More on German trade

 here's a little piece I sent to Ingrid Rimland the other day:

Ingrid -

John Kaminski sent me a note asking about the banks' opposition to the German barter system.

John -

Lorenz' question about why the bankers were against Germany's method of trade reminds me of the Congressional hearings on the war at about the time of the outbreak of war. General Leonard Wood testified that he had visited with Churchill in, I think, 1938. He said that Churchill told him, "Germany is getting too strong again. We shall have to smash her in another war." Wood asked him, "Wouldn't it be better to try to compete with Germany, rather than go to war?" Churchill said, "No."

Wood didn't know - and nobody would until David Irving's Churchill's War was published in 1989? - that Churchill had by that time been bought off by the Jews, namely by Sir Henry Strakosch, a Czech Jew who was a mining magnate in South Africa. Churchill was broke and had placed an ad in the Times for his ancestral home, Chartwell. Strakosch came to his rescue and paid all his debts, allowing WSC to keep his estate and 40 servants. The deal was that he would take orders from the Anti-Nazi League, which became The Focus, led by Felix Frankfurter and Sir Robert Waley-Cohen, head of Shell Oil in the UK. He was under orders from then on to take England to war against Germany, no matter how reasonable-sounding Hitler might be.

Hitler's financial problem was that the Allies had stolen all of Germany's gold under the criminal terms of the Versailles Treaty. The international bankers controlled all countries by their manipulated gold standard and expected the prostrate Germany to stay on the team, despite having no gold. So Hitler simply took Germany off the gold standard and announced that her economy (and currency and credit) would be based on the productivity of the German worker, and that all must work hard to rise out of the Versailles slave conditions. He informed the British ambassador that there would be no more "reparations payments," and the envoy huffed, "I shall inform my minister of this!" But nothing was done because they were guilty and had just about strangled the golden goose.

(The French justified their invasion and occupation of the mighty Ruhr Valley industrial center in the '20s for the reason that Germany failed to deliver 250,000 telephone poles as ordered.)

That was how the German economic miracle started. Germany really had no money and was forced to trade high quality capital goods for food. And, just when Hitler was appointed Chancellor, the New York criminal attorney, Samuel Untermayer (the same Jew who blackmailed Wilson into appointing Brandeis to the Supreme Court and later into joining the British in WWI), organized an international boycott of German goods. This hurt, of course, because direct trade was the lifeblood of Germany and this Jewish boycott was a deadly threat. (The German government responded with a one-day boycott of all Jewish merchants in Germany on a Saturday, April Fool's Day, 1933. Most of the people ignored the boycott.) The idea was to starve the Germans so they would fire Hitler.

But this is the root cause of growing German antipathy towards Jews - the total rip-off of everything and the deliberate, calculated plot to starve them out, all over again! The numbers of Germans who starved to death in post-WWI period are staggering - in the hundreds of thousands. Of course, these numbers would pale in comparison with the 13 million Germans Eisenhower starved to death (including a million PoWs) from 1945-54. (See James Bacque) Some have said to me, "That can't be true! We'd have heard about it! Why didn't the Germans complain about this, if it were true?" I asked them, "Complain to whom? The Americans? The Soviets? The British? The French? they were all in on it, but it was our program." It was called the Morgenthau Plan, executed by Ike Eisenhower. The Reds were stealing everything from their zone and working millions of captured German soldiers to death in the Gulags.

This program continues but now it's just known as paying "reparations" to the State of Israel, something that did not exist before 1948. This is why it is imperative to keep the Germans guilty in their minds about The Holocaust, so those payments keep coming. (Us, too!)

And, despite 58 years of US occupation and brainwashing, it is amazing that they had the guts to say no to our American psychos on Iraq.

17 APR 06. Hail John! Many thanks for your letter of 9 APR 06, & the great questions! I hope your gulag-zoggies are letting you receive mail, but there may be some you have yet to receive which is clogged somewhere in the gulag system. Maybe the zoggies are reading it so they may obtain some education. Knowledge is a funny commodity, for when you pass it on, you still have it. Now for your interesting questions:

(1) As I understand, a Gau corresponds to "shire" in English. A shire was under the authority of a sheriff. Now, the English call shires counties, although many towns have "shire" in their names. Also. "redtape" is pink & "pink" coats are red. A Gauleiter (Shireleader) in their names. Also, "redtape" is pink & "pink" coats are red. A Gauleiter (Shireleader) was a member of the NSDAP who was in charge of Party members in the Gau. When the Party won the 1932 election & took office in 1933, the Gauleiters became government representatives, as well as Party representatives. You mentioned "Otto." Would he be Otto Strasser? (2) Hitler made the final decisions in his appointments, but I'm not sure what you'd mean or "Otto" would mean by "competing for jobs." Usually, Mitler delegated authority. As I understand, Rudolf Hess was his most trusted subordinate. Party members would know who was best suited for a job, & they'd recommend that person (women held Party posts as well as men). Hitler never created a job before he found the man who could do it. Party members who achieved positions in government, such as Gauleiter, were often elected by popular vote. Hitler had achieved office in a popular election, so he did not like to put men in charge of others in public matters if they were unpopular. Hitler believed in The Leadership Principle. Whoever he put in charge of matters within his purview, such as Railway Minister, Fropaganda Minister, &c. could do as they pleased, as long as they achieved satisfactory results. When they failed, they'd be replaced, pronto. The idea was to select from people known to be of good quality those deemed most suitable for performing a job. Hitler recognized lovalty, as well as competence. It is notable that The Third Reich had so few incompetents in its government as it did, for there wasn't much time to do such things, as it barely lasted for 12 years: 1933 to 1945.

(3) SA = Sturmabteilung, literally "Storm Department." This did not relate to weather, but to action, as in "storming a castle." Stormtroops would be those selected for their bravery & determination, as were Stosstruppen or Shocktroops, who'd be first into battle, & would hit the enemy hardest, despite their small numbers, relative to the army as a whole. The SA was formed in reaction against Socialists & Communists who tried to break up meetings & kill or injure the speaker. The SA was brave, organized & tough, so they could do the job. The jews & Reds would try the same stuff when my associates & I would speak in public locations or even in private residences, so we always had muscle to defend our freedom of speech. Muscle was always necessary, as when we fought the jews to get our defendant, Ernst Zündel, safely into the courthouse during his Toronto thoughtcrime trials. There is nothing quite so satisfying as knocking a jew on his ass. Of course, in winter, Toronto streets & sidewalks were icy, so it didn't take much to knock people on their asses. I've done a bit of 'rump skiing' in Toronto, myself. There's no life like it! As in 1930s Germany, Toronto police were either neutral bystanders to our street brawls, right up to the courthouse, or they sided with the Reds & the jews. What else can we expect from the ZOG? These merry pranks occurred in the 1980s & early 1990s. In regard to "Ffeffer," I know nothing. It is often a jew name. As far as I know, Ernst Röhm headed the SA until his failed attempt to overthrow Hitler, who replaced him with another fellow. In the film, "Triumph of the Will," made on Party Day of 1934, after Röhm & other putschists were done in, we see Hitler welcoming the new head of the SA, who stands in front of Hitler on the reviewing stand, to watch the parade, a place of honor. Hitler had barely been in office as German Chancellor for a year, & his enemies within & out of The Party were planning & plotting to overthrow him, thereby starting another civil war in Germany, while Stalin continued his plans to invade all of Europe, as his predecessor, "Trotsky," had failed to do in the 1920s. The bankster-planned outbreak of World War II occurred in 1939, so there was a whole lot to do, & hardly any time to do it in. Such Hitler-opponents as the Strasser brothers, Röhm et al. were known as "Brown Bolsheviks," that is Red Nazis, for they wanted to wipe out the middleclass. Hitler wanted to unify the classes, not destroy them in favor of a "proletarian dictatorship." Nor did Hitler want to fall out with the Reichswehr. In "Triumph of the Will," one speaker says: "From time to time a people needs a revolution to live, but no people lives from revolutions!" Even today, Hitler's detractors call him a "sellout" who made unnecessary compromises with banks & industrialists. I guess his detractors would have preferred to have a Germany fighting amongst itself & unable to defend Europe against the Red in-

- 2) vaders, which almost happened because of Britain's warfare against Germany. In the context of events, the SA took up other duties, more like the Civil Defence organization in the USA. Its members of draft age went into the armed forces, who incorporated all legal parties: Democrats, Socialists, Nationalists, National Socialists, &c., not as party members, but as soldiers & officers of the Wehrmacht, which had around 100,000 racially jewish soldiers as well. World War II was prepared at Versailles, as soon as World War I had officially ended. It was the jew-banksters who had their timetable, & Hitler seemed to be aware of that. Stalin, FDR & Churchill certainly were!
- (4) The SA was formed to protect The Party's speakers from thugs who wanted to shut them up. The SS or Schutzstaffel (Protection Staff) was, at first, Hitler's bodyguards, like marines who protect a warship's officers or the S.S. or Secret Service which protects U.S. presidents. After The Party achieved power & became the German government, the SS under Himmler incorporated police duties. As the war continued, Himmler fostered a combat division, The Waffen-SS (Weapon-SS), as distinguished from the Allgemeine SS or General SS. In fact, the initials "SS" written with twin lightning bolts, became so much more than a "Schutzstaffel," that "SS" took on a separate meaning. The letters or runes remained, but the meaning had changed. Many non-Germans joined the Waffen SS to defend themselves from the enemies of Europe. I am proud to have known a few such men & their widows. If Europe is to remain at all European, such an organization must be recreated, under the banner of White Nationalism.
- (5) The Reichsfahne, or roughly, the National Banner, incorporated the former colors of the German Reich, rather than the previous colors of the Weimar Republic (the present flag of the German Federal Republic). Black, White & Red were the traditional colors of the 1st, 2nd & 3rd Reichs of Germany, but Hitler drew it as a black Swastika in a disk of white on a red background. The NSDAP Farty flag became the official German flag after Hitler's election. Hitler wanted lots of red on it to inflame the Communists, as he wrote in "Mein Kampf". The German (kosher) republics used black, red & gold, which symbolizes "death to Whites:" black hearts, red politics & jewish gold, combined to kill off White Germans, all there in plain sight.
- (6) The NSDAP wanted to abolish the degenerate Weimar Republic, which it did in the 1932 elections & took office in January, 1933. When the kepublic became The Reich, the flag of the Republic was replaced by the new Reichsfahne. The same thing happened in Spain after the defeat of the Spanish Republic in the Civil War: the flags were changed. New government, new flag. I wonder what the Confederacy would have done with their flag if they had defeated the Union government!
- (7) You probably know more about "Odic Force" than I do.
- (8) I believe the concept of worker-ownership of the means of production was part of The 25 Point Program of the NSDAP. The Reds also advocated worker-ownership, but the reality was that the Soviet state owned the factories, AND the workers, in the USSR. Hitler believed in private property, so a worker-owner would have a share in his factory. Worker-ownership based on share-ownership would give workers a say in how they wanted to run their factory. Instead of pitting workers against management & owners, as the Reds & labor unionists do, the workers would have a stake & a say in factory management. They would then have an incentive to help their factory succeed & prosper, so they would work for their factory, not against it. In the USA, workers could also buy shares in their employers' companies, but not sufficient to prevent their owners from selling the factories out to China. Absentee ownership is usually unhealthy for land, industries & the workers, as we are seeing in the USA, JUST as Hitler predicted!
- (9) I don't know what you would mean by "inflicting socialism" on people. The Reds want to monopolize "socialism," but that word refers most accurately to any society. If we live in human society, not as hermits, we are therefore "socialists" to one degree or another. If we live around other people & have dealings with them, like buying & selling items, paying debts, working for others, &c. we are said to be "social." Man does not normally live all by himself, so he has been called "a social animal," just as bees are social insects. Thus, "socialism" is any way of ordering a society & its members' relationships. Monogamy is a form of socialism, because it prohibits men from having more than one wife. Polygamy is also a form of socialism, because it allows a man to have more than one wife. Laws governing behavior are socialistic, because they permit or prohibit social activities, such as theft, murder, assault, &c. A capitalist society is "socialist" because it puts money-making above all else.

3) During the Middle Ages, the Catholic Church ran a totalitarian society over Western Europe, with the feudal monarchs, who were as absolute as the Church. That society was ordered with a set of priorities, with a social hierarchy or pecking order. Classes were set up, from the very top to the very bottom. In Hindu India, the caste system determines who will do which job, according to his social status at birth. All societies practice forms of socialism, no matter what their system is called. When a politician uses the word, "socialism," he usually means it in a Marxist sense ("From each, according to his ability, to each, according to his need.") Karl Marx's doctrine was basically Christianity without Jesus, who also advocated helping "the least of these," i.e. the poor. But Marx went further. He wanted the poor to be rulers, chiefly the working, industrial poor. The workingclass was supposed to eliminate the other classes, including the churches, & take over management as well as ownership. There are major problems with Marxist & Christian economics, for "need" is infinite & the ability to feed is finite. National Socialism was designed to benefit the members of the German Nation by improving its standard of living & by improving its members. National Socialism was not designed to feed infinite numbers of parasitic jews & other non-White, non-Germans. This is natural, to jump ahead in your order of questions, for it would be most unnatural for a parent to feed others' children before feeding his own, first. We put the ones we love, our own kind, first, just as others do.

The German Nation was never unified. Part of it was in Versailles of 1870, during the Franco-Prussian War. The Prussian king drew together many German principalities, dukedoms, baronies, &c. in what became The Second Reich or Empire, so the King of Prussia became the Emperor of Germany, but there remained separatists within the new country, as there were anti-Hitler elements in the NSDAP, from 1933 to 1945. Bavarian nationalism could have resulted in its separation from Germany, since Bavaria has long called itself a "free state." When Hitler was banned from speaking, at one point, Bavaria was the only region in which he was allowed to speak before public audiences. When Hitler campaigned outside of Bavaria, he would appear at the speaker's podium & remain silent, while a Party member read his speech! If Hitler spoke in public, he'd be arrested & jailed immediately.

- (10) Hitler was betrayed by certain men during the "Beerhall Putsch" attempt in Munich in 1923. His subsequent trial for treason gained him wide support, & his imprisonment in the Landsberg Prison showed that he was a determined patriot, willing to make any sacrifice for the German people & the good of Germany. That's where he wrote "Mein Kampf," ably assisted by his fellow prisoner, Rudolf Hess. What seemed to be a major betrayal by men who did not keep their word in 1923 proved to be a blessing in disguise, for Hitler came to power with the consent & approval of the German voters in 1933, on January 30th.
- (11) The Transfer Agreement allowed jews who wanted to leave Germany to take their money out, in the form of German goods, since the international jews had imposed a blockade on Germany as of March, 1933, almost a month after Hitler took office as Chancellor. Samuel Untermeyer of the World Jewish Congress "declared war on Germany," on 24 March 1933, as appeared in newspapers of the day. The jews' economic blockade prohibited trade in German money, so it had to be made in goods, that is, barter: goods for goods. The jews had blockaded Germany, & they were the only ones who could break the blockade, for their own power & profit. I was in blockaded Rhodesia from 1969 through 1976 & I saw how the jews worked. Our tobacco went to Red China & our chromium to the USSR, who resold it to the USA at high prices. South Africa fell into a similar trap, with Israel becoming their supplier of illegal arms, at inflated prices, payable in gold, of course. By "declaring war on Germany" in 1933, the jews disguised their active collaboration with the Nazis, on behalf of Zionist Israel, which came into official existence in 1948.
- (12) Goering was badly wounded during the 1923 Putsch attempt, & I read that he received improper medical treatment, so he never fully recovered from his wounds. I read that he took painkillers, including morphine, but if he was an addict, it did not seem to affect his duties, at least, not to my knowledge.
- (13) Britain is ruled by the owners of the Bank of England in The City of London, where the big Masonic "Mother" Lodge is. Freemasonry was created by jews, as was the Christian church, to rope in Gentiles, & to enslave them, like the anti-Earth aliens in the movie "They Live." The USA never won its independence from the Bank of England, which is owned by the same jews as own The Federal Reserve. American "patriots" who founded the USA were mainly Freemasons, whose oaths to Freemasonry came before all other oaths, such as The Pledge of Allegiance, just as they do now.

(14) The Zeiss Works was famous for its excellent optical equipment, including the ZeissTkon cameras. The quality of their lenses was outstanding, & gave German artillery great accuracy. The U.J. Zionist-banksters made sure the Zeiss works were given to the USSR WHEN Germany was divided into Allied & Soviet zones.

(15) The Weimar constitution appeared after the World War I Armistice of 1918. Woodrow Wilson forced the resignation or abdication of the German & Austrian emperors, thus paving the way for Freemasonic-style "republics" With the advent of the Third Reich, the Weimar constitution went into the dustbin, along with the flag of the Republic.

(16) Unfortunately, I have encountered no German folktales which include a "faithful Ekkehard." An obvious example of such a character in real life would be Rudolf Hess, who was always steadfast & faithful to Hitler & National Socialism.

(17) I'm not aware of the outcome of the Saxon election of 22 June 1930. Sorry! The "Government of Thuringia" was also the Weimar Government. Weimar is the major city of Thuringia. (18) Bolshevism was invented by the jew "Lenin". It stems from the Russian word meaning "ma-jority." I've seen it translated as "Maximalist." Lenin called his party "The Majority," long before it ever became a majority, which it never was in the Russian parliament or Duma. There was also a Menshevik or Minority Party in the Duma. Alexander Kerensky (his Russian name, not his jew name) took over Russia in 1917, as Menshevik head of The Provisional Government at Petrograd, later called Leningrad & now called St. Petersburg. I met Kerensky when he lectured at my college in 1956. He lived in California, as does the last Communist premier, Gorbachev. Yes, there is often confusion between Communism & Bolshevism, both being jewish. The Bolsheviks began as a jewish nationalist party. Its program was communistic to the extent that it wanted to seize all Gentile property for the jews, which was done as the jews took over Russia. The Bolsheviks promised the Goyim (Gentile cattle) "Bread, Land & Peace;" "ownership of the means of production by the workers." Trouble came for Lenin & his kosher cronies whenever the Russian workers believed that slogan. Goyim are slow learners, so many were shot, in the name of the workers or proletariat! According to Communist propaganda, a "dictatorship of the proletariat" must produce a "new, socialist man," before Communism could come about. That's why the jews called their "workers' paradise" The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, for socialism was to be a step on the path toward communism & communism was the "final step" on the path toward anarchy, the "ideal state" to which Marx & Rousseau looked forward, having never experienced it themselves. Once "true Communism" were realized, the jews claimed that "the state would wither away," since the "new socialist man" had made the apparatus of a state "unnecessary." The Communist Party comprised of jews who were anything but workers or proletarians, called itself "the vanguard of the proletariat," for the majority of workers was not prepared to enter the 'paradise' of true communism. Under The Dictatorship of the Proletariat, The Vanguard of the Proletariat was on top. That's where Orwell got his idea for "Animal Farm," & the slogan that "some are more equal than others." The soviets or councils were similar to the committees of the Freemasonic French Revolution & the result was pretty similar in ked Russia, for the outcome of the "republic" was a Napoleon. In Russia's case, it was Stalin alias Djugashvili. I noted that the Bolsheviks even adopted the French republican custom of addressing people as "citizen," rather than Mr. or Mrs. "Comrade" was reserved for Party members only, as in National Socialist Germany. (19) As for "Communism being one step away from National Socialism," that is what the köhms & Strassers wanted to make it, but that is not what Hitler & his supporters wanted. Hitler recognized that managerial skills & brains are not the monopoly of any particular class in a society, so the Communist ideal of "class-warfare" on behalf of one class or another was basically anti-German. That's where the Nationalism came in. Hitler wanted to obtain the best that Germany had to offer, regardless of class membership. He wanted class unity & thereby, German unity.

(20) The NSDAP came to power with Hitler's election. Hitler took office as German Chancellor on 30 January 1933, as I stated earlier.

(21) Nature's Law is Survival of the Fittest. Hitler wanted that for Germany, so he was the enemy ofjews, Christians, Communists & capitalists who hated strong, healthy, smart, beautiful White men & women, as does our present ZOG in the USA & worldwide.

I just received your letter which was mailed on some illegible date, with your envelope torn open by persons unknown. Please write the dates of your letters, since your postal zogfies like to deface the dates on their postage meters, for some peculiar reason.

5) Please send whatever I send you to anyone you wish. What I send you is yours to do with as you see fit. I have no secrets, & the more who read what I have to say, the better I like it!

Yes, there were experiments done in German camps on human guinea pigs, such as cold immersion revival methods designed to save aviators who crashed in the freezing waters of the Atlantic. If the Germans ever did anything nasty to their patients in camp hospitals, it was certainly never on par with the truly monstrous medical experiments conducted by the British & the U.S. on their own soldiers! They still do these experiments on their unknowing victims today, & I have lots of evidence to prove it. Dr. Mengele who worked at Auschwitz did experiment for the BENEFIT of jews & Gypsies, using such modern technology as X-rays. So many malicious lies have been told about Mengele that few would have survived their experience at Auschwitz if he'd been half as "horrible" as jew-liars claim that he was.

I know very little about the lives of current alleged "racists" which you listed in your letter. Since they are still alive, it would be best to ask them for their biographies

As far as I know, there was no NSDAP before World War I, so it originated after 1918 as The German Workers' Party. After Hitler joined the tiny group as its 7th member, it became The National Socialist German Workers' Party in the early 1920s. As I recall, Hitler referred to it as "The National Socialist Movement" in "Mein Kampf." One English translator called it "The National Socialist German Labor Party," perhaps to make it sound like the British Labour Party. Clearly, the NSDAF became established under that name after the 1923 Putsch attempt in Munich. Without Hitler, the original German Workers' Party would have attracted very few, if any, members! As I understand, The Party's office was in a back room in a Munich saloon, which had one typewriter, a table & a few chairs. That's where the "Movement" is today. In fact, I live in a better furnished place than the original Party H.L., & I have a very good German typewriter! Folitics is people-power. One out of every 20 is proved to have any leadership potential at the best of times. Leaders are often discovered only in the worst of times, as Hitler declared at his inauguration speech, when he said: "I come to you knowing I was not your first choice, but your very last choice, for after me, there could only be chaos." Yes, the Germans tried everything & everyone before they tried Hitler.

I never heard that Goering or Himmler was arrested by Hitler for anything. Stauffenberg, the traitor, who tried to assassinate Hitler with the briefcase bomb in 1944, was captured, tried & executed, if my memory serves. I knew General Remer who was promoted by Hitler over the phone after the bomb went off. Remer was commander of the Berlin garrison.

"Sozi" means Socialist. That party is legal in Germany, but "Nazi-Sozi" is not.

As far as I know, each state has its requirements for setting up a non-profit organization. I'll make an enquiry about it, for I have a California correspondent who might know, at least where we can find out.

Thanks for the information on Aristotle. I did not know he wrote on politics. I read Plato's "kepublic," & Machiavelli's "The Prince," however, & I recommend those. I tend to believe that politics is an art, not a science, since science deals mainly in quantities & politics deals with qualities. Politics is best described as "the art of the possible." One writer described a conservative as "one who wants to save his money," whereas a National Socialist "wants to save his race." A Nationalist who puts his race first is a National Socialist. I'll try to send you lots of information relevant to your interests.

Keep the questions coming! All the best & CRION!

P.S.: I am no expert on Hitler's family

Jews are not White!

background, but I do know that he would have to show Black & Yellow genes in his DNA to be jewish. As I understand, he had a brother & two sisters, as well as living relatives, so DNA-testing is possible. If it could be proved that Hitler was jewish, then the German people cannot be blamed for the Holohoax! Jews demonize Hitler to hide the fact that Nazis & Zionists worked together to get jews into British occupied Palestine, just as Israelfounder Herzl had written decades before the advent of the NSDAP. In fact, National Socialism is the system which the Zionists would adopt for themselves, as Herzl wrote before there was National Socialism for the Germans.
