent on the USA & South Korea for its basic necessities, & China can literally shut North Korea's water off. I hear now that North Korea has changed its terms of agreement once again, so everything seems back on the table. One advantage we have is that the North Koreans are officially atheists & don't believe in an afterlife, unlike Amerizog's rulers, so the rulers of North Korea have no supernatural incentive to 'go to heaven' in a mushroom cloud. That's what scares me about our rulers. The jews call nuclear destruction their "Samson Option", proving that they are the mad dogs of The Middle East. It does seem that we are playing a game of Chernobyl Roulette, in which our actions in Iran will be the turn of the wheel. Every time jewsmedia prate ad infinitum about Supreme Court nominees, I suspect that they are filling the airwaves with such twaddle to hide real news items, such as more bad news from Iraq, whose U.S.-instigated constitution is already the basis for the ongoing civil war between Shi-ites, Sunnis & Kurds, even before it has been ratified. A sane zoggie would wish that Saddam were back in power, although we know that such a critter would be an oxymoron. As our Commander in Chief would say, "Bring it on!" Aargh!

We are not the only ones to note the impermanence of America, especially after our death of a nation in the Civil War. Everyone seems to have planned to move on, even before setting foot in a place. I'm always reminded of goldrush towns & end-of-track villages, main street buildings which are just shacks with false fronts, tumble weeds blowing down the streets, as in 'downtown' Yakima: here today, gone tomorrow. We are nomads who chase the almighty dollar, so we don't plan to stay anywhere in terms of blood & soil. This explains why we have despoiled, depleted & polluted the resources, & why we give the country away to invaders so easily. But where will we go, after that? Our cultural legacy to history is likely to be decaying ruins & piles of trash: monuments to Mammon instead of mankind, a "mushroom culture," as Hitler described America: quick to flourish & quick to perish, as we are seeing. The Black preacher should have said: "The Holocaust is a hoax & the breached levees is a fact!" DOWZ! & ORION! E.T.
