

HISTORICUS

STELLENBOSH

20th March, 2006

Advocate Mighty Madasa
ANC MP
C/o House of Parliament
P/Bag 15
Cape Town 8000

Dear Adv. Madasa,

I have read with interest your article of 14/2 regarding the Church of England 's slaves in the West Indies used to finance its missionary works.

I believe that I was the person responsible for awaking their memory which was deeply buried with the sincere hope that nobody would find out about it. I wrote to the Canon of Blackburn Cathedral who was raving and ranting about the sins of others in articles in the Cape Times Review , and pointing to him that it was easier to see the chaff in the other man's eye, than the tree in one's own eye. It is a typical Anglo reaction, whose politicians and clerics are always pontificating on the failings of other nations, while ignoring their own history. As Harold Nicholson, in his study PEACE MAKING, dated 1919, said: THE ANGLO SAXONS ARE GIFTED WITH A LIMITLESS CAPACITY, PARTICULARLY IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS FOR APPLYING MORAL CANONS TO OTHERS WHICH THEY HAVE NEVER APPLIED TO THEMSELVES. HOW MANY ENGLISHMEN REMEMBER THAT THE BRITISH EMPIRE WAS MAINLY THE RESULT OF SUCCESSFUL NAVAL AND MILITARY ACTIONS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD?

The Church of England cannot escape its share of the blame, as the KING was the titular head of the Church and therefore God's representative on Earth. With the Church blessing and God on their side, Britain went on to plunder the world.

But what was so interesting about the Church's slaves was that they were never converted to Christianity, as to convert them would have made them brothers of the owners and thus they would have had to be freed, resulting in a shortage of labour. By keeping the slaves pagans, the plantations could carry on producing sugar and therefore money for the Church. Nice bunch of hypocrites!

Another crowd of nice people who always commiserate about the fate of the Black man and make as if they are his best friends, are the Jews. I enclose an article published in the Washington Post in 1994 as well as a letter to Mugabe from a Ghanaian friend of mine about the overwhelming participation of Jews in the slave trade. Another bunch of hypocrites!

In fact, Black groups should ask for restitution from both the Church and the Jewish establishment in the same way reparations are extorted from the Germans by the same Jewish establishment for a mostly mythical holocaust. You have here two organisations who have got away with just an apology, saving themselves a lot of money. Both institutions are wealthy and I am sure could spend some of their ill-gotten millions helping the descendant of Black slaves around the world. An apology without reparation is not an apology at all.

I enclose various documents and hope that you will follow up on my suggestions.

I am,
Yours truly,

HISTORICUS

15 APR 06. Hail Jason! Many thanks for your great letter of 8 APR 06 & the outstanding poem. It is interesting that Black hate-rockers are admitted into the USA, but not pro-White song groups. That's what is called hypocrisy, anti-White hypocrisy, thanks be to ZOG. I just received a letter from South Africa about the AWB & its phony leader, who had "no goal nor plan," according to the writer. Apparently, the leaders were all zogling race-traitors & their frontman alias 'leader' was the drunken clown, Eugene Terreblanche, who is now in the 'born-again' religious racket. Such a deal! I enclose a copy of the relevant letter, so you can read the latest news from South Africa. I don't know what the initials, AWB, stand for. I'd guess the words would be in Afrikaans, a dialect of Dutch. South African Whites sold themselves out by that rigged election under their traitor de Klerk, who admitted that the sellout election in favor of Black Marxists had been rigged, but it was "all to the good." Fortunately, I was deported for pro-White activities in Rhodesia in 1976, after Kissinger visited Ian Smith to tell him it was time to prepare for the sellout of Rhodesia to Black Marxist Misrule, which occurred officially in 1980. Then it was downhill with a tailwind. Of course, had the Whites continued to rule, the Blacks would have continued to multiply. The Whites no longer rule, & AIDS has taken their place. A radio report is alleged to warn that the AIDS-suppressing drugs just allow the AIDS-carriers to infect more people, since the drugs mask the symptoms of the disease. A source in South Africa said this AIDS report came over the South African radio news broadcast, but I have not seen such reports anywhere else. It is hard to tell what is false & what our ZOG keeps secret from us, even when I have been doing this job for decades.

On the weight front, as it relates to health, my experience in the U.S. Forest Service of gaining 20 lbs. & losing 2 inches around the waist shows that muscle is heavier than fat. So gaining or losing weight is not the goal: it is gaining muscle & losing fat! The U.S. Army used to have a weight-strength table which equated one's weight with his strength. This table of weights was based on the typical U.S. citizen when most of us lived on farms & did hard physical labor, as was still the case in World War I. But in World War II, the table was irrelevant. By that time, most people were not living on farms. They did not walk so much with cars & public transportation, so the weight on many U.S. military draftees was fat, not muscle. Thus, we had soldiers with weight, but no strength. A World War II vet told me what the U.S. Army did: in Basic Training, the young couch-potatoes were put on protein diets. Protein builds muscles, so they could eat all the steak, bacon & eggs they wanted, but no bread or desserts. It was a low-carbohydrate diet. Such recruits were given the normal training exercises, so their bodies burned up their fat, while the exercise & protein diet built up muscle & stamina. "Mission accomplished!" When I worked for the U.S. Forest Service in the 1950s & early 1960s we worked with handtools, felling trees, sawing firewood, clearing trails & streambeds, building bridges of stone, &c. while keeping in shape for fire-fighting. In 1961, I flew into fire zones by helicopter. The idea was to hit a fire while it was small. Our heroes were the smoke-jumpers who parachuted into fire areas, while our "hotshot crew" enjoyed airborne taxi rides which would put us as close to the fire as possible. My crew was no more than 5, as I recall. We had a radio, of dubious quality, known as a "handy-talkie." That summer fire season of 1961 we lost 5 helicopters & six men on the Stanislaus District near Lake Tahoe. I don't recall any rain coming from the heavy cloud formations, but there was sure lots of lightning, so we were very busy hopping from one fire to another. I learned that my helicopter pilot had been killed on the district in 1964. I still remember "Hap" & his mechanic, so that news came as a surprise. Of course, no one was shooting at us, but imagine how dangerous it is to fly close to trees which can easily snag your rotor blades, with uncertain wind conditions complicated by fire behavior, perhaps smoke to obscure your vision. There are also power lines which do not advertise their presence. Another factor is metal fatigue. Each aircraft part is allowed so many hours of use. Then it must be replaced, even if it does not look worn, but that part may suffer unexpected stress, which causes the fatigue to occur before the normal replacement period. That was the explanation I received when a helicopter disintegrated in flight. Needless to say, I never liked flying in helicopters, but that was the job description, take it or leave it, so I took it, & lived to tell about it. In Rhodesia, one could also be shot at, but we did not go into fires. Six of one, half a dozen of the other, as some say.

You are discovering that most sheeple, if any, can't think. Some think that if we are somewhere in which we have lost lives, we MUST have had a good reason for being there. In gambling casinos this behavior is called "throwing good money after bad." Losses never justify continuing mistakes, even if they benefit Israel. We live in the USA, so our policies should benefit us, not our Zionist enemy. All the best & ORION!

Eric