

18 AUG 06. Hail John! Many thanks for your informative mailings & your letter, all mailed on 11 AUG, which all arrived the same day, as they should have. Will miracles never end? I was not aware in any detail of the FEMA concentration camps, although I heard they existed. I have also seen photos of double- or triple-decker railroad cars for prisoners, as were used in the former Soviet Jewnion. I'll pass on the information to those who need to know. I also appreciate the quiz on Communism & its origins.

The true meaning of communism is common ownership & equal sharing of things & services. Primitive tribes often share important things like food, shelter & women. Some tribes have private property, but they sometimes share food, shelter & services with visitors, as hospitality requires in terms of their traditions. Early Christians were said to be communists, since one who had more was expected to share what he had with others. "Communes" or communist communities usually shared everything, striving to keep it on an equal basis.

In the 1700s, madmen like Rousseau concocted a world-view, that Man needed to return to the State Of Nature, for social institutions were what made Man bad. He & his disciples believed that Man was basically good, unlike the Christians, who said Man was basically evil. Sane people recognize that Man is neither angel nor demon, just Man! Rousseau claimed that Man, in The State of Nature, would become "The Noble Savage" & he would live without social institutions like property, religion, marriage & social pecking-orders. Man would be ruler of no man & ruled by none. Since then, explorers have searched the globe for "The Noble Savage" who lives in a society without institutions, but with no success. The closest we have come is in the Tarzan of fiction! Thus it was, in The State of Nature, that anarchy would be the rule: freedom from all forms of government. Of course, anarchy cannot work if men are not equal, & since men are not equal in their abilities, nor in their needs, anarchy does not exist in the real world, but that does not deter fools from believing that it could!

Around 1848, the jew known as Karl Marx allegedly composed The Communist Manifesto, which included such lines as "From each, according to his ability, to each, according to his need," & "Workers arise! You have nothing to lose but your chains!" This was the occasion for The 1st International. As usual, Communism, even back then, was jewish, & was backed by the Rothschild banksters of Frankfurt, hence the use of the Red Flag. "Rothschild" was the name that Meyer Amschel adopted for his bankster family. It means "Red Shield" in German, but The House of Rothschild did not have a red shield in front, it had a red flag!

The Communist uprising in Frankfurt & other European cities was suppressed by such men as Bismarck, for the "Frankfurt Parliament," being made up of jews, spent too much time chattering, as if they were in a synagogue! Marx & his commie kosher cronies had to leave Europe. Many came to the USA, where they played an important part in stirring up The Civil War, & in imposing harsh terms on the defeated South. For a time, Marx worked as a journalist, I believe, for The New York Tribune, if I recall correctly. Eventually, Marx was taken under the financial wing of Friedrich Engels, a rich jew industrialist who lived in England. Marx had nothing else to do but screw his housemaid & write "Das Kapital" in the library. During this period, Engels may have written material attributed to Marx, since Engels could not afford to link his name with Communism, & Marx was a well-known figure in Communist circles in Europe.

Labor unions & what is based thereon, called "syndicalism," evolved into "socialism." This movement became known as The 2nd International. Appropriately, their song is called "The Internationale," which has stirring words & music that remind me of the French republican anthem, "La Marseillaise." The 2nd International touted "Worker Solidarity" on a class basis, not on a national basis, & it flopped resoundingly when World War I began. I recall that Kaiser Wilhelm II declared in the Reichstag that he no longer saw Democrats, Radicals, Conservatives, Socialists, &c., only Germans! The interests of the international workingclass lost out to German nationalism. As I understand, all parties voted credits for the war. The same occurred in Britain, France, Italy, Russia, &c. After such a great betrayal of their principles, one would think that the 2nd International would have gone the way of the 1st, but, amazingly, 2nd International Socialist parties are major powers in European governments. The jew known as "Lenin" correctly denounced the members of The 2nd International for the rascals they were, so he announced The 3rd International, which became synonymous with the USSR or Soviet Union, which turned out to be The Big Jew-Screw that the anarchist, Bakunin, had warned it would be. Observers on the scene have told me that the Soviet system was nothing but "state capitalism:" Exxon with gulags! Everyone worked for those at the top of the social pyramid, "The Nomenklatura" or "Big Names."

2) Communism in theory still exists, along with its believers, but "Communism" in practice was a misnomer. As "Lenin" described his version of Communist theory: Socialism was but a first step, following the establishment of "The Dictatorship of the Proletariat (the workingclass)." When it became obvious that the workers were subordinate, even victims of the jew exploiters, the jew masters of "Marxism-Leninism" (a contradiction in terms) styled themselves as not just "workers," but as "The Vanguard of the Workingclass." "Lenin" made no apologies for his regime's use of Terror against the ruled, whom he despised as "these damned, wantless people." Not only did the Red Revolution in Russia ape the use of the title, "Citizen," of the kosher "French Revolution," but it also relied on "The Terror," which consisted of surveillance & swift, brutal punishment for perceived "crimes against the state," like being a "bourgeois" (middleclass, owner of private property, capitalist &/or "a smooth-handed Goy or Gentile"). Smooth-handed Gentiles were deemed enemies of the jew-Commies, for that showed they worked with their minds, not with their hands. Thus were there crimes of being, as well as crimes of doing. One could be "an enemy of the state" by what he was, as well as by what he did, such as "counter-revolutionary activities," including acts previously deemed criminal. A bank-robber in the USSR (Union of Soviet Socialist Republics) was "an enemy of the state," as were burglars & pickpockets. "People" was used interchangeably with "state," since the USSR was called "people's republics" & "people's democracy" to distinguish it from capitalist "democracy." "Lenin" called his system "centralized democracy" because its issues were decided by "soviets" that is, committees, similar to the notorious committees of the French Terror, the foremost of which was The Committee of Public Safety, which made so much use of the guillotine. Thus did the "Bolsheviks" ("Majority" Party), & their jew-Commie members establish their Police (Terror) Committee, which they first called The Cheka, which was known by various names, ending with the KGB. In the Russia of Putin, it is called the FSB, & is similar in "official" function to our FBI.

It is clear that Communism is blended by self-styled Communists with their policies, so Communism varies greatly by definition & in practice. A major contradiction occurred when "Lenin" declared that "Those who do not work shall not eat!" So-called Communists, that is, Third International Socialists, had to be as clever as Christians in expressing their policies in "Marxist" terms, while they did everything contrary to Marx's Communist Manifesto.

Since the kosher Communists were founded, funded & directed by leading jew-banksters, including the Rothschilds, as in the so-called "French" Revolution, their rule by committees strongly resembled jewish government by kehillas, the kosher term for committees. We can say from observation that Marxist-Leninist-Communist doctrine changed with the winds of circumstance, despite the pretension that "Communist Doctrine" was universal, inevitable & unchangeable. Although Marxist terminology or jargon was constantly used, it could not disguise contradictions in policy, as when Christians argue in Christian jargon on behalf of war or peace, as suits their momentary interests. Nevertheless, one myth or fairy-tale of Communism remained consistent: Class warfare, leading to The Dictatorship of the Proletariat, which would produce the New, Socialist Man, in preparation for "the withering away of the state," thence to Rousseau's "anarchist paradise" in The State of Nature, a return to Eden, as it were. Socialism was the first stage of Communism, which was the precursor of idealized anarchy. Thus was Communism a myth of the future, on behalf of an idealized past. This illusion, like the Christian illusion of paradise in another world, was used by the jew-bankster rulers of Russia & its empire to rationalize sacrifices & suffering in the world of here & now. As long as Soviet sheeple, like Christian sheeple, kept their minds focussed on this mythical goal, they could believe that only the End mattered, not the Means touted for the attainment of that End. As The Law of the Contrary would decree: Communism, which put materialism as the be-all, end-all of human existence, without an after-life, required super-human feats of spirituality & material sacrifice on the part of its believers. For those who were too wise to believe the kosher crap of Communism, there was the gulag or the firing squad. For individual thinkers there was The Lubyanka Breakfast: a cigarette & a bullet in the back of the head.

As I say, Communism in practice differed greatly from Communism in theory, as millions of others have also noted & thousands have stated. Just as Christianity did not turn men into angels, neither did Soviet Socialism turn men into "Socialist Men" capable of life as anarchists. It has also been noted that Christian leaders are anything but Christian in actual beliefs & behavior, & the same applies to Communist leaders who revealed themselves to be criminals, rather than Communist saints. Since both are jewish in origin, we can see

3) that Communism is Christianity without a Big Sky Jew, & Christianity is Communism with a Big Sky Jew. Liberals believe in doctrines common to Christianity & Communism, without admitting it. That's why some see liberals as hypocrites & others see them as crypto-Communists. It is said of liberals that they will support anything, as long as it is compulsory.

When we see the achievements & practices of Communism's proponents, they essentially resemble the earlier achievements of Genghis Khan & Tamerlane: Profit & power for the few, & death & suffering for the many. The USSR was conceived & born as a cripple, a monster dependent upon jew banksters for its survival, despite its vast resources. The USSR was an oriental despotism cloaked in phony humanitarianism, & specifically designed to conquer Europe by military might, since it had failed to do so with propaganda. The jew known as Trotsky failed to invade & conquer Europe in the 1920s, despite the ravages of World War I, for European Nationalism halted The Red Army & drove it back. For that failure, "Trotsky" was ousted, in favor of another Khazar who took the name, "Stalin," or "Man of Steel", as the jew known as "Lenin" had chosen "Lion-man" as his alias. Other Khazars (jews) chose Russian family names rather than those of super-heroes, such as Menshevik leader Kerensky, & most of the other Bolshevik (Communist) leaders.

"Stalin" used the oriental tactics of "two steps forward, one step back." He declared "Socialism in one Country," rather than world revolution, so he changed "Comintern" or Communist International to "Cominform" or Communist Information (Agency). Meanwhile, he had the USSR prepare for war on an unprecedented scale: By 1941, he <sup>had the</sup> world's largest air- & armored-forces. Had Hitler not attacked the USSR first, instead of attacking Britain, according to the banksters' script, The Red Army would have invaded & conquered all of Europe that same year. Naturally, Churchill & Roosevelt knew about Stalin's scheme, & they supported it. Stalin's invasion of Europe in 1941 did not occur, thanks only to Hitler. As I noted: Hitler saved Western Europe from Stalin, but he could not save Western Europe from herself. Stalin's invasion plans were revealed to me by a German high-altitude aerial reconnaissance observer, & were confirmed by Suvorov's book, "The Icebreaker," based on Soviet archives. This is the best-kept secret of World War II, apparently, since jewsmedia make no mention of it, but continue to lie about "Hitler's aggression against the 'peace-loving' USSR." Hitler wrote that he intended to seize farmland from Russia in any case, but Stalin's war preparations made Hitler's attack on Red Russia imperative & most urgent. That's why "Operation Sealion", the touted German invasion of Britain, was a hoax to hide German preparations against the Soviet Union. Churchill lied to the British people about that, as he did with most things he said to them. After all, they were "just Goyim," & Churchill was a self-proclaimed Zionist or jew-supremacist. FDR was even more of a jew, & Stalin came right from old Khazaria, with his jew father-in-law, Kaganovich, for whom it is said that the former bank-robber & terrorist, Stalin, fronted, under bankster orders.

Like Christianity, Communism has the hallmarks of a religion, which is best described as the consistent belief in what DOES NOT work. It is perhaps because of Communism's bloody failures in practice that its believers insist: It CAN work, for it was never tried! In Canada, where many immigrants fled Communist rule, there appeared renewed belief in Communism, for "this time, it should work!" Not surprisingly, many of the "New Communists" were still jews & Moscow agents, as revealed by a Soviet defector from the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa, a Mr. Guzenko, who took the lists of Soviet agents in Canada, as a gift to his new country. Poor fellow! He was no safer in "Soviet Canuckistan" than he would have been in Moscow, much as Hungarian freedom-fighters discovered in the USA. After all, Communism was founded, funded, fostered & fed from U.S. & Canadian sources, under jew-bankster direction, from 1917 until the official end of the USSR & the official end to the phony "Cold War," in which East-ZOG played games with West-ZOG against their own people, each blaming the other as the villain. "Terrorism" serves the same Orwellian function as did "The Cold War": an ancient formula known as "Terror on behalf of Tyranny." As a minor note, it is interesting that I was deported from the USA in 1969, the same year I learned that I was banned from the USSR & its Soviet Bloc countries, including Castro's Cuba. ZOG knew that I had caught onto their Orwellian racket, which made so much of USA-USSR 'rivalry', which was really a hoax, like "Operation Sealion." The reality was their co-operation, not their touted conflict, which kept the Goy sheeple distracted, in preparation for their fleecing & slaughter, as slaves & victims of the banksters' ZOG; AS "Terrorism" functions today.

As you can see, my attempt to describe a political belief which affected so many people, for so long, can only be an overview, in which I have tried to cover the high points. Thanks for your other great enclosures about La Raza & Slavery Reparations! ORION!

Mel's PC Plea

IMAGINE THE MEL GIBSON APOLOGY TOUR: A sad and oh-so-teary conversation with Barbara Walters; a please-forgive-me moment with Larry King. Maybe he'll decide to tell us that Seinfeld was one of his all-time favorite shows. Or perhaps he will announce he's sending a big campaign check to Sen. Joe Lieberman. And he could finally admit that his father was misinformed when he called the Holocaust "fiction." By the time Gibson is mobbed by the eager red-carpet journalists panting to hear his latest I'm-sorry iteration, he will no doubt speak Yiddish. He will wear a yarmulke. He will emerge from rehab with payess that curl beneath his ears. He will, finally, volunteer for circumcision as the ultimate proof of true remorse.

Not that he hasn't been good at remorse. Of course, groveling was the only available option, given the incident: During a drunken altercation with a cop in the middle of the night, Gibson went into a tirade (was it the tequila talking?) about the "f - - - g Jews. The Jews are responsible for all the wars in the world." Gibson then asked the cop: "Are you a Jew?" Oops. (He was, and, by the way, so am I.) Somehow, the arresting officer's report magically became public—and Gibson hasn't stopped genuflecting ever since.

Indeed, the Gibson Book of Apologies is a model of contrition: The first version is brief but pointed. He acknowledges his tirade, saying that he made statements "I do not believe to be true and which are despicable." The second apology is more, shall we say, politically evolved. Gibson passionately begs forgiveness from the Jewish community: "I am not an anti-Semite," he says. "I am not a bigot. Hatred of any kind goes against my faith. I would like to take it one step further and meet with the leaders in the Jewish community, with whom I can have a one-on-one discussion to discern the appropriate path for healing."

Healing? From a pre-existing anti-Semitic condition? Please. Gibson is just lucky he's in Hollywood and not Washington. While his second apology may display the craftsmanship of the Capitol's best spinmeisters, there's no way it would work in D.C. Truth is, if any elected official were a) caught driving drunk while b) spewing anti-Semitic bile, he would be gone. This is not to say that crooks do not exist in Congress. (Rep.

William Jefferson, caught on tape putting a suitcase full of money in his car, is still in office.) Or that members do not misbehave. (Remember that chairman of a powerful House committee who was cavorting with an exotic dancer who jumped into the Potomac?) But here's the difference: Power in Washington is derived through elections, which usually require some sensitivity—particularly to those who might vote. That includes minorities, Jewish or otherwise.

The gross. Alas, power in Hollywood flows from money. Gibson will hit the skids only if he can't deliver at the box office—and remember that his controversial Passion of the Christ grossed $600 million. He was accused of anti-Semitism at the time, and he didn't help himself when he refused to take on his father's denial of the Holocaust. Yet last week, there was at least some hope: ABC canceled his planned miniseries on the Holocaust (why they ever undertook the project remains the mystery). And some in Hollywood publicly urged colleagues to refuse to work with Gibson. "There are times in history when standing up against bigotry and racism is more important than money," wrote top agent Ari Emanuel. Now that's historic.

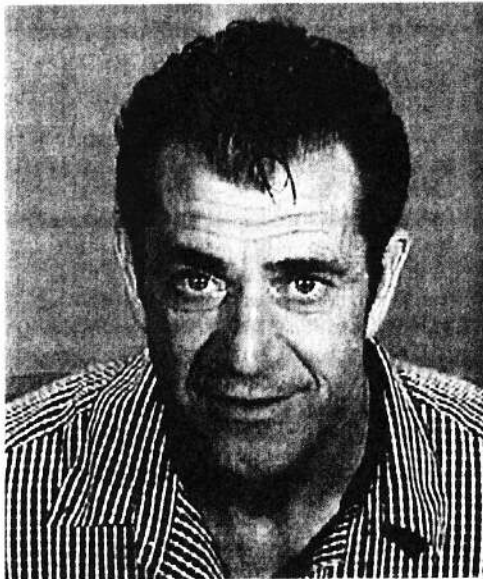

Of course, in politically correct Hollywood, all will no doubt eventually be excused. Gibson, in his second apology, pleads for help "in the process of understanding where those vicious words came from during that drunken display." In response, one Beverly Hills (where else?) rabbi invited Gibson to his synagogue to atone at Yom Kippur services. That sounds magnanimous, but what's the point beyond the obvious PR? Should African-American worshipers invite the white supremacist David Duke to their churches? Why the need to exhibit moral superiority over someone who lacks a moral compass? Gibson's incentives for contrition could not be more obvious: They're financial and social. So why should anyone provide a platform for any alleged recovery?

Don't get me wrong: Apologizing is always better than not apologizing. It reinforces the validity of certain important societal norms. In this saga, it's that bigotry of any kind is unacceptable. Mel Gibson will no doubt make that case on his inevitable tour of contrition. His peers will nod knowingly. But will anyone really believe he means it? ●

Alas, Gibson will hit the skids only if he can't deliver at the box office.
