EDITORIAL

Number 3 - The monthly magazine of the Nationalist Alliance - May 2005

Well the four yearly fraud known as the General Election is now upon us. On May 5th we shall learn the astonishing fact that either the same set of people have got in again - in this case the Marxist-Liberal New Labour or the Capitalist-Liberal Conservative Party. Real differences? Nil! Behind them and bleating from the same liberalist songbook trails the Liberal Democrats - real differences with main parties? Nil! Whoever wins, the White people of Britain lose! Similarities between the Old gang parties?

- Immigration and Race - despite some bluster over restricting Asylum seekers. Labour, Social Democrat and Tory are all heavily committed multi-racialist parties fielding many ethnic candidates.

- Europe - again all three 'different' parties are totally pro-Europe. They are all determined to one degree or another to seeing British values, traditions, currency and sovereignty scrapped.

- Internationalism - they are internationalists, each working towards a form of World Government. They are happy to see Britain part of a Bankers' Europe; NATO; the United Nations; the World Bank and many other aspects of the growing New World Order.

We could go on but the overall picture is same-old, same-old. All three of the major parties have NO difference in essential principles (or lack of them!). They squabble over minor things such as tax rate levels as if this or some other fairly irrelevant policy has any meaning and at the same time blithely ignore the fact that our country, along with our Race and Nation is fast sinking into the North Sea. So a vote for any of the old parties is a vote for the death of your country.

Again the devious and dubious Tories, led by the Michael 'Dracula' Howard have started spouting on about the race issue and have plastered the land with posters which loudly proclaim 'Are you thinking what we are thinking?'. Just as Thatcher did in 1978 to steal the White Nationalist vote, so the truly awful Howard (about whom a shroud of mystery hangs as to when his relatives arrived in the UK) is now bleating on about clamping down on Asylum Seekers. Of course any British Nationalist worth their salt knows that the Tories will do NOTHING about immigration if they get elected - juts as they did nothing when they got elected in 1979 - taking hundreds of thousands of votes from the National Front and which helped to bring about the demise of that Movement. The NF put all its eggs in the Election basket and as a result was smashed when the results showed most of their votes had been stolen by the lying Tories.

The lying Tories are at it again. The tragedy is that millions of patriotic Whites will be taken in by these packs of Tory lies and will again waste their votes. Trail-ing on their coat-tails are UKIP and Veritas, both of whom have also 'suddenly' discovered unlimited immigration is helping destroy Britain. We have been telling them that for the last forty years and more! Veritas in particular the newly formed brain-child of the oily Kilroy-Silk is banging the drum loudly that THEY have the answer to Britain's immigration problems.

The BNP is fielding 110 candidates, the NF a small number and the Freedom Party has a good chance of a real result in the West Midlands. We will have to see what May 5th brings before we can see what Tory lies on immigration and race have on the British nationalist vote. The Tory move does not bode well for White Nationalism.

This is why we must recognise that as it stands the British electoral system is a total fraud and sham.

With the new opportunities for ballot rigging in the postal voting system and the fact that we have a 'first past the post' system, will always ensure the dominance of the ZOG parties at this and any other election. The Nationalist Alliance demands electoral reform and the introduction of proportional representation! We need to replace this ramshackle way of electing a Government with a sensible and vastly reformed system in which the real hopes and wishes of our folk are reflected in the make up of the Government -we must not rely on elections only but build up and mass organisation and unstoppable Movement of White Nationalism in which elections will be just one part. Our aim is a true revolution of ideas and government.

Only a true White Nationalist government can save Britain now!

AS I SEE IT...

The criticism from John Tyndall in stating that there is no need for another party, (Spearhead, April 2005) is completely erroneous. The facts of the matter is that the Nationalist Alliance is providing an umbrella organization under which smaller nationalist parties will be able to develop within the N.A. and to be able to expand. Parties who join the N.A. will in no way sacrifice their sovereignty, identity or individuality.

Such a case in point is the White Nationalist Party which, due to the refusal of the Electoral Commission to recognize it as it contains the offensive word, 'White' in its title, is, at the moment, unable to contest elections. With the advent of the Nationalist Alliance, WNP candidates can stand under that banner and be able to present its aims and ideals to the general public.

Another case is that smaller isolated groups of disaffected ex-BNP members can carry on fighting for the nationalist cause in spite of the determination of the corrupt present BNP leadership to stop them. There are many in the ranks of the Nationalist Alliance who are still enthusiastic supporters of the original aims of that party.

Since Mr. Tyndall's days of Party Leader, there are several thousand new members who have either forgotten him or have never known him. They are not very likely to back an unknown outsider in a two-horse race for the chairmanship.

Mr Tyndall believes quite honestly that he has sufficient supporters to carry the day at a confrontation with Griffin; sadly he is wrong. There are a great many ex-BNP members who would gladly back him in a leadership contest. Unfortunately, after having either being expelled or having resigned rather than accept the 'new-look' manifesto these supporters, now outside the BNP, no longer have a vote and the chances of their being allowed back into the Griffin fold are a definite nil!

I read Mr Tyndall's argument against the forming of a new party and he does indeed, put forward a case. However, he admits that the number of ex-BNP members is now in its hundreds; none of whom, however supportive of him, can do a ha'porth of good without the power of their vote. It is a lot to ask of disgruntled members still in the BNP to remain in a party they now despise in the hope of a victory, the chances of which, are dwindling day by day. How then, does he ever hope to gain sufficient support from those members still within the ranks of the party?

I have known John for a great many years and have always admired and respected his leadership when I was a member. I sincerely believe he is an honest and dedicated man and it gives me no pleasure at all to see him battering his head against a brick wall. My advice, for what it's worth is this: John, you're in a hole and the first thing to do when in a hole is to stop digging!

I took a very long hard look at the invitation to accept a council position on the N.A. but after several meetings with the leadership, I accepted. Furthermore, I have no reservations whatsoever in urging the full membership of the WNP to enter into and support this new venture, the Nationalist Alliance.

FREEDOM QUOTES

"How quickly a free country can slide into the habits of a police state, and how simple it is to intimidate and harass those who object."

--Robin Page, Countryside Rights Campaigner (arrested for making a case for equal rights with other minorities)

"If a nation values anything more than freedom, it will lose its freedom; and the irony of it is that if it is comfort or money that it values more, it will lose that too."

--Somerset Maugham.

"If liberty means anything at all, it means the right to tell people what they do not want to hear."

--George Orwell.

"Sentence first, verdict afterwards!" the Queen decrees in Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," a miscarriage of justice to which poor Alice attempts to object. "Hold your tongue!" the queen retorts, before adding, "Off with her head!"

--A shadow is falling across the free world.

"It is easy on a good day, when the sun shines, to march and carry the flag high. But when the storm breaks loose and the sky darkens, the flags are tattered, then the true fighters will be the ones still marching"

NOW PEOPLE RISE UP AND STORM BREAK LOOSE!

The final minute of the final hour of the enslavement of the British people is upon us! Are we being melodramatic? No! Never before have our ZOG controlled masters cracked down so hard and so unmercifully on those who would speak, write and act on behalf of their embattled people. Never before have the Race Laws and Public Order Acts been so unflinching in their persecution of White freedom fighters.

We are told that in the Nationalist Alliance, we are in the "wilderness". It is a wilderness that most British people will recognise. It is the wilderness of a devastated land devoid of industry. It is a wilderness of generations of White youths with no prospects apart from what the alien drug pusher on the corner can offer. It is a wilderness where Brussels Euro-crats can dictate every little detail of our day to day lives. It is a wilderness of savagery and lawlessness on our streets. It is a wilderness of hordes of bogus asylum seekers and illegal Third World refugees pouring across our borders daily. It is a wilderness of multi-racial madness. We are at home in this wilderness. We have seen it grow and we are prepared to stand against it!

What can be done? We must unite the White people of this country as never before behind the old battle standards of our heroic past. They can call us "racists", we no longer care. They can call us "fascists and nazis" -- we no longer care. They can throw our people into jail our fine us -- others will fill the places of these martyrs for our White race. We will not hide behind the false smiles and handshakes of the decadent maggot ridden Westminster system. We seek its overthrow and replacement by a new style of strong authoritarian government. We will not shirk the challenge.

Our Movement is still relatively small but is growing quickly. We know that as the situation worsens, then that those new members will grow into a stream, that stream into a river, that river into a flood, a deluge that will smash down the rotten ramshackle locked gates of ZOG and their New World Order masters!

Now people -- rise up!

Now storm -- break loose!

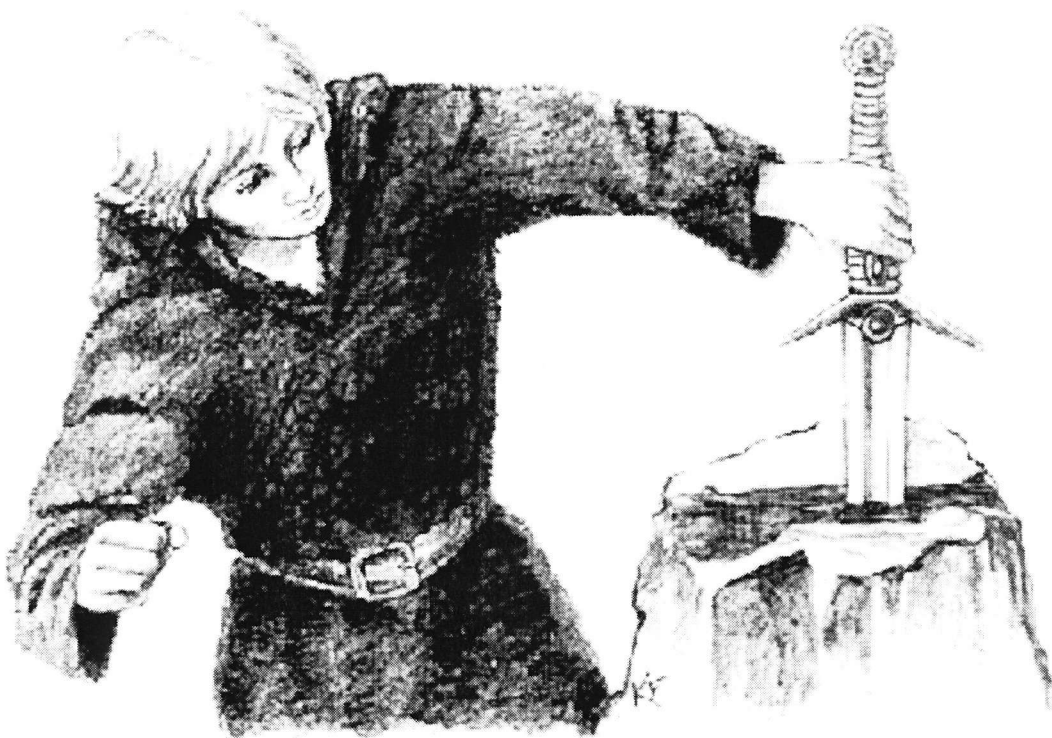

England, My England

England, My England,
Such pride I embrace,
To be a descendant
Of the Albion Race.
My ancestral home, My beloved country;
Patrimonial bequest for my progeny.
Such wealth of heritage,
Triumphant, Victorious,
Steeped in History,
Majestic, glorious.
Copious inventions, cures and inventors,
Mighty legions to protect
Our indigenous mentors.
Unsurpassed landscapes,
A land of sheer grace;
From forest to moorland
This most wondrous place.
The Yorkshire Dales,
Dorset Downs,
Sherwood Forest,
Quaint market towns;
Magnificent churches,
Rolling hills;
Farming, Steelworks,
Textile mills;
Coalmines, dockyards, factories,
Bustling towns; home of industry;
Forever I hold deep in my heart,
This vision of England before it was marred.
A country of greatness, once renowned,
Transformed into a human dumping ground.
The politically correct herd

In all their zeal,
Spout multiculturalism, diversity
And all that spiel.
Second class citizens
Are we destined to be?
A downtrodden minority
In our own country.
Aryan beginnings on this sacred soil,
Built by our forefathers
With blood, sweat and toil;
Soon to be snatched from our helpless hands,
By a silent invasion on our mighty land.
Oh, how it saddens me
When I gaze at my kin,
And reflect upon the turmoil
Our country is in;
Will our offspring inherit
A rich glorious Nation,
Or be encumbered
By race relations?
Will the heritage I so adore,
Remain upon our Hallowed shores?
I hope beyond hope
That one day it will cease,
And that we can vanquish
This pernicious disease.
That our land can become
Once again Great,
For our future generations,
Before it's too late;
That we can be saviours
Of our own pure race,

TOWTON REMEMBERED BY NATIONALIST ALLIANCE

Dave and Joe, NA members in front of NA wreath

28th March 2005 saw eight members of the Nationalist Alliance pay a memorial visit to Towton battlefield to honour the 28,000 Englishmen who died that day. A wreath of white roses was attached to the Towton Celtic Cross.

March 29, 1461

Where: Towton, Yorkshire

Who?: Yorkist army under Edward IV vs. Lancastrian forces led by the Duke of Somerset on behalf of Henry VI and Queen Margaret

Why: The bloody Wars of the Roses dragged on as the Houses of York and Lancaster vied for power. Although Edward of York had initially been reluctant to proclaim himself king, his heavy defeat at the second Battle of St. Albans convinced him that he needed to take that final, irrevocable step of rebellion. No sooner had the dust settled on that defeat than Edward was acclaimed king in London.

Meanwhile, instead of following up his triumph at St. Albans with a decisive march on the capital, Henry VI opted for caution and withdrew his men north. The actual decision to pull back was probably Henry's, though he was easily led, particularly by his strong-willed queen, Margaret of Anjou.

So the Lancastrians withdrew to their power base in the north, probably destroying as they did so their only real hope of a quick end to the conflict. Edward IV threw caution aside, quickly raised a fresh army, and pushed north on his enemy's heels. He caught up with them near the river Aire, where both armies spent the night on the cold, snowy ground.

The Battle

Edward sent a detachment under Lord Fitzwalter to seize the bridge at Ferrybridge. They found the bridge broken down, but unguarded, and spent the day repairing it. Fitzwalter's men were caught completely unaware by a dawn attack led by Lord Clifford and the Yorkists were forced back across the river.

Edward immediately sent another force upstream to cross the river at Castleford and cut off Clifford's retreat. This fresh force caught Clifford's men and killed most of them within sight of their lines. Somerset, for reasons known only to himself, sent no troops to help the unfortunate Clifford, but instead waited for the advance of the main Yorkist army.

Now the snow whipped up, driving full into the face of the Lancastrians. This made their attempts to return arrow fire laughable, and Edward's archers inflicted great damage. Perhaps because of this, Somerset ordered his men to advance first.

In a terrible hand to hand fight that lasted all day the Lancastrians pushed their foe back, yard by bloody yard. The bodies piled high in the freezing cold, and fresh troops had to climb over corpses to reach the front lines. Edward's cause looked almost lost, when reinforcements arrived in the shape of men under the command of the Duke of Norfolk.

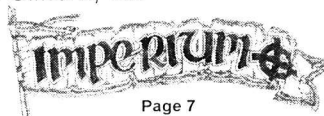

Norfolk's men changed the course of the battle, and now it was the Lancastrians who were pushed back, across the field we now know as Bloody Meadow. Finally they could take no more, and Somerset's men broke and ran. At least as many perished in the panic that followed, and the death toll may have reached 28,000 men or more. Towton was by far the bloodiest battle of the Wars of the Roses.

The Results

The Lancastrian cause suffered an immense blow at Towton; many of their leaders were killed or captured, and King Henry and Queen Margaret were forced to flee north towards Scotland. Yet despite the slaughter (more men died at Towton than in any other battle on British soil), nothing was settled.

Over the next decade a further seven major battles were fought until the Battle of Tewkesbury in 1471 brought about a lull in the struggle. But for the moment, Edward IV was free to prepare for his coronation and enjoy his rule.

The Nationalist Alliance wants to make this a yearly memorial event!

ISRAEL

- STILL A BANDIT TERROR STATE!

One of the cardinal building blocks of White Nationalist ideology has always been the knowledge and opposition to the bandit and illegal state of Israel. Israel has no right in law to exist. The British "Balfour Declaration" which led to its establishment was in direct contravention to a pact declared with the Arabs during the First World War, when they helped to vanquish the Turks from the Middle East.

Now some nationalists groups are proclaiming that the struggle against the state of Israel by five million Palestinians deprived of their homelands has nothing to do with Britain. Of course it has! Support, or even recognition of the illegal Israeli state, will alienate tens of millions to Britain's international standing (or what's left of it!). What is more, Britain played a LEADING role in establishing the state of Israel and owes a debt of gratitude to the Arab people. We reneged on our treaty and the British army suffered many deaths in Palestine at the hands of the Jewish terror groups - Irgun Zwei Lumi and the notorious and bloodthirsty Stern Gang. Long forgotten is the blowing up of the King David Hotel in Jerusalem with the loss of many British lives, the hanging of two British sergeants kidnapped by the Stern Gang and the letter bomb campaign against British military individuals in Britain which resulted in maiming's and death.

Now Israel clicks its fingers and the rest of the world jumps. Not quite. The Muslim Arab world doesn't jump at Israel's beck and call. The Arab world with its vast resources in oil, is the one dominant factor opposing Zionist expansionism and its global ramifications.

We oppose Muslim militancy and Muslim terrorism in mainland Britain and support the policy of humane phased repatriation of all Asian immigrants to their countries of origin. We do not however declare a stupid and misguided "Holy war" against the Muslim world, and particularly the Arab sector of the Muslim world.

The one force that Zionism and its New World Order partners fear is the Muslim/Arab world. Witness the knee jerk hysterical reactions of the NWO when Al'Quadi took out the Twin Towers of the New York World Trade Centre.

We deplore of course the loss of Aryan lives that ensued, firefighters, rescue workers and police especially, BUT under the guise of reacting and launching a world war against Muslim terrorism, the NWO/Zionists are also pushing in laws to disable the world wide network of White Nationalist groups. They are trying to push through a law in the UK designed to make criticism of religion a criminal offence. They are trying to destroy our presence on the Internet. They have introduced in the UK, draconian anti-"terrorist" powers giving the right of arrest and imprisonment WITHOUT TRIAL to the police, under the guise that it is an anti-Muslim terror law. When might it be used against racial-nationalists though?

On Sunday 3rd March 2004, a lone Palestinian gunman assassinated ten Israelis on the occupied West Bank of Palestine. The gunmen who waged war against Israel on behalf of Al-Aqsa Martyrs Brigade, an armed offshoot of Arafat's Fatah Movement, was one man in a long line of Palestinians who are taking the war, individually to the Israelis. The Arabs know that against the IDF

Election quote...

"I've been a very, very strong supporter of the Jewish community and of Israel, and will always be so."

(Israeli Defence Forces), they have no chance in pitched battles as the wars in the last few decades have shown. However against lone wolf Palestinians and suicide bombers, the IDF is almost powerless.

The typical Israeli reaction to yesterday's killings was the bombing of Bethlehem and Ramallah. The shootings are in response to the Israeli attacks on two Palestinian refugee camps in Nablus and Jenin where at least twenty Palestinian civilians were killed recently.

"Imperium" condemns terrorism as a political weapon, BUT we can understand people resorting to it when their lands are seized and all LEGAL means of redress of their grievances comes to nothing.

The West Bank and the Gaza Strip are again under threat of TOTAL Zionist occupation. Israel is NOT the place for a Jewish homeland but a hotbed of trouble for the rest of the world, and this should have been recognised many years ago and the Jewish people offered a less contentious homeland.

Indeed, many early Jewish Zionists would have been happy to accept another place for a national Jewish homeland and were surprised when Israel was offered to them on a plate. The construction of the state of Israel has benefited nobody - but has produced millions of unsettled Arabs, and it has to be said, very nervous Jewish settlers up at the sharp end of World Zionism's plans.

We leave the last word to extreme Zionist and Israeli Tourism Minister (!), Benny Elon, in which he stated this recently:- "We will lose a war of attrition. The Palestinian Authority is an enemy and its infrastructure has to be destroyed and all those who carry weapons and make war have to be killed." (What, no prisoners Mr Elon - and doesn't the IDF carry weapons and make war on civilians?)

"We must secure the Existence of our people and a future for White children"

COWARD BLAIR MAY DODGE REFERENDUM!

Britain is unlikely to hold a referendum on the European constitution as planned in 2006 if the polls in France are right and the country rejects the constitution in its referendum on May 29, government sources admitted recently.

The news may throw the combustible issue of Europe on to the election agenda. It is the first time Labour has entertained the prospect of shelving the referendum.

The Tories responded by promising to hold a referendum within six months of a general election - even if France rejects the treaty.

The shift became apparent when the foreign secretary, Jack Straw, admitted for the first time he did not know if a referendum would go ahead in Britain if there was a no vote in France. Sources at No 10 said: "If there is no constitution on which to hold a referendum, there will be no referendum."

Mr Straw said a rejection by France would have to be put to a meeting of EU heads of state. He said he could not predict what would happen. Asked on ITV's Jonathan Dimbleby programme if the UK referendum would go ahead, Mr Straw said: "It all depends ... I've no idea what is going to happen."

Previously, the government had been adamant that Britain would hold a referendum even if other countries voted no, a point reiterated by Tony Blair at the launch of Labour's manifesto last week.

A yes vote in Britain in autumn 2006 had been seen by some as an opportunity for Blair to stand aside for Gordon Brown with an assured legacy as the man who reconciled Britain to Europe. The loss of such a date in the third-term calendar raises fresh questions over when Blair might stand aside.

A no vote in France would also put pressure on Blair to find acceptable minimalist reforms or see the EU evolve into a diffuse multi-speed block. Mr Straw said recently: "Each country is under a separate commitment to put the constitution to a referendum or get it formally ratified by its parliament. Quite separately, if any country votes no, it will go before the European council, the summit, and I can't say what decision will be made".

Private briefings from ministers confirmed there would be a "long pause" as Europe, largely under a British presidency, considered the crisis.

One said: "If Britain alone votes no, it is a problem for Britain. If France votes no, it is a problem for Europe. We would wait to see what the French had to say, but it is inconceivable that the constitution could go ahead."

Unless the French rejection is a narrow one, the Foreign Office expects EU heads of state to halt the ratification process altogether on the basis that the treaty had been rejected by one of its leading and largest supporters. A no vote in France may be followed by a rejection by the Dutch on June 1.

Fifteen polls in France, once seen as the motor of integration, have shown a majority likely to reject the constitution, partly in protest at the leadership of the president, Jacques Chirac, and partly in opposition to the pro-market sentiments supposedly enshrined in the constitution. Labour has not been eager to advertise the possibility of canceling the referendum for fear the Tories will interpret it as an attempt to circumvent the party's commitment to put the issue of Europe to the people.

With Britain due to take over the EU presidency in July, a re-elected Blair would have to try to put together the fragments of the constitution to see if a less ambitious consensus could be assembled.

A government source said: "We would not be in a crisis, but in stasis while we worked out what to do. We would have to muddle along as best we could".

The EU council's new voting structure proposed by the constitution does not come into force until 2009, while the number of EU commissioners will not be reduced until 2014.

The EU would have to rely on different treaties, old voting systems and a cumbersome dual foreign policy leadership. Britain would also have to fight to keep Turkey's prospective membership on the agenda.

British sources said President Chirac was being poorly supported by those who backed the constitution. Commenting on the crisis in France, the Liberal Democrat foreign affairs spokesman, Menzies Campbell, said: "If the French vote against, then I think it is very unlikely that there'll be a referendum anywhere else and, in particular, in the UK because the French vote against will bring the process to a halt and there will have to be reconsideration."

The shadow foreign secretary, Michael Ancram, said: "We have seen more mixed messages from Jack Straw which suggests that Tony Blair might again plan to say one thing but then do another."

Bank boost for British Indians!

(Scandal of bank for Indians only!)

Lloyds TSB branches will offer Indian mortgages

British Indians living in the UK will be able to use branches of Lloyds TSB bank to arrange a rupee mortgage to buy property in India.

Lloyds TSB's India banking service will also permit free money transfers between the UK and India.

The service is aimed at the UK's 1.2 million strong Indian community, many of whom have property, investments and savings in India.

But the service will not be available to people of non-Indian descent!

In order to launch its India Banking Service, Lloyds TSB has entered into partnership with Indian bank ICICI.

Two accounts

Customers wanting to use the service must first open an account with Lloyds TSB, which will then open a second account on their behalf with ICICI.

This will allow customers to transfer money between the Lloyds TSB and ICICI accounts for free.

In addition, the customer will have access to ICICI's home loan service, which will enable them to apply for a rupee mortgage to buy property in India, for themselves or as a buy-to-let investment.

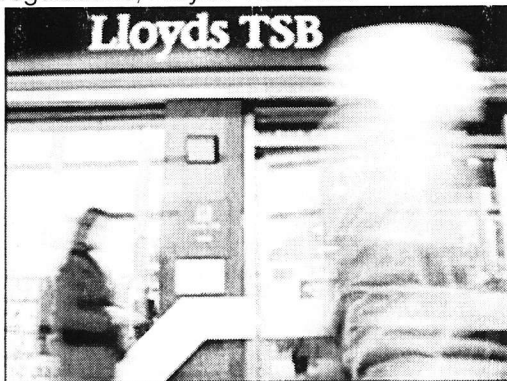

Lloyds TSB, which recently launched an Islamic current account, said it believed the India banking service would help meet the needs of its British Indian customers.

"Many British Indians have businesses, properties and families back home which they continue to finance," Lloyds TSB spokesman Gordon Rankin said.

"The India Banking Service is designed with the needs of this community in mind and should help a large and vital part of the population get the most out of their money."

The India banking service will be available in all Lloyds TSB branches from the end of April.

But customers must be prepared to prove their Indian descent to open an account to comply with Indian banking regulations, Lloyds TSB said.

STAR LETTER!

Where Are They Now ?

Over the years I've come across hundreds no thousands of folk who have been active in the ranks of the Nationalist Movement. It was always said our movement was like a sink with the taps on but the plug out even though we recruited new folk all the time we also lost as many so stagnated never reaching the statues of mass movement. The numbers that have been through our ranks BNP NF BM WNP EFP etc must be in the hundreds of thousands I know many will have died and in the late seventy's and early eighties it seemed not a month went by that it was announced this or that organiser was emigrating but there must still be thousands of racially aware patriots out there just looking on at the battle and taking no part. How can we make contact with these folk and get them back involved ? If we could get 50% of our past members back we would overnight be a force to be reckoned with.

Caribbean Yardie gangs 'all over Britain'

Jamaican and other Caribbean gangsters have invaded Britain at an "alarming rate" says a new report issued by the British police recently.

The report entitled Strategic assessment of the impact of Caribbean gun crime on the UK is the most comprehensive study of Jamaican and Afro-Caribbean criminals compiled so far and warns that Yardie-style gangs are now threatening a frightening upsurge in gun crime.

Their control of the crack trade in London is far worse than previously thought and has now spread to the entire south of England, a greater part of the Midlands and Wales and increasingly the North.

The study, carried out for the country's police chiefs, draws on intelligence from every force as well as the National Criminal Intelligence Service and other agencies.

The report comes after repeated warnings by police chiefs. Of 43 police forces in England and Wales, 36 say they have a problem with Yardie gangs, who also have well-established Scottish networks in Glasgow, Edinburgh and Aberdeen.

Moving into YOUR neighbourhood? Jamaican Yardie gang culture is now a major problem for British police.

The gun culture has accelerated since they started operating over here from their Jamaican home bases.

School bans 'wrong race' hairstyle!

A TEENAGER was sent home from school after the head teacher ruled she was the wrong race to have a braided hairstyle.

Olivia Acton, 13, was told she could not join her classmates at Middleton Technology College because her tightly plaited hair was too "extreme" for the strict uniform policy.

However, two other pupils at the school who have an Afro-Caribbean background are allowed to attend the school with similar hairstyles because it reflects their cultural heritage.

The teenager usually has her hair brushed straight but had it braided during a family holiday.

She was stunned to be turned away when she returned to school. She was told she can only go back to the classroom if she unpicks the plaits.

Olivia's father, Michael, says the school's rule is discriminatory and should be changed. But the school insists the uniform policy is an important way of maintaining standards and ensuring all youngsters are a part of the school community.

Mr Acton said: "The head teacher is saying it's extreme for my girl to have braids. I'm disgusted by the decision."

Middleton Technology College headteacher Allison Crompton confirmed that braided hairstyles were generally banned in the school but she would make exceptions for hairstyles which are a reflection of cultural heritage rather than a fashion statement.

Ms Crompton said: "We don't allow any extreme hairstyles of any description at the school. We are a high-achieving school with high standards and we don't allow any street culture into school.

"We are very strict on appearance. Wearing a school uniform signals that children are ready and willing to be a part of the school community. We have smart children who work in a purposeful way because that's the ethos of the school.

"If we didn't allow some leeway for their cultural and ethnic background I think it would probably be discriminatory."

The row began when Olivia, from Alcrington, was excluded in February for a day for her failure to comply with the school's rule.

She told the school the braids could not be removed for two weeks, and was told that during that time she could return to school but would be taught in the learning support unit. Olivia chose to study at home and has not returned to school since while both parties refuse to give way over the hairstyle.

Rochdale MP Jim Dobbin is now trying to negotiate a compromise, but he admits he doesn't believe the school has reasonable grounds to keep Olivia away.

He said: "The family visited my surgery recently and I have asked the LEA to mediate with the school. I personally do not consider the hairstyle in any way outrageous and I hope Olivia can return to full time education immediately. I do not consider this to be a reasonable exclusion."

Coun Colin Lambert, Rochdale Council's spokesman for education, said: "The school should concentrate on what goes into the students' heads and not what is on their heads."

JUST MORE LIBERAL LUNACY IN MADHOUSE BRITAIN!

George Orwell - The Prophet?

Was Orwell a prophet?... hopefully not. But, here are a few items from 1984 which now exist in modern life:

1984 : Newspeak

Now : Politically Correct speech

1984 : The red sash of the Junior Anti-Sex League

Now : The red ribbon of the Anti-Aids celibacy league

1984 : Telescreens in every room

Now : Televisions in every room

1984 : Telescreens in all public and private places, so the populace could be watched to prevent thoughtcrime

Now : Surveillance cameras in most buildings (operated by businesses), and in many public streets (operated by police) to prevent crime. Although most of these cameras are operated by private businesses instead of our intrusive government, the end result is the same

1984 : Helicopters silently watch over the masses to keep people from committing thoughtcrime, by planting the fear of "always being watched"

Now : Helicopters silently watch over our highways to keep people from breaking traffic laws, by planting the fear of "always being watched"

1984 : Lotteries with very few (if any) winners. Held just to collect income for state, and to give hope to the masses

Now : Lotteries with very few (if any) winners. Held just to collect income for state, and to give hope to the masses.

Lotteries are basically a tax on stupidity. Anybody with any understanding of math at all knows that it is a complete waste of money. Since only 45% of the money collected from sales is sent back out as prizes, odds are that you are going to lose more than half of the money they put into it - and most people will not see any return on their investment what-so-ever. Every time I see some minimum-wage-earning mother-of-four throwing her hard earned five dollar bill down on the counter for a pack of cigarettes and a "chance to win millions", my cold heart melts. Lotteries and cigarette taxes are nothing more than a way to squeeze every last cent possible out of the lower and middle class, and the politicians that are responsible for these "poverty taxes" should be dragged out into the street and shot. When the state sold the idea to state run gambling to the public, they told us that the money would go to education. ("How can you be against the kids!") But, they failed to tell us that the existing funding would be pulled away to fund other projects, resulting in little if any gain for education. And as I mentioned earlier, only 45% of lottery revenues are returned directly to the people in the form of prizes. And, if you happen to be the person that defies the odds and somehow manages to win that 45%, the federal government is going to come in and swipe 30% of your winnings, which leaves only 30% of the original take left for the winner - the other 70% being taken by the state. And, as if that wasn't enough money to make the state happy, prizes are paid off over a 20 year period. So, the prize winner's earnings are diminished even further by inflation. But really, when you look at it, the government is actually keeping ALL of the money...

If a person wins $1,000,000, their yearly payments would be $50,000 a year. However, the interest on $1,000,000 at the prime rate (approx. 8%) is about $80,000 a year!... $30,000 more than is being paid off to the winner! No matter how you look at it, the only real winner is the state.

1984 : Ministry of Peace

Now : Department of Defense

1984 : Useless statistics, incorrect economic predictions, and slanted opinion polls are presented on the telescreen as "legitimate news", to give people the impression that "things are getting better", and that all people agree with the popular way of thinking.

Now : Useless statistics, incorrect economic predictions, and slanted opinion polls are presented on the Evening news as "legitimate news", to give people the impression that "things are getting better", and that all people agree with the popular way of thinking.

1984 : History is being rewritten, to conform with modern beliefs. All references to oldthink were being removed or rewritten.

Now : History is being rewritten, to conform with modern beliefs. The most obvious example of this - The removal of "racist", Violent, or Sexist material from popular cartoons. "Heckle & Jeckle" cartoons have been permanently shelved, since they are said to portray "Negroes". "Tom & Jerry" cartoons that contained the "mamma" character have also disappeared. You no longer see Daffy's head actually being blown off by Elmer. There was recently an old Superman cartoon in which the sexist line, "Isn't that too dangerous for a woman" (referring to Lois) was removed.

1984 : People are steered away from consuming rare goods such as Chocolate, Steak, Sugar, Coffee, Cigarettes, and alcohol by rationing.

Now : People are steered away from consuming rare goods such as Chocolate,

Steak, Sugar, Coffee, Cigarettes, and alcohol by warnings that declare that these items are bad for your health.

1984 : There is always war. If peace is made with one country, war is claimed on another nation to keep the military machine rolling.

Now : There is always war. If peace is made with one country, war is claimed (or threatened) on another nation to keep the military machine rolling.

1984 : Songs are created by machines. This is done to make sure nobody can take credit for songs, or write songs not in line with Ingsoc.

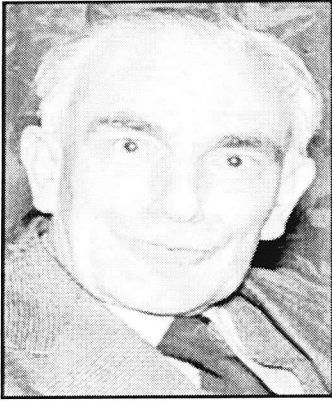

Now : Songs are created by synthesizers. Nobody can realistically take credit for their own songs because most songs are re-mixes or a collage of dubs from other people's music.

1984 : Telescreen is full of confessions from "Thought criminals". They confessed to hatred of the government, crimes of all kinds, perversions of all kinds.

Now : Daytime talk shows are full of whites who enjoy sharing tales of their pathetic existence with the whole world.

THE MENACE OF WORLD GOVERNMENT

The late A.K Chesterton, (NF Founder and prophet for the future!)

"World government involves the surrender to an International police Force of all national arms. It is an attractive case to argue before the bulk of electors, in as far as most people are politically superficial, and in as far as their ignorance nowadays is often accompanied by atrophied instincts. That's why it is so dangerous..."

"The question must surely bang at even the most unsuspecting mind: "What is behind all this?" It would never occur to a Briton - or to a Frenchman or Swede or American, or anyone else brought up in the Christian tradition - that national police are not adequate for all civil purposes, so that International Police, obedient to an authority perhaps thousands of miles away, should have power to arrest a subject of Her Majesty in Her Majesty's domains, or a French or American citizen or whoever it might be. To whom then, would such an idea occur? The answer is all that easy...These people, and these people alone, would wish to send their 'police' agents with extraterritorial powers to arrest in any country miscreants - such as ourselves - who venture to tell the truth about their financial racket and megalomaniac political designs...

There is a hidden power, which only to close students of International politics is a revealed power...It has openly declared war on nationhood and racial pride. It approves of every approach, direct or functional, which will render mankind defenceless against its global tyranny."

Bradford St George's Day NA Social

A packed room with over White Nationalists celebrated St George's Day in Bradford on Saturday April 23rd.

Members and supporters came from mainly Yorkshire and Lancashire with a strong contingent from the East Midlands.

Eddy Morrison opened the proceedings by welcoming everyone. The afternoons events also included;

- An auction of Nationalist memorabilia which raised a healthy sum towards NA funds;
- Steve Smith's excellent rendition of Shakespeare's Henry V "St Crispin's Day Speech";
- A great buffet that was laid on by Bradford Nationalist Alliance;
- The presentation of a lifetime service award for fighting for the British Nationalist cause to John Wood who gave a short but rousing speech;
- A social quiz which was won by John Wood's team;
- A grand raffle with stacks of prizes;
- White Nationalist/patriotic music and literature stalls.

It is estimated well over 100 White Nationalists were present -a fantastic day for all and many thanks from the NA to all who came and to all who made it possible...over £400 was raised towards NA funds and 10 new members signed up.

Everybody agreed this was one of the VERY BEST St Georges' Day socials for many years!

The afternoon ended with one very merry lot of White Nationalists breaking out in an anti-IRA song which brought a smile from the landlady!

Tory respectability and cucumber sandwiches?
NO THANKS!

Blackburn St George's Day NA Social

Lancashire NA held their St. Georges Day social a day early this year - on Friday April 22nd, - so that the majority of members could attend the Yorkshire NA event the following day as well.

In the event almost 50 nationalists from all over the North West - but mainly from Lancashire - as well as a couple of Yorkshire packed into a traditional Blackburn White Working class Pub for a great evening.

It was good to see so many local former BNP members who had dropped out of the party over the past couple of years, due to its increasing liberalization -including former Blackburn BNP councilor Robin Evans -in attendance.

To a background of racial nationalist music -including old Skrewdriver tracks and the new Prussian Blue CD from the American twins Lamb and Lynx - nationalists young and old had a great evening of comradeship. A splendid buffet was laid on by Sharon Pastou North-West NA regional organiser; a massive merchandise table did a brisk trade all evening - thanks to Bernard from Blackburn for running this; and a fantastic raffle, with great prizes was organised by Mark Cotterill, with the help of some very pretty female assistants (we are not very PC in the NA!). Thanks also to Landlord Len who let us have his entire pub for the event - no hiding in a private room for us! - and to all his regulars who joined in with us to celebrate our national day (be it a day early!).

The evening wound up with a very passionate speech by Mark Cotterill who called on everyone present to support their local nationalist candidates at the general election, be it with a large pinch of salt in many cases! Mark also stressed the importance of St. George's Day as part of our English and White culture and heritage.

Those attending pledged to make next years St. George's Day events even bigger and better than this years.

THE REDS AND LIBERALS WON'T LIKE THIS POPE!

Cardinals elect Pope who isn't Black and was once in the Hitler Youth! Every liberal in the Catholic World was hoping for a Black Pope — they have got quite the opposite — a very anti-liberal Pope who wants a return to traditional, family and moral values.

TRAUNSTEIN, Germany - Two images of Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger stood in sharp relief during the mourning period for the pope he would eventually succeed.

With his wispy silver hair blowing in the wind, the German prelate stood before the world's political and spiritual leaders at John Paul II's funeral April 8 and offered an eloquent, sensitive farewell that moved some to tears.

Ten days later — just before Ratzinger and 114 other cardinals entered the conclave to select the 265th pontiff — he delivered a sharp-edged homily on strict obedience to church teachings that left liberal Catholics wincing.

"He could be a wedge rather than a unifier for the church," said the Rev. Thomas Reese, editor of the Jesuit weekly magazine America.

Applause — and stunned silence

This was clear in St. Peter's Square moments after the announcement of Ratzinger's election and the name chosen by the first Germanic pope in 1,000 years: Benedict XVI. Amid the applause were groans and pockets of stunned silence.

"It's Ratzinger," French pilgrim Silvie Genthial, 52, barked into her cellular phone before hanging up.

"We were all hoping for a different pope — a Latin American perhaps — but not an ultraconservative like this," she said.

But others hugged and toasted the new pope with red wine. "A clear and true voice of faith," said Maria Piscini, an 80-year-old Italian grandmother, raising a paper cup filled with pinot noir.

The cardinals who selected him knew it would be received this way.

Perhaps no member of the conclave evoked such potent opinions — and has stirred more arguments — as the 78-year-old Ratzinger and the role he's held since 1981: head of the powerful Vatican office that oversees doctrine and takes action against dissent.

"We are moving toward a dictatorship of relativism which does not recognize anything as for certain and which has as its highest goal one's own ego and one's own desires," he said Monday in a pre-conclave Mass in memory of John Paul. The church, he insisted, must defend itself against threats such as "radical individualism" and "vague religious mysticism."

As prefect of the Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith, he was the Vatican's iron hand.

No flexibility shown on priestly celibacy, other issues

His interventions are a roll call of flash points for the church: the 1987 order stripping American theologian the Rev. Charles Curran of the right to teach because he encouraged dissent; crippling Latin Americans supporting the popular "liberation theology" movement for alleged Marxist leanings; coming down hard on efforts to rewrite Scriptures in gender inclusive language.

He also shows no flexibility on the church's views on priestly celibacy, contraception and the ban on ordinations for women.

In 1986, he denounced rock music as the "vehicle of anti-religion." In 1988, he dismissed anyone who tried to find "feminist" meanings in the Bible. Last year, he told American bishops that it was allowable to deny Communion to those who support such "manifest grave sin" as abortion and euthanasia.

'Smack down on heresy'

He earned unflattering nicknames such as Panzer cardinal, God's rottweiler, and the Grand Inquisitor. Cartoonists emphasized his deep-set eyes and Italians lampooned his pronounced German accent.

"Indeed, it would be hard to find a Catholic controversy in the past 20 years that did not somehow involve Joseph Ratzinger," John Allen, a Vatican reporter for the National Catholic Register, wrote six years ago.

But among conservatives, he rose in stature. An online fan club sings his praises and offers souvenirs with the slogan: "Putting the smack down on heresy since 1981."

Even John Paul apparently needed him close by. Several times Ratzinger said he tendered his resignation because of his age, but each time it was rejected by the pope.

In recent years, he took on issues outside church doctrine. He once called Buddhism a religion for the self-indulgent. In an interview with the French magazine Le Figaro last year, he suggested Turkey's bid to join the European Union conflicted with Europe's Christian roots — a view that could unsettle Vatican attempts to improve relations with Muslims. "Turkey has always represented a different continent, in permanent contrast to Europe," he was quoted as saying.

In a book released last week, "Values in a Time of Upheavals," Ratzinger also called demands for European "multiculturalism" as a "fleeing from what is one's own." "If he continues as pope the way he was as a cardinal, I think we will see a polarized church," said David Gibson, a former Vatican Radio journalist and author of a book on trends in the church. "He has said himself that he wanted a smaller, but purer, church."

Ratzinger (left) - he's against Communism, multiculturalism, the European Union, women priests.

He's for traditional family values and a return to traditionalism.

For the multi-racialists - he's the Pope they really didn't want!

For Catholic Nationalists across Europe - he's a breath of fresh air!

Why YOU should join the Nationalist Alliance!

Dear Patriot,

Why should you join the NATIONALIST ALLIANCE? We are fast becoming Britain's biggest true White Nationalist movement. We are doing this without compromising on our principles and without selling out our ideals for cheap, quick but empty growth. We are the result of a lot of White patriots, totally fed up with both the Old Gang politicians and also the constant infighting between fellow patriots which has wrecked the British Nationalist scene for decades.

We in the Nationalist Alliance do NOT indulge in name calling and attacks on other patriots - we understand very clearly that before we can truly unite the White people of Britain we must first unite all the patriots of the United Kingdom under ONE banner - the banner of Nationalist Unity!

Even if you currently belong to another nationalist party, there is nothing to prevent you from joining the NA. We exist to attract members from every White patriotic party and get them working together for the salvation of our Race and Nation.

If you are new to White Nationalism, you have probably seen one of our leaflets or our website. We are a dedicated and committed movement of men and women who are determined that Great Britain - our country and YOUR country will not be lost. We fight to preserve our heritage, our identity and a guaranteed future for White children.

You can help firstly by joining - it's only £5 a year. Secondly by donating whatever is within your means to keep our Movement going and expanding. We are not backed by Big Business or Trades Unions but are solely financed by our members. Thirdly and most importantly you can get active for the Nationalist Alliance. Build a local unit in your area. Get our posters, stickers and leaflets into circulation. Sell our paper and make the British public aware of the existence and growing influence of the Nationalist Alliance.

This is YOUR last chance to fight back for Britain!

Mr. K. Livingstone,
Mayor of London,
Greater London Authority,
City Hall,
The Queen's Walk,
London SE1 2AA

15th April 2005

Dear Mr. Livingstone,

I understand that you are the person we must apply to for permission to hold a public meeting in Trafalgar Square. We would be grateful if you could arrange to have the relevant application form sent to us. The theme of the meeting will be 'Free Speech for White Patriots—Repeal the Race Laws!'. The date we are looking at is Sunday, June 12th 2005 at 1.00pm.

We would like to point out that Trafalgar Square has traditionally been the national open air point for political protest of many kinds, and whilst we know you may disagree with our British Nationalist views, we trust you will put our right for free speech to the forefront when you consider our application.

We look forward to receiving the application form.

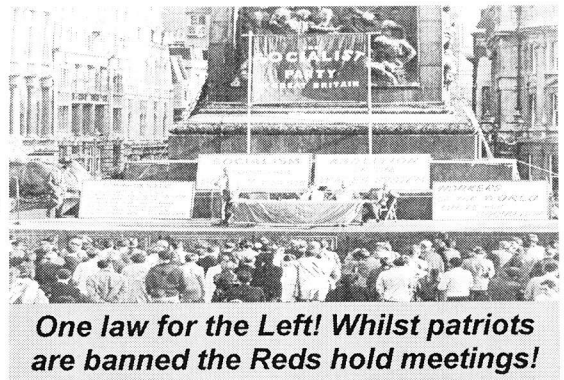

Thank you in anticipation,

Yours sincerely,

Eddy Morrison

Final death of the UK car industry!

Last month rang the death knell of the last remaining vestige of the so-called UK car industry, MG Rover has packed up. Why? Because they make products, in this case cars, that people do not want to buy and which are sold at too high a price. However – their solution? Ask a Chinese company to take them over. The Chinese wouldn't. Despite Rovers mismanagement of this affair – the Government – dedicated like its Tory predecessors to laissez-faire capitalist economics, let the company sink with the resultant loss of thousands of British jobs and another piece of wasteland in Britain which was once thriving.

Remember back over thirty years when the UK had many individual car makers with names such as: A.C., Alvis, Aston Martin, Austin, Austin Healy, Bentley, Bond, Bristol, Daimler, Elva, Fairthorpe, Ford, Hillman, Humber, Jaguar, Jensen, Lagonda, Lotus, M.G., Morgan, Morris, Reliant, Riley, Rolls Royce, Rover, Singer, Sunbeam, Tornado, Triumph, Turner, T.V.R., Vanden Plas, Vauxhall, Wolseley to name just a few? Can you believe so many car makers in a once great manufacturing country and not really that many years ago?

The Nationalist Alliance believes the British Car Industry, once the best in the world, needs restoring.

As foreign imports flood in and the last British cars disappear, Britain tumbles relentlessly into the pit of being a 'service industry' economy -

It tumbles further to into the grasp of the International Bankers!

How many of them do you know of? One maybe two? So where have they all gone. Simple. The UK Government, ruled as it is by Globalists, are quite happy to see British jobs go overseas to the sweatshop economies of Asia whilst British car manufacturing goes the way of the dodo.

The decline of British manufacturing industry, symbolised by the collapse of Rover, does matter. There is a problem with the scenario "we do services and the Chinese make cars": what do we send to China to pay for the cars? It is very difficult to export services - takeaway pizzas cooked in Birmingham won't be bought in Shanghai!

If 6,000 Longbridge workers are put on the dole, and a further 15,000 supply jobs follow, and they each draw an average of £100 every week in unemployment allowances, the cost to the taxpayer will be £109m a year. Common sense says that a £100m loan is a bargain. Yet New Labour refused it – it doesn't refuse massive foreign aid loans to Banana Republics.

Britain's car industry

"...whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends (of Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness), it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness..."

Illegal immigrants 'flown to UK'!

Wealthy illegal immigrants were flown by light aircraft into the UK by a gang of "glamorous and upmarket" people smugglers, a court has heard.

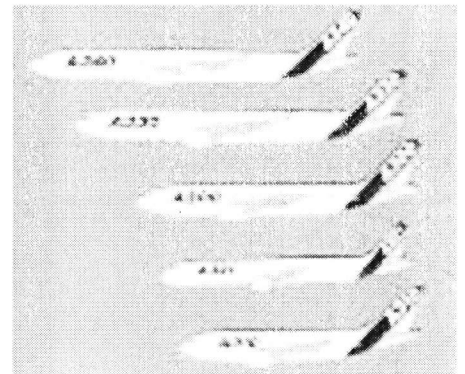

Maidstone Crown Court heard in April that Turkish nationals were flown from France to airstrips around the M25. Indat Oztas, 39, from Hornsey, London, and Jeanette Davies, 41, from Edmonton, London, deny conspiring to facilitate entry of illegal immigrants to the UK. Three others arrested at Lamberhurst in Kent last July have pleaded guilty. 'Padded leather seats' The court heard that between 11 May and 3 July 2004 groups of immigrants were flown into the UK and chauffeur driven to London. Philip St John-Stevens, prosecuting, told the trial: "This was a rather glamorous and upmarket service that was being provided. "This organisation was flying people in a six-seater aircraft with padded leather seats." Mr Oztas and Mrs Davies were among six people arrested shortly after a group of immigrants were dropped at the airstrip at Lamberhurst on 2 July. The gang's pilot, Wyatt Anderson, 47, of Camberley in Surrey; Mensur Hassan, 33, from Hackney in London; and Mrs Davies' husband Anthony Davies, 42, also of Edmonton, have already admitted conspiracy to facilitate the entry of illegal immigrants to the UK. 'Another leader' A sixth person, Isa Daskaya, 46, from Hackney, has admitted the lesser charge of facilitating illegal entry, for driving the immigrants to London after they landed. Mr St John-Stevens said: "These defendants, with those that have pleaded guilty, were part of a larger organisation that facilitated the entry into this country of non-EU citizens." He told the court Mr Oztas had been recruited as a chauffeur by Mr and Mrs Davies. Mr St John-Stevens said: "It may well have been that he didn't realise anything he was doing was wrong until he saw the plane landing and a number of people - including a young child - climbing over a fence and getting into his taxi." He went on to say the Crown believed there was another "leader" involved in the gang who had not been charged

Study reveals growing worry over Islam - Teens are supporting White Nationalism

White Nationalism has found a new recruiting base: White teenagers. A recent study has revealed that British teens are dismissive of England's cultural changes as a result of massive Muslim immigration, and are supporting the White Nationalist groups.

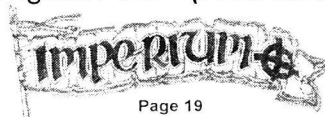

At the annual conference of the British Psychological Society, researchers demonstrated that teenagers as young as 13 are rallying around the positive pro-White message of British Nationalism. The study was performed on 1,500 students between the ages of 13 and 24 who attend secondary schools and universities.

Terrorist attacks and the Iraq war top the reasons why British children are fed up with their country's multi-racialist agenda and Zionist inspired foreign policy. And these views are not isolated to specific geographical regions in England, but are held by students from rural areas and cities throughout the country.

43% of the students responding stated that their views of Muslims and Islamic culture had worsened since the attacks on the World Trade Centre and Pentagon, and have further deteriorated since the Iraq War.

A spokeswoman from the Muslim Association of Britain decried the growing White nationalism and expressed a view eerily similar to the American Jewish Anti-Defamation League. "It is extremely saddening when children are already adopting attitudes like this towards Muslims. Children get these views from television and the media and the conversations they hear from adults. It is incredibly distressing that when they should be at an age where they rise above race and colour and creed, children are already having these negative emotions."

(Well strangely enough - it doesn't surprise us!)
