This whitey won't foot the bill:

THE MORE WE
FEED, THE MORE THEY BREED!

Christi van der Westhuizen's article "White denial sustains continuing privilege" (Weekend Argus, November 10) is a bit puzzling.

According to the article 80% of whites have become wealthier. Yet according to an issue of the Mail & Guardian printed a few years ago, 600 000 whites were then living under the poverty line with that number increasing by 15% a year. A more recent assessment states that some 750 000 whites are under the poverty line. Rapport stated recently that some 960 000 whites are unemployed.

This does not show a picture of privilege.

While a few whites have become filthy rich under the new dispensation, the majority are struggling to make a living.

This is the reason for the present brain drain. Let us be honest – the only reasons whites would stay anywhere in Africa are sunshine, space, and money and of course for most, the inability to emigrate due to age or lack of qualifications.

We are constantly reminded that this is not our country any more, so why should we bother about the fate of others who do not like us or want us in the first place? Our children are subjected to racist laws which prevent them from fulfilling themselves, so why should they stay?

We worked our butts off to put children through university so they could have a future. Is that criminal? Had we lived in Australia or Canada, or Europe, we would have done exactly the same. We kept our family numbers low so that those children could have a better chance, while those who today are decrying our privileges were having as many children as possible to dethrone us. Now they are hoist by their own population petard and want to blame us.

As to the lack of redistribution, we have a government owned by the multinationals and which has enriched its close friends immensely. They just took the cash and asked for more, and like in the rest of Africa, they forget their followers except at election times where they make them more promises which will not be kept.

If they are not interested in uplifting their own, why should whitey be bothered? If white bleeding hearts want to help, why not? Let them sell their assets and give them to the poor.

The words of Jesus to the rich man were: "Give everything you have to the poor and follow me." A crazy piece of advice if ever there was one, as the poor would have a big party for a few days and would be just as poor or even poorer after the hangover.

THE RICH ARE THE TOPMOST MINIONS OF THE ZOG. SCUM RISES TO THE TOP.

HAVE A NICE DAY.

Hail Osred! Many thanks for your entertaining & enlightening letter of 25 JAN 08 & the poignant publication for expat Brits, or 'multi-cultural refugees?'

Indeed, how much 'fiction' is there in ostensible depictions of utopias & dystopias? "They Live" reveals 'too much' about our alien-controlled society, so I recommend that you see it, if possible. The hero puts on some special sunglasses which nullify the aliens' 'dazzle-beam.' He looks at a U.S. dollar bill. Without the glasses, he sees "In God We Trust." With the glasses, he sees "This is Your God." He can also see who is an alien & who is human. I've only read about "The Matrix," but, as you say, it reveals how we, most of us, really do live in a fantasy world created by the rulers. As one writer said: "We believe that we are awake, when we are really dreaming."

As I've written to others, I was jealous of my personal freedom in my early childhood. My life has been my struggle for freedom from "The Matrix," &c. As I say, I do not write out of a sense of frustration, but a realization of liberation, & that I have the obligation to pass on knowledge to those who want it. There is a price for everything in life, & I've paid any price to achieve freedom & knowledge, even when it became necessary to forgo the acquisition of hostages in the form of people & property. I never fantasized that I was "the lord of the manor," as do so many middleclass debt-slaves. I was born in to poverty's margins, so I never fantasized that I'd win some jackpot or lottery. I note that others who live in real poverty & desperation have believed in such illusions. When my parents met, both their families were down, but not quite out, so they were like the former Brit middleclass types who had only their old school ties to remind them of better conditions. I had no such pretenses, & loathed the idea of "keeping up with the Joneses," whoever they were. One correspondent said that "You write for the children you never had." That is certainly true, for 'my children' are my race, rather than my personal offspring. I have no regrets in this regard. I suppose my spiritual parents were Thoreau & Veblen, to a great extent. Here's to "The Red Pill."

You're right that I do not watch sports, however, I do like seeing female beauty in action, except that I lack a TV on which to see it. Your description is adequate, however. No doubt you recall the "Australian" tennis star, Yvonne Goolagong (sp?). Her coach was heard advising her to focus her attention on the game, & not let her mind "go walk about."

Ah, yes, "the immortal Mandy Rice-Davies," who was reported as leaving for Israel at the end of the Profumo Scandal. I gather from a news article that the infamous Jeremy Thorpe was serving in the Foreign Office in Colombia. Apparently, Colombians aren't very picky who represents Brit interests, as long as they don't get too close to him. No, I missed the photo of the Swede who knocked out the Black boxer. Thanks for helping me to chip at the stereotype of Black Boxing Invincibility, which occupies a pedestal in The Museum of my Mind, thanks be to ZOG, i.e. The Matrix.

For some reason, I recall a conversation my mom had with a British couple who'd done a tour of the USA. I recall as a 10 year old listener, that the topic discussed was the racial situation in the USA, which was chiefly between Whites & Blacks. The Brits told us how they'd have dealt with the "colour-line" in Britain: Just by ignoring it, & by treating everyone equally. My mother said that the racial situation was not a uniquely "American" invention, for White Americans were & are pretty much transplanted Europeans, as she was, & I definitely am, although we were born here. The Brit couple said they'd show us the 'proper' way of dealing with racial issues, & my mother wished them luck. That was in 1949. Yes, the Brits sure showed us! Poor Enoch Powell!

I don't think I've ever heard real Gaelic, but your description of it makes German seem much softer, as was my initial experience of hearing it spoken in Germany, & in speaking it myself. It's interesting how people can use deep-throat sounds in speech, as I learned in southern Africa, where I heard Sindebele, a version of Zulu, which features many glottal 'clicks,' as you know. Would some 'scholar' be able to prove that Zulus are really Black Irish? Both my families come from the Orkneys & Hebrides. One "Israel Identity" Idiot claimed that people from the Hebrides are 'really' Hebrews. Aargh! Such nuts also claim that the Saxons are "Sons of Isaac," so everyone is Jewish in origin, except for those who claim to be Jews. I understand that so-called British Israel was funded by the Rothschilds to split Germans from Brits prior to World War I. That's when The House of Hannover became The House of Windsor & the Battenbergs became Mountbattens. Presto, changed! I wish you Strength through Joy, as ever. ORION!
