Dear Steve: Many thanks for your great letter & enclosures of 29 SEP 07! I'm happy that your ZOG has deigned to deliver my parcels of information to you, after perusing same for their own enjoyment. As a journalist, I have no secrets. The more readers, the merrier, as long as they deliver my mail, eventually. I'm having trouble with a ZOG-gulag in this state because their censors are now stealing my First Class Mail, without returning it. Their pretext for doing so alleges that I am deeming some person or persons "inferior," apparently by mentioning differences. By their criterion, if I distinguish between tigers & house cats, I am thereby alleging that one or both are "inferior." This is nonsense, of course, but as the jew, Teddy Roosevelt, declared: "Might makes right." Thy will be done, if you have the gun. The one thing I dislike is hypocrisy, when it purports to be 'democracy,' as is the rule in the Jewnited States.

Thanks for your encouragement for Brian, in anti-Irish Ireland. I'm sure he is doing his best, with what little support he gets. One 'staunch' Irishman has proclaimed his stand, of Ireland for Irish, only. But he is pricing airline tickets to New Zealand, if the darkies get too close. Of course, he won't help Brian, since Brian is pro-White, rather than pro-Irish in particular. My view is that if Irish will not fight for Ireland, but Poles will, then he must rely on Poles. Politics (people-power) is described as "the art of the possible," but often, practical arrangements are grotesque.

It seems that Australia has been experiencing a major drain on talent. The first time I saw "Breaker Morant," I got a chill, for his situation was similar to mine in Rhodesia, where I had no proof that I had been ordered to carry out my duties; that is, nothing in writing. Morant could have been me! Aargh!

Germaine Greer got sucked in by jewish feminists. From the last information she revealed in public, to my knowledge, she repented of her ways, having discovered to her immense cost that women are indeed different from men. When she was pregnant, she did not want her baby, so she got it aborted. She was promiscuous, like some men, so she got VD. The VD made her sterile, so when she wanted a baby, she could not have one. The last I heard of her was that she had retired to a girls' school, to recapture her lost youth.

Like Australia, the USA has had a long anti-intellectual tradition. That's why we have given intellectual pursuits to the jews. Such a deal! We may not be intellectuals, but we sure fall for their twaddle, in our Civil War, the Spanish-American War, World Wars I & II, et al. No, we are not intellectuals, but we certainly are suckers. We are not thinkers, but we make damned good cannon-fodder. What 'good' Goyim we are!

I'm sorry that your intended U.S. trip did not occur. That's why I send you U.S. publications, so you may obtain a 'virtual' U.S. experience, in particular of Brownest Yakima, alias Northern Mexico. In this hypocrisy, there is no official second language, but Spanish is the de facto official language in Yakima County, as Mandarin Chinese is official in King County. So much for this being "a government of law."

I think that the connection in the deaths you mentioned is old age, & ailments which accompany it. Of course, ZOG may have 'assisted' them to die when they did, but it could have been done much sooner, if these men had been deemed real threats.

To return to Spanish: All our election materials are in English & Spanish. How can a speaker of Spanish, only, vote in a country in which all the news is in English, especially concerning political candidates? How would a Spanish-speaker be aware of issues, so as to vote intelligently, as a member of an 'informed' electorate? Voter instructions are in Spanish, but does a Spanish-speaker know what the issues are? Does he or she know what the candidate stands for? Or, must 'someone' tell him whom to vote for? The same applies to Mandarin speakers: Where do they get their news? I know of no Mandarin newspapers or radio stations. Perhaps it's all available on the Internet. At least, I'd hope so! Of course, elections are foregone conclusions in this land where we have "the best government money can buy." One pundit asked why we need to have primary elections, when what really matters is the amount of money the candidate has. The U.S. voters pay attention to those with money, rather than the ones who may have good ideas. How can anyone be serious if he has no money? The Gospel of Wealth is alive & well here in the Jew Ass Cy Veh, just as Calvin would hope. The rule of the many is hedged about with so many banana peels & boobytraps that it always comes down to the rule of the money. Plato said that democracy degenerates into plutocracy, but the USA always was a plutocracy, a Roman-style 'republic of the rich,' partially disguised by a smokescreen of bafflegab. Welfare is our bread & elections are our circuses, if we do not prefer niggerball. All the best. ORION!
