

JESUS CHRIST: PROTECTOR OF EVIL, AN ARYAN ANALYSIS DERIVED FROM JEW MYTHOLOGY by E. Thomson

Instinctively, I felt that there was something distinctly unwholesome about the mythology of Jesus, as conveyed to me by scripture and by the merchants of "God". My thanks therefore go to various rabbis who have assisted me by their discourses on Judaism, which is the basis of Christianity.

The Jesus myth, like the Yahweh myth, impress the Aryan thinker as a hodge podge of conflicting testimonies. In an Anglo-Saxon court of law, such testimonies would be job for sane jurors to sort out, such as the number of sons Yahweh supposedly had, ranging from many to 1 to none, all depending upon which section of scripture one reads, and on which preacher-for-profit one hears. Since Christian mythology is derived from Jew mythology, we should use the biblical/rabbinical tenets of Judaism as our starting point.

Like Judaism, Christianity consists largely of puerile piety, pseudo-profundity and murderous immorality, all deeply encrusted by ecclesiastical excrement, on behalf of its profits. As the Aryan thinker explores this dismal swamp of obfuscation, certain principal factors can be noted, just as an explorer in an actual swamp would note its wetness and its fauna and foliage: the theme of good and evil derived from Yahweh, who created everything in foreknowledge of those who would commit such deeds, before he created them to fulfill his plan for the universe. In theory, Yahweh enjoys his sadistic urges by punishing his own helpless creatures, who merely exist to do that which he planned for them, from the beginning of time. One way in which his creatures may escape Yahweh's fiendish wrath is to find a scapegoat on which to load their sins. In other words, Judaism promotes the victimization of the innocent, in order to protect the guilty, so they can continue to sin in good health and prosperity. The killing of the firstborn as a holocaust to gain special favors from Yahweh is also an ancient Jewish custom. Today, even the Gentiles do it: if you want that car, abort your baby. Yahweh pays!

Jesus supported this tenet of Judaism when he allegedly inoculated some innocent swine with evil spirits, and then drove them over a cliff, to their deaths. This fate was allegedly accorded Jesus, himself, when he supposedly took on the sins of the world, as an innocent scapegoat. In other words, Jesus is the eternal protector of evil-doers!

How do we know that Jesus fulfilled the role of scapegoat, rather than that of a Christ (Jew-king) or messiah? Again, we go back to the tenets of Judaism: Yahweh is defined as a male god, and a messiah is defined as a MAN, not a god or part thereof. This man is protected by Yahweh, so by definition, he cannot be scourged by other men, nor crucified, as was done to Jesus, according to Christians. This is proof, say the Jews, that Jesus was not the messiah who had come to rescue living Jews from their earthly enemies, as any messiah must, if he deserves that title. Not only was Jesus guilty of blasphemy by claiming that he was the son of Yahweh, and therefore "the messiah", but he fell further into disrepute when his storytellers claimed that he was Yahweh's sacrifice on behalf of all evil-doers, that is, a scapegoat, who could be neither messiah nor god, according to Judaism. The Old and New Testaments remain in conflict, as do their believers, but the fundamental tenet of Judaism is common to both sects: the punishment of the innocent on behalf of the guilty.

As I concluded in "The Cabalistic Curse of Christianity", the Jews who contrived this mirror image cult of Judaism succeeded in making its believers into willing scapegoats, with their doctrine of forgiveness. Not only that, but Jews have long used Christianity as their getaway vehicle when the Gentiles are restless, and the heat is on, just by claiming to be 'converts', as so many marranos or false converts did in "Jew-free" Spain, around 1492. But, in general, the Jesus variety of scapegoats are so supine, they are willing to become Jew-slaves, as well as Jew-sacrifices. Such a deal!

Christians are taught that they must sacrifice themselves in this world for rewards in "the next world", while Jews are taught to sacrifice others for rewards in this world. Hence, the Jews are lovers of life, be they ever so perverse and obnoxious, while their Christian victims long for death, albeit hypocritically, as they seek earthly pleasures and sing their funeral dirges in their fart-halls. If evil can be defined as victimization, then those who willingly serve evil by agreeing to be its victims are not innocent, but are guilty accomplices, as the historical record of Christianity proves. Those who facilitate the evil-doers do evil themselves, contrary to their pious pretensions. Their forgiveness proves that they know what they do on behalf of evil, whenever they forgive their victimizers.

Those who seek to do evil in this world should be shunned and/or punished by good people in this world, if we are to have any valid definition of "good", as opposed to evil. It is up to Christians to decide if they will become men instead of scapegoats. ORION!
