

8 MAR 07. Howdy Jason! Many thanks for sending me the December 2006 issue of The First Freedom, with your excellent Pearl Harbor article therein! As we know, FDR was a jew & very, very pro-USSR. His primary worry was about any threat to his beloved Soviet Jewnion, & it appeared that the Japanese were the foremost threat, according to Soviet propaganda of the late 1930s. Thus did FDR mobilize all his resources to script his war against Japan. As you say, he used all sorts of threats, bluffs & ploys against the Japanese to goad them into attacking the USA first. Japan has no natural resources to speak of. If it wants to make steel, it must import iron & coal. The Japanese fleet had converted to oil, so that was another essential need which could only be met by importation. FDR's oil embargo was the trigger for Japan's attack on, what they thought, was the entire U.S. Pacific Fleet. Japan's goal was to send their forces to capture the Dutch East Indies, now Indonesia, which was & still is a great source of oil in SE Asia. To seize the oilfields of those islands, Japan also had to knock out U.S. bases in the Philippines & British bases in Malaya & Singapore. According to my sources, Japan & the USSR had a peace treaty or nonaggression pact, plus a trade agreement, which held until the Soviet declaration of war on Japan in 1945. Much to the Whitehouse hebe's consternation, Germany attacked the USSR on 22 June 41.

On 7 DEC 41 Japan & the USA mutually declared war on each other. On 11 DEC 41, the USA declared war on Germany & Italy, with Germany returning the 'favor' the same day. FDR's 'logic' was that "the Axis Powers" were at war with the USA, as a result of Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor. If we research evidence of such an "Axis," we soon discover that FDR was lying, as usual. The Axis included only Italy & Germany. It was also known as The Rome-Berlin Axis, as of 25 OCT 36. On 25 NOV 36, Hitler signed The Anti-Comintern Pact with Japan. This pact was nullified by the "Hitler-Stalin Pact" of 23 AUG 39. At this point, neither Germany nor Japan had any alliance against the Comintern (the USSR). According to my chronology, "History of the Second World War," published under the auspices of Britain's Imperial War Museum, "on 27 SEP 40, Germany, Italy, Japan sign pact." That was it: no detail was given about the nature of this "pact." I doubt that it was a military pact, for this source says that not until 18 JAN 42 did "Germany, Italy, Japan sign new military pact." Germany already knew that Japan would not support the Axis war effort against the USSR, so: It looked as if neither Italy nor Germany wanted to wage war against the USA, just as Japan did not want to wage war against the USSR. A wartime cartoonist showed Hitler, Mussolini & Tojo all marching on a road with their (as I recall) legs tied together. They are approaching an intersection with a sign labelled "Victory," pointing in 3 different directions. The caption read something like: "They'll look good until they reach the crossroads."

So far, the best-kept secret about WW II has been "Stalin's" invasion plans for the conquest of Western Europe, which "Trotsky" had failed to achieve after WW I. The first I heard of "Stalin's" plan was from a German high altitude aerial recon observer. He said that the USSR railroads had become a gigantic conveyor belt, moving in a giant "U", with "endless train smoke from horizon to horizon." He said trains came from the east with all sorts of military equipment. On their return trip, back to the east, they carried machinery, livestock, harvested crops, vehicles, &c. out of "Stalin's" war zone. This was confirmed much later by former Soviet GRU (military intelligence) officer "Suvorov," in his book, "The Icebreaker," which I first read in German as "Der Eisbrecher." Hitler was to be "Stalin's" "icebreaker." According to former German chancellor Brüning, the same jew banksters who'd paid him were paying Hitler, & they were the same jew banksters who funded Churchill, FDR & "Stalin!" Leon Degrelle, with whom I corresponded, wrote "Hitler, Born at Versailles." As others have written, WW II was planned at Versailles, just after WW I. Hitler was picked to play his role in a rearmed Germany. His script was to attempt the invasion of England, under Operation Sealion, but that was a hoax to fool "Stalin," & it worked. Hitler "broke the jews' rules" by hitting Red Russia before it hit all of Europe. Britain had already agreed to deed Poland over to the USSR, which is why the "gas chambers" were invented by the Brits' PWE (Psychological Warfare Executive). I have their file from British Foreign Office archives. The Brits feared that the Poles might join up with the Germans against the Reds, after the discovery of some 15,000 murdered Polish officers in the Katyn Forest, victims of the jew NKVD. I published these findings as "Poland & the Lies of the Allies." My writings are available on www.FAEM.com & the VNN website. This article was also published in The Barnes Review. Keep up your good work. ORION!
