

Shame on you for 'fluff piece' on Angela Davis

I have been stewing about this for weeks now and decided to let it out.

On April 19, 2007, (make a note of this date), journalism died on Grays Harbor.

That was the date our local daily newspaper chose to not report but rather gush over the radical '60s activist Angela Davis as she waltzed into town for her indoctrination lecture at Grays Harbor College — invited by the faculty in the History Department.

The article was written by Daily World Writer Callie White, and in case you missed it, it can be found at the following URL: unless they got smart and pulled it: http://www.the-dailyworld.com/articles/2007/04/19/local\_news/02news.txt

There is also a very nice picture of the radical-Communist-Black Panther-loving revolutionary standing under a furling American flag.

How nice. We must also acknowledge Daily World photographer Louie Traub as well for his sense of humor in the posing — at least I pray it was humor.

While the newspaper mentioned that Davis is currently “a professor in the History of Consciousness (Professor of Consciousness?) Department at the University of California at Santa Cruz,” and highlighted her wonderful work with the poor imprisoned dregs of our society, it failed to equally honor the horror of her past in any meaningful way.

This fluff piece would leave a casual, or young reader, to believe Ms. Davis is a modern-day crusading saint. All that was missing was a white horse and a sword held high into the air.

What the writer failed to do was to tie in the recent spate of visits to the Harbor by these type of speakers — most often finding a willing home at our own community college. I am being generous here calling it a college.

I do not question the right of Ms. Davis to travel into our area and speak. We all have that right. What I question is the willingness of our local paper to treat her as a visiting celebrity, enter our local college and fill our kids' heads with hate-America radicalism, without the balance of reporting her agenda. Or for that matter reporting on the true story — the descent of our college into a cesspool of leftist radicalism. I wouldn't let my kids anywhere near the place.

Oh, I can hear the lefties now. “But, but, she was acquitted of providing guns to the Black Panthers.” Ya, sure — so was O.J.

I don't fault the writer, Ms. White. She is only putting forth her personal view. Obviously a product of government school education.

I do fault the newspaper's management team and its complete lack of oversight in allowing this piece to run as it was written — slow news day or not. They definitely need adult supervision over there.

Shame on The Daily World.

25 June 07. Dear Ron: Thanks for your letter of 15 June 07. I am concerned that you must work to the point of exhaustion, as your normal routine, it seems. Truck-driving is demanding of one's stamina & alertness, so one can exercise proper judgement in making the myriad decisions required to navigate the roads safely. Time & distance are constant factors: to cover the maximum distance in the minimum time. One must keep all the variables in mind: road conditions, weather, other drivers, the condition of one's rig, its own need for fuel, & the driver's need for food & rest. Those are just the normal variables, but one must be on the lookout for everything else: wandering cattle, animals crossing the road, wrecks, people in need of help, washouts, fires, floods. One must be conscious, always, of one's load, the capabilities of one's rig & oneself. I'm sure you can supply additions to this list, along with a chuckle about this former railroader's view of trucking, which may be similar to a Frenchman's version of an enchilada.

Relativism is useful in exercising our minds, for it allows us to see both sides, & it may lead us to see new relationships, that is, existing relationships of which we were not aware. There may be many facets to a given phenomenon, in addition to those facets we perceive. Such awareness enhances our understanding, & increases our effectiveness. Is the glass  $\frac{1}{2}$  full or  $\frac{1}{2}$  empty? Does gravity push or pull? Consider the centrifugal force of the earth's spin: why does everything remain on the earth's surface, instead of flying into outer space? The centripetal force of gravity adequately counters (& then some!) the outward force of the earth's spin. In brief: Gravity is that force which permits Jewish spin-doctors to remain on earth, which cause Goy minds (?) to go into orbit, somewhere in the void of unreality. I'm sure this theory is quantifiable, perhaps based upon Hebrew box office revenues, talmudvision viewers & Goy body-counts in our current Zionist wars. We can but marvel at the relationship between fiction & reality which is governed thereby. Our ZOG possesses the magical ability to produce facts by means of lies. The essential ingredient in ZOG's magic potion is lots & lots of dumb Goyim, just as the meat-packing industry would perish without the great herds of cattle heading for the slaughterhouses. We could learn lots about ourselves if we could interview the beasts bound for 'processing.' What instincts brought you here? Can you not smell blood? Are you curious to see what lies at the end of the ramp? What would you do if it were not to your liking? Brighter people than us had to be brought to their destinations in chains, as some of my relatives were. But now, many of us willingly jump on the Talmudic Treadmill to Oblivion, as if it were a privilege. A chain by another name remains a chain, all the same, even when it's called "credit." It is even more effective to bind the minds of slaves, rather than their bodies. ZOG knows! The sheeple are given their lies to live by, so ZOG may profit & increase its power for evil. Such a deal! I apologize for telling you what you already know, but it's interesting to spell it out for better appreciation of our situation.

As you say, profanity is the expression of surly minds. On rare occasions, it may be useful to emphasize one's point, but profanity is like zogbucks: the more used, the less value. Thanks for describing my letters as polite. I suppose that is my nature, for I do not enjoy putting people ill at ease. If we consider table manners, they are easy to understand if we have any concern for our fellow diners, whom we don't wish to disgust by our behavior. Impolite people are often aware of their impoliteness, which they deem a means of self-expression: "I fart, therefore I am." It also demonstrates hostility toward others. I find this to be true, especially of Jews, in my experience. Impoliteness is also revealing of one's frustration at being ineffective in a given situation. Why would I insult a man I was going to shoot? for example. Even of the Jews it was said that they offered prisoners of certain status a Lubyanka Breakfast: a cigarette followed by a bullet in the back of the head. A Scotsman might consider such a deal: Bed & breakfast, plus burial. All-inclusive, & FREE! Yet, we hear of no herds of Scots stampeding to Moscow, probably because we are too cheap to pay the fares, one way, of course. Worse yet, I don't smoke, so I'd prefer to skip the cigarette course. Since I was barred from all Soviet Bloc countries, including Cuba, in 1969, by their ZOGs, not ours, I couldn't visit Lubyanka, even if I'd be willing to pay the fare. Now I have no interest in going there, aside from being not just cheap, but broke! I'm sure Moscow can survive without my tourist revenue, since Putin grabbed Russian oil back from the thieving hebes, according to Jewsmedia reports.

I hope you enjoy the enclosed Yakima Harlot-Repulsives for 'local color', so you can save the expense of travel to this multi-racial 'wonderland.' Such information serves to warn you of what you can expect, like a road sign which says "Bridge Out." Sometimes words are better than the experience they describe. All the best. Get some rest. ORION!
