Hail Sigrin! Your letter reveals extremely dangerous ignorance, so before you start moving around outside the ZOG-gulag, you'd better inform yourself, pronto, as they say in Brownest Yakima.

You'd best avoid anything to do with the ZOG agent provocateur "Hasidic" Harold Covington, who seems willing to set up his 'comrades' for unwelcome ZOG attention. I understand he hangs out or roosts in Longview. Any dealings you have with him are bound to hurt you.

I don't know how you receive news, or if you do. Imagine a military commander who does not know the nature of the enemy, nor his positions in a war. Imagine that this commander prefers to drill his troops on a parade ground, when they don't have their noses buried in a jewbook. As the enemy takes up his ambush positions, he could only marvel at the commander's utter incompetence.

The first thing you should know is that ZOG now has laws, as if it needed them, to abduct, incarcerate & torture U.S. citizens without charge or trial. The pretext for this 'treatment' is not deeds, but words. Got that? WORDS. The Padilla Case & the Liberty City 7 Case conform to this criterion. In the Liberty City 7 Case, the defendants were charged with NOT informing the ZOG about the words of a ZOG agent. Suppose that you were told by a cop that he was planning a bank robbery. If you did not tell that to the police, you could be prosecuted for "conspiracy." Now, under U.S. "terrorism" laws, which refuse to define "terrorism," you could be accused of "bank robbery," as well.

Don't be so swift to waste yourself. Actions occur within a social, economic & political context. It is said that "Politics is the art of the possible," & that "Politics & comedy are largely matters of timing." History tends to support these observations. Bismarck said that the job of a politician was to grasp History's skirts as she rushes past & to cling to them as long as possible.

Over the decades I've noted self-styled leaders who confuse their lives with the course of history. They think, "After me, the deluge." Of course, the deluge comes on its own time, regardless of the individual's lifespan. The blighting seems to confuse ego with history, since it features 'leaders' who prate "me-me-me" & "gimme, gimme, gimme" incessantly. They figure that, since they are not long for this world, they might as well go out with a bang, regardless of those whom they hurt. Responsible leaders do no such thing. They adhere to a correct & consistent strategy, regardless of their personal schedule, & they strive to protect their people by their wise decisions.

You really need to learn how to distinguish between strategy & tactics, within the socio-political context. The ELF has been in the news in regard to their alleged connection with the burning of some high-priced houses. Now, start thinking: What effect does house-burning have on the general public? Does it tend to recruit support for the ELF? Who benefits from the action? ZOG does, for the arson fits neatly into its program for domestic terrorism, toward the building of its police state. Acts are not separate from context. It could be that the crisis in the housing market made the insurance on the property more valuable than the property itself, so why not blame the ELF? Those who favor action above all usually wind up working for the enemy. The Japanese have the martial art of judo in which the opponent's strength is used against him, as with dumb Goyim. We have McVeigh to thank for helping ZOG to cover up its Waco Massacre, for example. Whose side was he on? Regardless of his own beliefs, his action served to benefit the ZOG. DUH!

It appears to me that you may be able to learn from your own experience that action without knowledge incurs penalties, such as gulag residence. I hope you can profit by your unfortunate experience, so you don't stick to a losing formula, which is much more dangerous for you nowadays, thanks be to ZOG. I advise you to think before doing. You might find that to be a healthy change. If you do not shun Covington, the next time you go inside, there likely won't be much left of you capable of correspondence. So wake up & wise up. ORION!
