Authorities see tensions rising as groups grow

Carl D. Wynn Jr., who last fall posed as a U.S. border agent and wrongly suggested that a Little Rock construction company had hired illegal immigrants, has come to symbolize how the divisive immigration debate can progress from legal expressions of opposition to offensive action.

Wynn, also accused of attempting to sabotage the same company by planting tire-ripping spikes outside the business, has quickly come to represent a "troubling" development within the radical ranks of the anti-immigration movement, said Little Rock U.S. Attorney Tim Griffin, whose office won a guilty plea last month from the laborer.

Since 2000, the number of extremist groups has increased by 40%, according to the Southern Poverty Law Center, which closely tracks the groups' activities. In the past two years, the growth has been largely driven by the emergence of about 144 "nativist" groups that oppose immigration.

"When folks try to take law enforcement matters into their own hands, it creates a potentially dangerous situation," Griffin said. "Mr. Wynn's actions are troubling to us."

Charles Frahm, FBI deputy assistant director for counterterrorism, said there is increasing concern that the most radical elements of the anti-immigration wing may be "susceptible" to recruitment by white supremacists and other groups inclined toward violence.

Police departments across the country also are uneasy as political divisions regarding immigration enforcement have raised local tensions.

"This is certainly a concern for every police chief in the country," said Charlotte-Mecklenburg, N.C. Police Chief Darrel Stephens, president of the national Major City Chiefs Association. "As long as the issue remains unsettled, the tension grows."

Perhaps not since the anti-government militia movement came to prominence in the early 1990s, the Southern Poverty Law Center says, have so many groups embraced such a common campaign for dealing with what they describe as failed government policy.

"The infection is spreading," said Mark Potok, editor of the center's Intelligence Report.

"It's no longer unusual to hear vilifying fairy tales of immigrant-borne secret conspiracies and massive criminality on radio, cable television and even in the mouths of pandering politicians," he said.

Among the most abrasive figures on the anti-immigration movement, according to the center, is Donald Pauly of Nevada.

In an interview with USA TODAY, Pauly's voice is calm but serious.

Frustrated by the surge of illegal immigrants into Las Vegas, the self-employed electrical engineer formed the Emigration Party of Nevada Headquartered largely on the Internet, Pauly has advanced some radical ideas for dealing with illegal immigrants. He openly advocates the deployment of government snipers to the porous southwest border and favors the forced sterilization of Mexican women after the birth of their first child.

"For the time being, we do not associate with anyone who is violent unless in self-defense," Pauly said in a later e-mail message. "However, I remind you of this quote of Thomas Jefferson's:

"The tree of Liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots & tyrants. It is its natural manure."

The radical discourse has become increasingly common across the USA.

Last year, an Arizona jury leveled a judgment of nearly $100,000 against a rancher for threatening a Mexican-American family.

Prior to the court decision, the rancher, Roger Barnett, gained national attention for his efforts to round up illegal immigrants who had cut paths through his property.

"There is not a clear understanding (among the public) of who is ultimately responsible for enforcing immigration laws," Stephens said. "The tension will only increase until the issue is resolved."

Say no to amnesty

To the editor — During the 1970s and '80s, our government officials and economic leaders insisted we reduce family size to prevent environmental degradation, depleting natural resources and a lower quality of life. We complied.

The following information is obtained from <http://www.numbersusa.com/overpopulation/ourlostfuture.html>

Today, the government tells us we need more immigrant population to fund the baby boom generation during retirement. So, either they are lying now, or they were lying then. Since the 1965 immigration act, we have increased our population by 50 percent, mostly from immigration, while ancestors of our Founding Fathers are dying off, realizing children are unaffordable unless you are wealthy or on welfare.

We have major water shortages in the United States, yet still more immigrants come, as our government demands more conservation from U.S. citizens. The United States has the third largest population in the world, next only to China and India; what they have in common is poverty.

These same officials insist immigrants are doing jobs we won't do, which is false; we can't do these jobs for less than livable wages. The government explains how immigrants will finance SSI and Medicare for U.S. retirees, yet immigrants spend $1 in taxes for every $3 they receive in social services, according to <http://www.washingtontimes.com/national/20070405-123141-6880r.htm>

Our government is corrupt and must be replaced. Until then, go to www.numbersusa.com where you can e-mail free pre-written faxes to our leaders condemning their proposed amnesty, lest they be voted out of office. Do your patriotic duty, or live in the squalor you will have created by doing nothing.

Dear Tom! It's always good to get your letters, which are great food for thought, & certainly not pontifical, since we share foreign & domestic experiences which add to our own insights. I've heard nasty things said of "intellectuals" who babble futilely in ivory towers, & I have the same criticism for those who spin theories in academia, without reference to reality. These specimens are similar to laptop warriors who conduct virtual combat in air-conditioned comfort, rather than the infantry grunts who must endure slogging under the weight of weapons & ammo in extreme heat or cold, while being under enemy fire. If one's education lacks hard physical labor experience, his education is incomplete, for he has no idea of human capabilities nor of human limitations. British General Fuller described Hitler as a realist because he knew what it was to work for a living, whereas, the commie kikes knew very little about the "workers" for whom they claimed to speak.

I'm amused at the frequent "heat advisories" on the jewsmedia. In this part of Northern Mexico alias Washington State, we have temperatures fluctuating around 100° Fahrenheit. Well, I've experienced temperatures of at least 110° in California, including the Mojave Desert. After a few 'learning experiences,' one knows that he should cover up to beat the heat, drink plenty of liquids & take 1 or 2 salt tablets before exerting himself in excess of 100° temperatures. In "Loserville," KY, I worked as a groundskeeper in 100° temperatures, with 100% humidity by eating normal food & drinking adequate fluids + the occasional salt tablet which I'd brought from Africa, where they also came in handy. If you run out of salt, you have an insatiable thirst & exhaustion. I had that experience, along with the fire crew I was on, so once was enough! I do my normal amount of walking in these temperatures, since that's my sole means of transportation, but I wear appropriate clothing: Long trousers, sturdy shoes, a thick white, long-sleeve shirt & a proper pith helmet, with my usual haversack slung over one shoulder. A White man on foot is rare, so my proper summer attire is taken for granted: All Gringos are crazy anyway, as they say here in Brownest Yakima, usually in Spanish. Well, I dress for comfort, not for fashion, so any resemblance to my attire & some 19th century Brit colonial grunt is purely coincidental, as is my being a former Brit colonial grunt in the 20th century, through no fault of my own. The things we do for the quiet life!

I'm glad to read that you are finally getting some rain. Maybe you get lots of wild flowers afterwards, as in parts of California.

I agree with your observations on Judeo-Americans' lack of taste, in which "bigger is better" & profit comes before practicality. Economist Werner Sombart declared that "America is the distilled essence of Judaism," so ostentatious materialism tries to make up for lack of taste & quality. It does not succeed. I also note that bad singers strive to overcome their handicap by singing louder. "More is better," so they say. I just switch them off or leave the auditorium, for my ears' benefit. Yes, in lieu of substance, just build showy facades, like the traditional false-fronts of Wild West towns. Who were they attempting to fool?

Yes, National Socialism has been called "Natural Socialism," for it was based correctly in Nature. Consider social quality: Should the fittest be encouraged to reproduce, or the least fit? German NS favored the fit. The Dark Forces of Judeo-Capitalism, Judeo-Communism & Judeo-Christianity favor the proliferation of the least fit, at the expense of the fit. Who determines who is fit or unfit, morons ask? Well, anyone on public welfare who lives at tax-payers' expense is unfit to reproduce, & thereby add burdens upon the fit, so as to discourage their reproduction. Whites are being told that they should reduce their reproduction even further, because every child creates an immense "carbon footprint," toward "global-warming." Non-Whites don't receive such messages, for any curtailment on their breeding rates would be deemed "racist." As one writer stated in his letter to the local jewsmedia editor: Whites were instructed to limit their reproduction on behalf of the environment. So we did, & then our ZOG tells us that we need immigrants from the Turd World because we weren't reproducing sufficiently! The writer notes that our ZOG was lying then, but is it lying now? The economic status of California alias Mexifornia shows the results of "cheap laborers" whose many dependents are funded by the tax-payers. Tax-funded health care loses money because the non-tax-payers overburden the system. This occurs in Britain & Canada where aliens abuse the healthcare system, as well as in the USA.

There are growing indications that our Zionist Bankster Masters wish to follow their recipe of The Protocols of Zion in regard to "the inoculation of diseases," as a means of population reduction, in an anti-social manner, as usual, so that this money mafia can enhance their power & profit out of suffering, decay & chaos. Such a deal! All the best. DOWZ! ORION!
