

Vol. 4 No. 8

NEINS is a Public Information Bulletin published in the Public Interest. Opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the publisher. No action should be imputed nor inferred.

BBC World Service c/- SBS Radio 93.3 FM 5.45am Friday 9 September 2005:

Reporter Bill Hutton: Interviews Viscount Etienne Davignon, Chair of Bilderberg Group, world's most influential discussion group. Has been accused by Jim Tucker, editor of the American Free Press, of being 'pure evil'. VED denies this. Kase Van der Pile explains: "WWII saw many European exiles arrive in Britain. Some got together. They sought ways to re-shape the post-war world so as to avoid another war. The as-yet nameless discussion group held its first formal meeting in 1954 at the Hotel Bilderberg in Holland. Aim of that first meeting was to discuss the ramifications of the recent death of Joseph Stalin, for 26 years the absolute ruler of Russia and its satellites".

Will Hutton is a British newspaper editor who first attended a BG meeting in 1987. "You get to meet first-hand those making the decisions - and you get to influence those decisions". VED agrees their decisions can 'shape' international events but denies they set formal 'action plans'. However, many attendees at BG meetings DO have action plans. KVDP sees BG "as a means for the 'elite' to reconcile their differences, although there is no chairman." VED says BG's current aims are "the promotion of Free Trade, WTO and Trans-Atlantic cooperation".

All world leaders attend just before they rise to power. Blair first appeared at a BG meeting two years before he became British Prime Minister. Bill Clinton arrived at BG while still governor of Arkansas. All current heads of the European Commission began attending BG meetings shortly before they were 'elevated'. VED rejects this as evidence of collusion claiming BG are "just good talent-spotters. We ask ourselves: 'who is up and coming?' Then we invite them along". Some say it is rather the BG get 'their men' elected to positions of power. VED refutes this: "BG is not a global ruling elite. There is NO global ruling elite!"

Will Hutton compares BG to Asia, where "personal relations are paramount". Whatever the truth, there are limits to BG's collective power. VED admits: "if we ARE a secret world government we should be thoroughly ashamed of ourselves, with the mess the world is in". KVDP: "BG members may be more powerful but are increasingly powerless".

BBC World Service c/- SBS Radio 93.3 FM 'World Briefing' 5.30am Monday 3 October 2005:

On the holiday island of Bali Indonesian officials say three suicide bombers killed both themselves and 19 others in a series of explosions there on Saturday night. 100 others were injured.

Pakistani officials today retrieved many tons of missing Afghani coins after a recent 30 ton shipment from the Pakistani mint was found to be 21 tons lighter than it should be. They say they received the missing coins through a 'go-between'.

Ukrainian capital of Kiev has played host to most unlikely marriage between daughter of recently dismissed Prime Minister Tymoshenko and a long-haired tattooed British rock singer. Couple met on holiday in Egypt. [And both are Jews. RE].

BBC World Service c/- SBS Radio 93.3 FM 'Masterpiece' 5am Wednesday 5 October 2005 (30 minutes):

Interview with Jung Chang & Jon Halliday co-authors of Mao: the Unknown Story a 'revisionist' book on Mao Zedong China's dictator 1949-1976. Now published in 20 languages including Chinese. [JC's book The Wild Swans sold 10 million copies. RE].

JC: "Mao is often referred to as 'just another Chinese emperor' but even by that standard he was their worst despot ever - directly responsible for 70 million deaths. Even after millions had died in the Great Leap Forward [1958-59] he still wanted it to continue. He said 'for my program to succeed HALF the Chinese people may have to perish'. When peasants died he ordered them buried in the field, not in a graveyard, and then crops be planted over them. Why? 'Their deaths may still profit us by fertilising the soil'. We conducted hundreds of personal interviews with Chinese in China and overseas. My husband [co-author Jon Halliday] is fluent in Russian. So he investigated the Soviet archives. There we uncovered many new facts.

For example, the Long March of 1935-36 [by Mao's People's Liberation Army] has been heavily mythologised by the Chinese Communist regime. The PLA allegedly fought many battles and suffered heroically. But we found this not to be true. In the Soviet archives we discovered direct correspondence between then Chinese President the Nationalist Chang Kai Shek and Joseph Stalin, the Communist dictator of Russia. President Chang had only one son and heir. And this son was being held hostage in Russia by Stalin's agents. Chang wrote to Stalin pleading for his son's release. These letters are still in the Soviet archives. We matched dates of allegedly PLA 'battles' on the Long March and they matched precisely with Stalin's responses to a letter from Chang. Precisely. It showed Chang had let the Red Army 'off the hook' on each occasion. He was clearly 'doing a deal' with Stalin for his son's release. Eventually Mao's PLA escaped entirely. When Stalin no longer needed to blackmail Chang he freed his son. This one son later succeeded him as President of the Republic of China after the Nationalists were defeated in 1949 and forced to flee the Mainland for Taiwan.

Another example of Mao's character is found in his un-official diaries. He describes how was visiting a small village one day when there was an execution. He saw Communists activists beating peasants to death. It effected him profoundly: 'That is when I became a Leninist!' He got a thrill from watching others executed. Later, when he had seized power, he would regularly purge many of his own loyal party members. He'd have their tortures filmed and then watch these in the comfort of his villa.

As for his office routines when ruler, he rarely got out of bed. Used to lie there all day reading official reports. So how did he rule so effectively? Mao was good at keeping a small band of followers, a tight inner circle, loyal. Then he'd ruled through these. Was good at choosing underlings. Like long-term Prime Minister, Chou En Lai, who represented China to the outside world.

Mao kept a tight lid on public opinion. There was no freedom. Even today the Chinese regime, using technology imported from the West, keeps track of all Web-sites. If a student, e.g., were to use a word like 'democracy' a warning appears on your screen against 'profane speech' ".

[US magazine Newsweek later ran a hysterical 'review' of Unknown Story by Leftist Linda Jarvin. Reprinted in Bulletin p. 68 August 9 2005. Made no secret of admiration for Mao and antipathy for critics like JC & JH. RE].

Deutsche Welle Radio Newslink c/- SBS Radio 93.3 FM 4am Friday 7 October 2005:

Federal Bureau of Investigation today announced arrest of Philippine agent Leondro Agricolacillo who had spied on the White House, first spy uncovered there in 100 years. A naturalised US citizen and former US Marine the agent began work at the White House in 1999. Three years later he transferred to FBI where he has been ever since. Charged with downloading and sending 100 'Top Secret' documents to Michael Aquino, who represented elements of Philippines Opposition planning a coup against President Gloria Arroyo. Aquino was arrested today in the Philippines. Former Philippines President Estrada, now under House arrest, admits meeting with Agricolacillo.

Speaking at National Endowment for Democracy in Washington US President George Bush says Iraq struggle is part of plan by 'Islamic militants' to establish a worldwide 'empire'. Accused Iran & Syria of supplying 'insurgent's' arms. British Prime Minister Tony Blair accused Iran of supplying Iraqi 'insurgents' with weaponry through Hezbollah organisation. Iraqi President Jalal Talabani agreed but his Prime Minister Al Jafaari rejects such claims. [In 1996 Neo-Cons presented a 'wish list' to US President Bill Clinton of countries they wanted overthrown for 'threatening Israel'. Top six were Iraq, Iran, Syria, Lebanon, Jordan and Egypt. In 2003 Blair & Bush conquered Iraq. In 2005 Bush agents killed former Lebanese Prime Minister Rafik Hariri and use his murder as excuse to eject all 40,000 Syrian Occupation troops from the country. Bush and Blair now target Syria directly by attempting to link Syria and Iran with Hezbollah. This pro-Iranian group spent 22 years chasing Israeli Army out of Lebanon. Israel never forgets. So why target the others? Egypt forced the Jews into slavery 3500 years ago as did Iraq did 2650 years ago. Syria under Ben Hadad attacked Israel during the time of King David as did Moab (Jordan). And Lebanon? As 'Tyre and Sidon' it was a vassal state of Israel. Too crazy? During 2003 David Irving trial, Deborah Lipstadt called him "a Hamaan", referring to enemy of Israel in 482 BC. Today's 'war' began 3500 years ago. RE].

In Iraq 12 people have died from suicide bombers. Five oil ministry guards died in Kirkuk.

Italian Opposition Leader Romano Prodi has vowed to remove all of Italy's 3,000 troops from Iraq if elected.

Secretary General of NATO announced plans for 'several thousand' additional troops be sent to Afghanistan's South, an area of conflict where US troops are actively pursuing 'insurgents'. Agreed would be difficult to keep NATO troops separate from US effort even though NATO's 'peace-keepers' had no anti-insurgency agenda. Suggested "maybe PRT's [provincial reconstruction teams] need combat training". Admitted NATO was under 'heavy pressure' from US to 'share the burden' of anti-Taliban actions but resistance from France, Germany and Spain prevents this. Germany has largest contingent in International Security Assistance Force with 2,500 troops.

[Open secret: US is short of troops. In 1992 Clinton was appointed President. US Army had 900,000 men. Since end of Cold War with Russia in 1989 the US Left, including Clinton's Democrats, had demanded 'a peace dividend' i.e. some 'pay off' for sacrifices undertaken during the 40 year-long war. When Clinton entered office in 1992 he began delivering the 'dividend' with massively increased funds for social welfare, the Democrats favourite method of rewarding their followers. But how to pay for it? With money from the military. As 'the war' was over, who needed men in uniform? Clinton began to de-mob the US armed forces and to close down & sell off army, air and naval bases. Billions annually spent on men in green now went to blacks and pinkos, flushed down the 'social welfare' sinkhole.

Bush II seized power in 2000.

By then US had only 400,000 troops remaining. Many critics asked why Bush II sent only 150,000 men to conquer Iraq in 2003 when in 1991 Bush I had sent 500,000 just to 'free' Kuwait. 150,000 was all the combat troops he had. Even then his smooth run into Bagdad was only possible after lengthy negotiations with Saddam's generals. They agreed not to fight if one of them was put in charge after Saddam fell. Deal turned sour when US refused its end of the bargain and instead disbanded Iraqi Army and Intelligence Services. Is when generals began the 'insurgency'. Undefeated Iraqi Army are now undefeatable: one million men in civilian camouflage against 150,000 US troops. Half of these are Reserves or National Guard aided by 150,000 local hirelings.

Any US troops freed from Occupation duty in Iraq and Afghanistan will be used to attack Syria and Iran, the next targets on the Neo-Cons 'hit list'. When 'allies', like Australia and NATO, send troops to replace US military it just brings closer the next Neo-Con war of conquest. No extra troops, no more wars. Is main reason NATO is being tricked into sending unarmed 'civil action' (PRT's) into same area where US 'Special Forces' death squads are operating. Taliban will not know difference. Will kill NATO's 'civil action' boys believing them to be US Imperialists. EU public will be suitably enraged by 'inhumane Taliban'. NGO's will demand more protection. US will have excuse it needs to add NATO forces to 'order of battle' for next war. NATO Supreme Commander is, by law, always American. 'Resistance' from German government ended when Schroder's Social Democrats were defeated in late 2005 at election he'd called, against all advice, two years early. Christian Democrats will obey US troop demands. RE].

BBC World Service c/- SBS Radio 93.3 FM 'World Briefing' 5am Friday 7 October 2005:

Thousands of sub-Saharan Africans attempt to storm border fences at Spain's two Northern African enclaves of Melia and Cinto, held by Spain since 15th century. Moroccan troops guarding border were forced to fire 'in self defence' killing five refugees. Spain says Morocco agreed to receive back any who enter under 1992 repatriation agreement.

In a speech in Washington US President George Bush says struggle in Iraq is part of plan by 'Islamic militants' to establish a worldwide 'empire'. Said "this struggle will go on for a long time. Is tempting to think your enemy will tire of bloodshed but they will not". Warned militants see Jordan and Egypt as 'easy targets' for overthrow. [Jordan & Egypt? After Syria & Iran, are next countries on Neo-Con hit list due for 'regime change'. RE].

BBC World Service c/- SBS Radio 93.3 FM 'Global Business Report' 5am Saturday 8 October 2005:

Presenter Peter Day on 'wireless computing'. John Malone Intel Amsterdam: "there are now 800 million people connected to the Internet world-wide".

BBC World Service c/- SBS Radio 93.3 FM 'World Briefing' 4am Sunday 9 October 2005:

Monrovia: Tens of thousands of people march through Liberian capital in show of support for former footballer and Presidential candidate George Weir. While Weir is popular is said his closest advisers are corrupt. His closest rival is a Harvard-educated woman banker, Ellen Johnson Sirley.

European Union launched satellite Cryosat from a base in Northern Russia to measure shrinkage of polar ice-caps.

Suicide bomber in Iraq killed seven including a woman and her two children. Was an apparent ambush of a police patrol called out to answer a car accident report. Three police were killed and six wounded.

Reporter Grant Ferret: UN report criticises increasing number of breaches of arms embargo on Somalia as President and his rivals re-arm. Eight Yemeni Air Force flights recorded bringing arms to President's temporary capital. Weapons are also arriving from Ethiopia's government. Both say they are only 'aiding a legitimate government'.

Is alleged Morocco 'dumped' 500 Sub-Saharan Africans in desert over Algerian border following failed attempt to enter Spanish enclave of Melia and Cinto last week. Moroccan officials say they have detained 25,000 such would-be immigrants in past five years and are "tired of being Europe's border guards".

ABCTV Landline (Weekly rural affairs programme) 11am Monday 19 September 2005 (30 minutes):

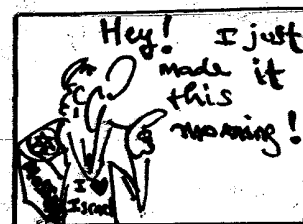

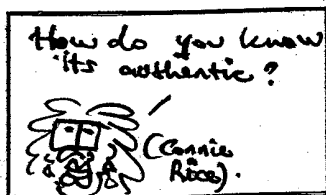

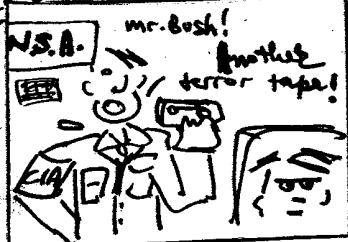

British scientist believes he has found source of original BSE, or 'mad cow disease'. Decimated British beef industry in 1960's and its affects continue today. Found importation of 'animal bone meal' from India to Britain began at precisely same time. This bone meal was a cheap source of protein for British animal feed production, plastic's manufacture and gelatine for foods, both for animals and humans. Examining old Customs reports he found anomalies. The bone meal was classed as 'animal' but random Custom searches found one sack with large crab shells and a full head of female human hair. His research in India found a possible explanation.

Hindus regard river Ganges as Mother river, source of all life. All dead bodies, animal and human, are returned to it on death. River has become a vast sewer. But at the mouth, far from the cities, other Hindus collect these bodies. They are piled upon each other, making large heaps along the shoreline. When reduced by carrion birds to only bones, they are then, allegedly, collected, crushed and sold. When Britain began importing 'cheap' protein in the 1960's in the form of Indian 'bone meal' they did not think to question what sort of 'bones'. While other British scientists accept the new evidence they reject any link to BSE as 'coincidental'. Britain has suffered 200,000 cases of 'mad cow disease' since the 1960's. 120 new cases appear each year.

[Multiculture' is tenet of faith among all Western political parties, all media, all religions, but is a nonsense. Christ's disciple Paul asked: "what fellowship has Light with Darkness, ox with donkey? Do not be unequally yoked" (II Cor. 6.14). Paul himself sought to evangelise Asia but the Holy Spirit "prevented me" (Acts 16.6). Yet today we think ourselves wiser than GOD or his anointed, seeing no difference between our inborn whiteness and the darkie-ness of Asia or Africa.

To suggest otherwise is social heresy and, in many states, illegal. Why should such a policy need legal defence if it is so desirable. Why does it need to be forced down our throats till we choke on it? Is to be means of our death, like other goals of 'political correctness': equality, equity, anti-racism, economic 'level-playing fields', etc. All have one common theme. Destroy white race. Our common goal must be destruction of all demanding political correctness no matter what disguise they use. As Paul warns: "sometimes SATAN appears as an angel of light" (II Cor. 11.14). RE].

Bush receives yet another
"Bin Laden"
'terror-warning'
audio-tape

Supremacist leaves legacy of hate

Aryan Nations founder saw movement splinter before his death

By SARAH KERSHAW
The New York Times

SEATTLE — Toward the end of his life, the man who was once the nation's most visible face of white supremacy, a Nazi-uniform-wearing, jackbooted ideologue whom his critics called "the grandfather of hate," was a frail old widower gasping for breath in a tiny donated house in northern Idaho.

And when he died in his sleep Wednesday at 86, Richard Butler, who founded the Aryan Nations in the 1970s, had already long ago lost his power and influence over the radical right, a collection of extremist subcultures, militias and neo-Nazi offshoots that his movement spawned.

Still, the death of one of the founders of the 20th century white separatist movement signals the end of a chapter in the nation's social history. And it certainly marks the failure of Mr. Butler's ambition to create what he had envisioned as "an autonomous Aryan homeland" in the Pacific Northwest.

"Butler's death, in a way, marks the end of an era," said Daniel Levitas, author of The Terrorist Next Door: The Militia Movement and the Radical Right. "But it certainly is not removing somebody from the scene who was actively playing a role of any great significance at the time of his death."

Mr. Butler's brand of white supremacy was based on a theology known as Christian Identity, combining a heretical interpretation of the Bible and a belief that Jews were Satanic and blacks "mud people."

Before the seams of that movement began to come apart, Mr. Butler's 20-acre compound in the pine-forested hills of northern Idaho was a gathering spot for white supremacists.

But Mr. Butler had become increasingly isolated.

"Christian Identity long ago lost its kind of hegemonic sway

Richard Butler (seated), once a key figure of the radical right, is surrounded by bodyguards at a meeting of white supremacists.

FILE 2003/Getty Images

within the radical right," Mr. Levitas said.

Most experts agree that though white supremacy may be ebbing, it has certainly not died along with Mr. Butler. Indeed, there are signs on the Internet and in rallies that it may still be thriving, from Washington state to West Virginia, although in new forms.

"Is the radical right in trouble, faltering and fading away?" said Mark Potok, who tracks extremist groups, for the Southern Poverty

Law Center in Montgomery, Ala. "I don't think so. I think it's yet again starting to morph."

Though it may have lost its dominance, Christian Identity is still strong within the white supremacy movement, particularly in the South. On the rise, experts say, are groups like one in Portland, Ore., called Volksfront, which says it champions whites' civil rights while rejecting racial violence.

In the Pacific Northwest, a bastion of white separatism, anti-government militias and survivalists, a new dogma has begun to spread, drawing on Odinism, a pre-Christian theology that features Norse deities and derives its name from the chief god, Odin.

Skinheads and other separatist groups who have rejected Christian Identity are drawn to Odinism because it rids them of the messy problem of having to contend with Christian values like compassion and forgiveness and frees them to justify violence, said Randy Blazak, a professor of sociology at Portland State University and director of the university's Hate Crimes Research Network.

Mr. Blazak and other experts trace the rise of radical subcultures like Odinism to the turmoil in the white supremacy movement. For several years it has been riven by infighting, philosophical friction and fall-outs in recruitment.

Today there are about 17 Aryan Nations chapters across the country with a total of 200 or so members, figures that are a third to a half of what they were in the mid-80s, according to the Southern Poverty Law Center.

And Mr. Butler left no heir apparent when he died in a house in Hayden Lake, Idaho, that had been given to him by a follower after Mr. Butler went bankrupt and lost his compound.

Things got worse for the radical right after the Oklahoma City bombing in 1995 and the conviction in that attack of one of its members, Timothy McVeigh. The known paramilitary groups and militias with roots in places like Montana and Washington state numbered 171 in 2003, down from 858 in 1996, according to the law center.

"Americans in this day and age are not at all keen on the idea of being recruited into violent revolutionary organizations whose mission is to assassinate public officials," Mr. Levitas said. "It is not a very sellable idea in a post-9-11 world."

how long will this 'war of terror' continue?

Not as long as our other war!

other war? No! WW II? No! Viet Nam? No! Palestine? No!

Against God's church & His Christ!

2000 years?! Now THAT's a war!

Richard Perle:

Can anyone say Saddam would NEVER have attempted to obtain WMD?

Jihadi & Rebbe visit Helbron

Helbron Shetel: but we are not here! we are here! we are here! we are here! we are here!

Imagine: 100 whites in Harlem & 1,000 US marshals to protect them...

or 100 whites in Soweto and 1,000 SA police guards.

but we belong here!

but how long?!

Why did Howard INCREASE the migrant 'entry' quota when 2.6 million Aussies are unemployed?

Billionaire Richard Pratt says wages... err... migrants... enrich our culture!

Elitists of disarray they cost $50,000 per year each to house & feed. All at taxpayers expense! who's enriched?

Maybe Billionaire Pratt and his elite friends. Hmm! $50,000 x 100,000 = $5,000,000,000

'News' to Skinny & Cheri says here there's a racist gang in Sydney... Issued threats against Univ Sydney & City Hall.

Anyone we know? - Nah!

NO PEACE PRIZE for ASHRAWI - or else!