

Bush faces crisis...

U.S. President's latest scandals of leaks and torture are turning him into a modern McCarthy

WASHINGTON — Whoever advised U.S. President George Bush to escape the storm of criticism over Hurricane Katrina, Iraq, and the Libby CIA case by flying to Argentina for a free trade summit should be sent to Guantanamo.

Bush's venture was an embarrassing diplomatic failure and the most humiliating fiasco faced by a U.S. president in Latin America since Richard Nixon got mobbed in 1958. He was left looking confused, while his nemesis, Venezuela's boisterous renegade-marxist leader, Hugo Chavez, mocked him.

Now Bush returns here besieged by factional warfare. The long-simmering conflict between America's national security establishment and neo-conservative extremists has burst into the public realm with the criminal indictment of VP Dick Cheney's powerful chief of staff, Lewis Libby, on charges of perjury and obstruction of justice in the Valerie Plame CIA case.

The Libby investigation could produce embarrassing evidence of the White House neocons deceiving the U.S. into war.

Col. Lawrence Wilkerson, former secretary of state Colin Powell's chief of staff for 16 years, publicly charged that a "cabal" of neocons "hijacked" U.S. foreign policy and drove the nation into a trumped-up war — what this column has said since 2001. The "cabal," claimed Wilkerson, included Cheney, Defense Secretary Don Rumsfeld, and former Pentagon desk warriors Paul Wolfowitz, Douglas Feith and Richard Perle.

Gen. William Odom, former chief of the ultra-secret National Security Agency, called Bush's Iraq adventure "the biggest disaster in the history of the U.S." Republican elder statesman Gen. Brent Scowcroft accused Bush of being "wrapped around the little finger" of Israel's PM Ariel Sharon.

In London, leaked cabinet documents shockingly revealed that before the war, Bush told PM Tony Blair he "wanted to go beyond Iraq" by occupying Saudi Arabia and Pakistan.

Meanwhile, the FBI, intensifying its war against the neocons, is investigating two senior officials of the Israel lobby and a neon Pentagon analyst for passing security secrets to Israel. The CIA is deeply split between professional officers furious that national intelligence was corrupted to sell the Iraq war, and a minority eager to tell the White House whatever it desires.

Bush and Cheney now face a Republican and Pentagon revolt over their disgraceful defence of torture.

"We do not torture," Bush insisted from Panama. Of course not, Mr. President. You call it "forceful interrogation." Meaning: Being kidnapped, drugged, stripped, thrown into a refrigerated, lightless underground cell, starved, deprived of sleep and sensory contact, covered with urine and excrement, severely beaten, anally raped, subjected to mock executions, given hideously painful electrical shocks, and strapped onto a special board and immersed in water until confessing or drowning.

This is what suspects have reportedly endured in America's secret, outsourced prisons around the world.

Republican Sen. John McCain, an American war hero, is leading efforts in Congress to ban torture and compel observance of the Geneva Conventions.

Conventions were sacred

When I was a U.S. GI, we were taught the Conventions were sacred. They protected all at war, as the CIA's renowned former chief in Afghanistan, Milt Bearden, so brilliantly observed in a recent article.

But those little Torquemadas of the modern Inquisition, Bush and Cheney, who both dodged regular military service in wartime, claim the Geneva Conventions are bunk.

Bush is actually threatening to veto McCain's bill. Cheney keeps defending torture. Americans will one day look back on this period with the same revulsion and shame as they do on Joe McCarthy's era.

30 JAN 06. Hail Jason! Thanks for your great letter of 23 JAN. Yes, I got your very good picture. Ask your Mom if she is a fashion model. As I get older, people's parents begin to look very young! Well, I do know parents who are old, & who look the part, but some parents look like a brother or sister, instead of the Mom or Dad. Yes, Aryan Syndicate is great for sending out information. I last heard that Hammerskins were in Missouri, but the last time I wrote them, I got my letter back with the stamped notice: "Undeliverable as addressed." That was the address I'd been writing to, at which they received their mail, & would reply to me. Then, suddenly, BLIP! they were gone. Rick Cooper wrote that they were having legal problems because a member got into a fight with a non-White at a party. ZOG has tightened up on groups it doesn't like, while letting kosher groups alone. One bad member can destroy an entire organization. One bad guest can lose a group their property, as occurred with Pastor Butler. One subscriber or receiver of a publication can put the publisher into bankruptcy, as happened to Tom Metzger. This simply means that play-time is over, & pro-White groups must become careful & serious, as always! The ZOG is clamping down on activities which used to be legal. In Butler's case, the one or two people who broke the law would have been prosecuted, not Butler. Tom Metzger would not have been sued for publishing a legal newspaper. A skinhead who got into a fight at a party would not cause his organization to face hefty lawsuits, &c. But our ZOG finds all sorts of ways to stomp on those it doesn't like. If it can't do it under criminal law, it does it under civil law. The O.J. Simpson Case is a good example: a jury found him "not guilty" of murder, a double homicide, by the way! O.J.'s former wife was killed, along with her jew boyfriend of the moment. Now, the slain sheenie's father has been pursuing O.J. to collect every shekel he can, after winning a "wrongful death" civil suit against O.J. I thought criminal law took precedence over civil law, for the same crime. Apparently, the ZOG allows this form of "double-Jeopardy", which means being tried for the same crime twice. If one is found "not guilty" the first time, the only lawful way one may be tried again for the same crime is if an appeal can prove to a court that the judge made a serious error in the first trial, but under ZOG, a defendant can be tried for the same crime under different laws & jurisdictions, such as local, state & federal, until they find him guilty. At least two former KKK defendants have been tried for the same crime 3 times, before they were found "guilty"! In contrast, a kike who ritually murdered a girlfriend in front of another girlfriend, by torturing her to death, lied under oath & was found "innocent" of the bloody, sadistic crime. Evidence surfaced proving he'd done it, but now, he can only be tried for "perjury", that is, giving false testimony. Such a deal! ZOG seems happy with that outcome, so they will not pursue the jew for anything more, it seems. The sheenie must thank his lucky stars that there is a ZOG. Selective justice = injustice.

Yes, Whites have always been out-numbered. When a spy told the Spartan commander, who led a small force of 300 to hold off the Persians, that the Persian archers were so many that if they all were to discharge their arrows at once, they would darken the sky, Leonidas replied: "Very good. That means we can fight in the shade!" The Persians killed the 300 Spartans, but they paid a stiff price for their victory. Alexander the Great showed the Persians what a few more Greek warriors could do, by conquering Persia! Those ancient Whites are our ancestors, so it does not surprise me that our warrior-loyalty still survives, as proved by your brave friends. They were there when you needed them!

I keep Ron McVan's "Creed of Iron" as a reference book, so I can look up things I need for my own writing. Ron is a great writer, artist, musician & singer. I sure hope he finds a profitable outlet for his creativity. It's a real shame to waste such talent.

Several sources claim that Israel is planning to attack Iran around the end of March, 2006. They quote such statements from jews in the Israeli government. Former Mossadnik (Israeli secret service) Victor Ostrovsky wrote years ago that Israel's hit-list had Iraq as Target #1, with Syria & Iran running 2nd & 3rd, but not necessarily in that order. Iran is much bigger than Syria & Iraq, & Iran may have some powerful friends, such as China, whose oil-supplies the Zionist USA & Zionist Israel are messing up. China is very thirsty for oil! Israel doesn't seem to care about that, so the crazy kikes sell U.S. military secrets to China, as the jews figure they can attack Iran, one of China's major oil-suppliers! Go figure! ZOG policies are not even doing the illegal aliens any good, so we may see a sudden regime-change in The District of Corruption, if anybody there thinks that the ongoing jew-screw is hurting the people of the USA, by ruining the country, which it is!

All the best, as always, & ORION!
