P. O. Box 1887, Washington DC 20013-1887

June 1, 2002

President George W. Bush
Commander in Chief, White House, Washington D.C.

Dear Mr. President,

Saturday June 8, 2002 marks the 35th anniversary of probably the most shameful day in American history. That day America's banner and honor was treacherously trashed by our so-called ally, Israel. Thirty four Americans were brutally slaughtered, 172 wounded, including myself, and America's most sophisticated intelligence ship was so badly damaged it had to be scraped. Israel deliberately attacked America's virtually unarmed USS LIBERTY in international waters, knowing full well our identity, in an assault that lasted as long as the attack on Pearl Harbor.

On that bright, sunny infamous day, the LIBERTY had a large American flag flapping in the wind and 10' high I.D. marking on her hull which were clearly visible during the full six hours (6:00 A.M. to 12:00 Noon) that low flying, slow moving, propeller recon distinctly marked with Star of Davids reconnoitered our ship. Overheard radio transmission of the pilots confirmed that the Israel had positively identified the LIBERTY as American.

Suddenly at 2:00 p.m., the government of Israel put a knife in the back of America. In a diabolic attempt at deception, the Israelis began the attack with unmarked jet fighters using rockets, canons, and napalm on our unprotected ship. Then three motor torpedo boats arrived on the scene and fired 6 torpedoes at us, one hitting its mark, midship's on the starboard side, instantly blowing to bits 25 of America's finest young men. The torpedo gunmen shot at our firefighters and stretcher bearers, using us as target practice, maiming and murdering as many of America's sons as they could.

The captain ordered us to prepare to abandon ship as the ship was in grave danger of sinking from torpedo hit that left a 40'x40' hole in her. There were only 3 life rafts left that they hadn't already destroyed. We put them over the side to put as many wounded in as possible. The torpedo boats machine gunned the life rafts and sank two of them and took one aboard their boat; no survivors were to be taken! Helicopters were overhead to board our ship with Israeli commandos at the ready to finish us off.

Responding to a S.O.S. from the LIBERTY, the USS SARATOGA launched their jets approximately 15 minutes into the vicious Israeli attack. Within minutes after the launch, incredibly and inexplicably, Washington shamefully and unconscionably recalled the jets, abandoning helpless American sailors under fire, and subjecting them to an additional two hours of barbaric Israeli bombardment and butchery.

Fortuitously when the Israelis picked up an invalid message that U.S. help was on the way, Israel reluctantly was forced to terminate its ongoing assault. Without that break, I would not be alive writing this letter.

Ironically help did not arrive until 18 hours after the attack when it was only 15 minutes away. When an American rescue ship finally arrived, what they found was shocking, the LIBERTY was in shambles, death on the water. There were 821 rocket and canon holes in her hull, thousands of 50 caliber armor piercing, bullets riddling her skin, a tunnel size torpedo cavity in her broad side, and the residue of napalm that had been dropped to burn us up. Blood and body parts were strewn across the deck. A sad, outrageous story, but unfortunately true.

The crew of the most decorated naval ship in American history was ordered to remain silent under threat of court martial, imprisonment or worse, and we all knew what worst meant. The U.S. government has never challenged the obviously phony Israeli excuse of "mistaken identity" nor have they attempted to expose the dishonorable cover up that continues to date. Truth and America's honor were ignominiously sacrificed to provide cover for Israel's transparent lies and despicable act of perfidy.

Israel's premeditated, sneak attack on the USS LIBERTY was a direct attack on America. The disgraceful refusal of unpatriotic American governmental officials of dubious allegiance to defend America and come to the aid of brave Americans under attack can only be characterized as treasonous.

Mr. President, on behalf of the courageous crew of the USS LIBERTY, dead and alive, I respectfully request that you commission a presidential panel to finally investigate the attack and cover-up of the USS LIBERTY, and report the truth to American people.

Thank you, Mr. President. God bless you! God bless America!

ISRAEL SUCCEEDED ON 9-11!

Respectfully,

Phillip F. Tourney, President
USS LIBERTY Veterans Association

14 Jewlie 07. Hail Leif! Thanks for your letter of 11 Jewlie 07, & welcome back. Your zoggies must have missed you. Many people are miserable when they feel that "no one wants them." You can tell them that you have your zoggies who not only want you, but who keep you in their thoughts, & are always concerned for your well-being. For 1/4 of a century, I was one of "America's Least Wanted," but I must admit that didn't bother me. I was too busy job-hunting & travelling from place to place. If my jobs overseas hadn't dried up, I'd most likely not be back in the Jewnited States.

It seems that you have fallen under the STG category: Screw This Goy. "Get Whitey" is the name of ZOG's game, as you know, so you are adapting to it. Congratulations!

Writing, as you mentioned, is just putting your thoughts on paper. My advice is to write as you talk. If you can talk about a subject, then you can write about it. After your 1st draft, you can reread your text for grammar & spelling errors, which I also do. In a 2nd reading, you may find a better way of saying what you wanted to say in the first place.

Since you intend for others to read your material, I'd suggest you find someone who'd read your text. He could be useful in testing the effectiveness of your writing. We writers want to be understood. Reading our material for our own understanding is good, but having others read it is better. Do they miss the points you are trying to communicate? I have no one here to do that, but if I knew anyone willing to read my essays, &c. I'd enjoy their feedback, especially if I needed to test the effectiveness of my writing.

In my first draft, I'd aim to cover the subject from A to Z. It's always good to outline your topic, so you can put like with like for emphasis & understanding. Let's say that I want to write an essay about hammers: My outline would probably be as follows:

- | | |
|-------------------|---|
| I. Hammer types | You can add details in sub-categories, such as: |
| A. Claw | A. Claw |
| B. Ballpeen | 1. Forged steel head |
| C. Sledge | 2. Cast iron head |
| II. Manner of use | The outline covers the points you wish to include in your |
| A. Rivets | topic. This is like writing your grocery list before you |
| B. Nails | write a recipe, for your completed article would be the |
| C. Demolitions | meal. |

The outline tells you what & how much you want to include in your topic. It also allows you to think of things, & put them in their proper place, so as to avoid jumping all around from subject to subject. The outline helps the writer to present his material in an orderly & effective manner, so that the reader is not confused. There are textbooks & courses on style, but as long as your grammar, spelling & punctuation are correct, the writer will naturally develop his own style. Always try to say what you want to say in as few words as possible.

Many English writers have problems with apostrophes: The cat lost its tail. It was the cat's tail. In this case, cat's refers to the tail belonging to the cat, but if I say, the cat's lost its tail, cat's = c_at has. English uses apostrophes to show possession & contraction. Some people think that apostrophes must always be used to show possessive, so they'll put in an apostrophe where it doesn't belong. His, hers, its, theirs, yours & mine are all possessive, but have no apostrophes. The boy's toys means one boy is the possessor; Boys' toys means more than one boy is the possessor. The man's book is on the table, but the men's books are on the shelf. English is tricky. I've been told that the only people who can use English correctly are spies & terrorists. Ha!

Thanks for the information on The Freedom of Information Act. I'll appreciate the names & addresses when you can send them, but no hurry! You are welcome to copy & distribute anything of mine you wish. What I write is for publicity, not secrecy. Permission is always granted. Thanks for your interest in my articles which appear on www.FAEM.com & VNN, but I'll send you my 'hard-copies', as they say in modern jargon. My typewriter produces nothing but hard-copy! I'll see if I can find a decent copy of Rockwell's poem on "The Ducks & the Hens." It's a good one. Sorry, but I don't have David Lane's "The 88 Lines." I hope you enjoy your new address. No need to say, "ZOG be with you," for you know it is, already. In English, that would be a redundancy, like sweet sugar. Ha! All the best, as always. ORION!

P.S.: Double-spacing the lines of your first draft allows for corrections & additions to the text.
