

HERE'S WHAT YOU'RE FUNDING, WHITEY!

ANOTHER VIEW (From a Chinese wife of a Jew)

From: La Voz de Aztlan

'The Race' schools, your taxes at work

Top White House adviser Karl Rove traveled to Los Angeles this week to pay homage to the anti-immigration enforcement lobbying group for Latinos: the National Council of La Raza.

"La Raza" is Spanish for "The Race."

It's bad enough the White House lent its prestige to The Race's annual conference. But did you know the Bush administration has forked over millions of federal tax dollars directly to The Race?

According to Rep. Charlie Norwood, R-Ga., The Race snapped up $15.2 million in federal grants in 2005 alone and more than $30 million since 1996. Undisclosed amounts went to get-out-the-vote efforts supporting La Raza political positions. The U.S. Department of Education funneled nearly $8 million in taxpayer grants to the group for a nationwide charter schools initiative.

Among The Race's most infamous government-funded charter schools is La Academia Semillas del Pueblo, the Los Angeles public school that teaches "Aztec math" (ancient dot math is the new math) and the Mexican indigenous language of "Nahuatl." The ethnic separatist principal of the school, Marcos Aguilar, told a sympathetic UCLA interviewer:

"We don't want to drink from a White water fountain, we have our own wells and our natural reservoirs and our way of collecting rain in our aqueducts. We don't need a White water fountain. ... We are not interested in what they have because we have so much more and because the world is so much larger. And ultimately the White way, the American way, the neo liberal, capitalist way of life will eventually lead to our own destruction."

That's the tip of the iceberg. I found dozens of other publicly subsidized charter schools sponsored by The Race and funded with our money, including:

■ Aztlán Academy in Tucson, Ariz. According to The Race, the school's success rests on "Aztlán's ability to integrate a meaningful Chicano Studies program into their lives, language, and academics, as a means of developing their intellects as well as their pride and self-esteem." The school's name — a reference to a mythical swath of the vast Southwestern U.S. expanse, which Latino activists claim is their rightful homeland and which they seek to reconquer for Mexico — says it all.

MICHELLE
MALKIN

■ Mexicayotl Academy in Nogales, Ariz. Who needs the three Rs? At Mexicayotl, it's all about the three Ms: me, me, me! The school's program is "structured and developed around the concepts of identity, culture, and language." Second mission: supporting local ethnic lobbying efforts "to right social injustices by educating the community and helping create social change." Under "greatest achievements," the school's Web site lists its participation in a "Peace & Dignity Run"; its visit from Rigoberta Menchu (the Marxist academic fraud from Guatemala who lied her way to a Nobel Peace Prize); and its sponsorship of the local annual Dia de los Muertos (the Mexican holiday).

■ The Dolores Huerta Preparatory High School in Pueblo, Colo. It's named after the far-Left Latina labor union activist who railed that "Republicans hate Latinos," praised illegal-alien marchers and screeched that "We didn't cross the borders; the borders crossed us" in a tirade before Arizona students.

■ Academia Cesar Chavez Charter School in St. Paul, Minn. Board of Directors member Louis Mendoza, an activist Chicano studies professor, pushed the school to lobby for the federal DREAM Act (providing in-state tuition discounts to illegal alien students not available to legal nonresidents). The school's Web site features one flag on its front page: the Mexican flag.

The White House will tell you that the National Council of The Race is a "moderate," mainstream civil-rights group. But there's nothing "moderate" about The Race's advocacy of driver's licenses and in-state tuition discounts for illegal aliens. Or its opposition to strengthening security for identity documents and improving cooperation on immigration enforcement between state, local and federal enforcement immigration officials. Or its all-out war on the House GOP's border security and enforcement-first bill passed in December.

President Bush pays lip service to immigration enforcement and assimilation, while the White House sends Rove to make nice with the separatist leaders of The Race and the Bush Education Department showers our tax dollars on radical Reconquista schools. It doesn't add up.

Unless, of course, you're using Aztec math.

Michelle Malkin's column is distributed by Creators Syndicate.

23 JAN 07. Hail Harrell! Many thanks for your care package of informational goodies, including your great article on the likely Mexican Revolution. As you may know, I specialized in Latin American studies. When I attended the University of Guadalajara in 1959, I took a Mexican history course taught by Professor Travis of Stanford University. In addition to your observations on Porfirio Diaz' modernization of the Mexican infrastructure, Dr. Travis mentioned Diaz' water purification projects which greatly reduced the number of infant deaths, thereby fuelling the population explosion which, eventually, blew him out of office. Diaz, who was one of Juarez' top generals, also undermined himself with his own good intentions, by consistently limiting the power of the Mexican Army, so it did not become a burden on the Mexican economy. Diaz, a mestizo, believed that Mexico's Indian culture retarded Mexico's development in assuming what he saw as Mexico's rightful place in world affairs. To achieve his goal of making Mexico prosperous, powerful & independent of foreign domination, his plan was to modernize, that is, Gringoize the Mexican economy & infrastructure. But these policies were doomed to fail in the face of the Mexican population explosion, which also exacerbated the grossly uneven distribution of wealth created by Diaz' application of capitalism. As you noted, this growing inequality of wealth has always threatened Mexican political stability, & is now threatening the stability of the USA. Global capitalism seems best designed to concentrate wealth & to spread poverty.

As I've written to other correspondents, Bush & Co. appear to perceive "The North American Union" of Mexico, Canada & the USA in terms of their political panacea, at the cost of economic & demographic disaster for U.S. & Canadian Whites. NAFTA has laid the economic foundations for the Zionist World Order's North American Union & its new-jew funny money, "the amero." Such a political-economic reshuffle could provide our Zionist Occupation Government with a "new deal" from its stacked deck, so the tax-payers may be fooled longer, or at least distracted. The effective occupation of the USA with a hispano-mestizo population would certainly distract the Goyim from pursuing their Zionist criminals, just as the Russian prison population terrorized & paralyzed the Russian people, after the jew-Bolsheviks freed them for that very reason.

You may recall Mexico's aborted independence movement of 1810, officially led by Padre Hidalgo: Mexican Whites saw Spain's French occupation as a good excuse to declare independence from Spain in the name of The King of Spain, who was now a hostage of Napoleon. As we can guess, those White Mexicans were lawyers! The mestizos & indios joined Hidalgo's forces, but their slogan was not "Independence!" but "Death to Whites!" Suddenly, the White Mexican 'patriots' got cold feet & shifted their support to "Napoleon's viceroy." Poor dupe Hidalgo & his mob of indios were defeated by better led & better disciplined Spanish forces. Hidalgo was captured, defrocked by The Inquisition, & executed by due process, for rebellion. That's why Mexicans prefer to celebrate Cinco de Mayo, rather than their Independence Day.

You probably know that the PRI was leftist, but also corrupt & plutocratic. It was also anti-clerical & Freemasonic, according to Mexican officials I've known. The PRI nationalized the churches after the Archbishop of Mexico forbade the government to take over public education. Clerical garb was forbidden. The Archbishop had placed Mexico under interdiction, as I understand, which halted masses, baptisms, marriages & funeral services. The government knew that most Mexicans could not afford such luxuries, but it was essential for the people to have access to the "saints" to whom they prayed. These idols occupied the churches, so the government confiscated them in order to keep the church buildings accessible to the public. If I recall correctly, a religious civil war known as The Cristero Rebellion broke out in the early to mid-1930s, with atrocities committed by both sides. It was during this era that the Soviet jew, Eisenstein, made the propaganda film, "Que Viva Mexico!" which portrayed (more or less) the start of Mexico's 1910 Revolution. As I recall, the movie ends on The Day of the Dead festival, in which everyone wears a skeleton mask. There are 3 costumed figures dancing on a stage in a public square: one in military uniform, one in bankster garb & one in a bishop's miter. At the end of the day, everyone doffs his mask. A mestizo boy doffs his & smiles into the camera, but when the 3 dancers doff their masks, they reveal real skeleton faces beneath!

According to my studies, Mexico's civil war cum revolution lasted from 1910 to 1929, if we choose to omit the Cristero Rebellion as a continuation thereof. Mexico's ruling scum are predatory & parasitic, so they discourage honest productivity. Combine that policy with irresponsible reproduction & we have an explosive mixture, indeed. Been there, seen that. Yours, as always, for Truth, Freedom & Justice. ORION!

Edna